MODERN OFFICE FURNITURE.
The DISPLAY of OFFICE FURNITURE, embracing DESKS, TABLES, and OTHER EQUIPMENT, shown in the FURNITURE DEPARTMENT, is of MORE than PASSING interest to commercial men; the EXTENSIVE VARIETY makes it PARTICULARLY attractive.
A Feature is made of the NEW MODEL CUTLER DESKS. These are fitted with TAPERED LEGS, which RAISE the Desk some INCHES from the floor, thus PERMITTING a free CURRENT of air BENEATH the Desk, and PREVENTING an accumulation of DUST. Indeed, this NEW FEATURE of the POPULAR CUTLER makes it an IDEAL DESK for OFFICE or LIBRARY.
CUTLER OFFICE and LIBRARY DESKS are made in PICKED QUARTERED OAK by the highest SKILLED labour, and many of the NEW MODELS possess FEATURES that STILL FURTHER add to the EFFICIENCY of these RENOWNED DESKS. We INVITE INSPECTION; the very ESSENCE of ECONOMY is ASSURED by

From the Peristyle where I write to you I see the sky-blue bay and Ursus in a skiff that pushes its prow into the luminous billows. At my side Lygia unwinds a skein of red wool, and in the garden, in the shade of the flowering almonds, I hear the song of our slaves. It is peace, my dear friend; it is the forgetting of the sufferings. Therefore I am obliged to say to you that they are not the Fates who so sweetly weave the web of our existence; it is instead Christ, Our Saviour and Friend.—VINITIUS TO PETRONIUS.

NOT ONLY A POINT OF MERIT, BUT A POINT OF SUPERIORITY.
The third pedal in our Victor Piano "Academy" and "Premier" Models, and the moderator stop in the "Artist Model" are decided advantages in a piano. These splendid contrivances add to the long life of the Victor, inasmuch that when brought into use a thick piece of felt is brought into action between the hammers and the strings, and the wear and tear on the hammers is thus reduced to a minimum. Other special features of our Victor Pianos we shall be pleased to explain fully when you visit our Showrooms and inspect.
The Victor Piano in four beautiful models. Sold fully guaranteed, and for cash or on easy time payments. Catalogues and price lists post free. Our Customers and Intending Buyers are specially invited to visit our Showrooms.

SOME IMPORTANT PLAYER PIANO BARGAINS AT PIANOLA HALL.
During a month of unprecedented business, quite a number of well-known and well-represented Player Pianos have been exchanged in part payment on Steinway and Steck Pianola Pianos. The instruments are all in excellent condition, and the lucky purchasers have the option of subscribing to our Circulating Library of Music Rolls; this in itself is a most important advantage. In order to clear these instruments quickly, we are offering them at extraordinary reductions, and while we want to encourage as much as possible the exchanging of such instruments for the genuine Pianola Piano, it is most important that we find a rapid market for them. Therefore, prices must move the following instruments we have pleasure in announcing this week:—
RONISCH CLAVIOLA PIANO.—An excellent production of one of these fine pianos, has installed a Claviola. So sure are we of the quality of this piano, that we give the buyer the option of returning it at its full purchase price within one month, on a Steinway or Steck Pianola Piano, in part payment. There are 30 Claviola Rolls with this instrument.
ANGELUS PLAYER PIANO (Jansen).—This is one of the most modern of these instruments, in Walnut case, containing the 88-note Angelus. This instrument has had less than six months' actual playing.
BROADWOOD PLAYER PIANO.—One of the largest and most handsome Upright Grand models of this eminent English Piano. It has installed a player, which will operate genuine Pianola Rolls. This instrument is in a very excellent condition, and like the Ronisch Claviola and Jansen Angelus looks as though it has very recently come from the factory.
COLLARD and COLLARD PLAYER PIANO was purchased in London last year, has installed a Player action, which plays the Pianola Roll. This piano looks brand new, of very superior tone quality, and superior finish throughout.
AUTO PLAYER PIANO, Kastner and Co., in Rosewood, plays genuine Pianola Rolls.
Space does not permit us to specialise on every instrument, but we are making a special display of such instruments this week at our George-street Showrooms, and they will all be offered at reductions, ranging from 20 per cent. to 50 per cent., under their original cost.
EIGHT GENUINE STECK PIANOLA PIANOS, slightly used, which, after a little used, have been returned to stock again in part payment on the new Steinway, Steck, and Weber Grand Pianola Pianos. The Grand Pianola Piano is the most recent production of the Pianola Company, and is increasing in popularity so rapidly that very slightly-used Genuine Pianola Pianos are now available at considerable reductions.
20 PIANOLAS TO FIT ANY PIANO, ORIGINAL COST £60, at prices from £20 up. Extended terms can be arranged as low as 15s monthly.
We allow the full purchase price on any instrument on this list if exchanged within one month from date of purchase.
(We are Open Friday Evenings).

WUNDERLICH ART METAL CEILINGS.
WUNDERLICH CEILINGS and WALL LININGS will embellish and improve a house immeasurably. To the soundest and most durable attributes they add a decorative power of the highest artistry.
There is no depreciation of these fine goods to be feared. They remain, permanently, the height of uniform excellence. Usually it has always meant in building a choice between that which is serviceable and that which is beautiful. And the serviceable had to be chosen. But WUNDERLICH MATERIALS came to revolutionise all this. They are, at once, the most durable and serviceable, and the most beautiful.

NOTES.

The annual report and statement of accounts of the Western Australian Turf Club, submitted to the members on Monday last, shows that the period under review has been a prosperous one. During the year nine meetings were held, extending over 18 days, and the prize money distributed aggregated £24,890, as against £21,340 for the previous year, when a similar number of days' racing was held; while, in addition, a charity meeting resulted in a profit of £710. The nine race meetings showed a profit of £19,267 4s 6d, as against a profit of £17,405 9s 11d for the preceding year, while the revenue from all other sources amounted to £2451 11s 11d, as against £2589 16s 9d for the preceding year. The profit and loss account shows on the year's transactions a profit of £14,942 15s 5d, and after writing off £3072 3s 3d for depreciation a net profit remains of £11,870 12s 2d, as against £9450 12s 5d for the preceding year. The credit balance at the National Bank at the end of the year was £4178 5s 11d, and, in addition, there was a fixed deposit of £15,000. The totalisator receipts for the year amounted to £21,680 6s 6d gross, as against £16,666 1s for the previous year, while the Government tax for the same period amounted to £4712 0s 2d. Consequent upon the Workers' Compensation Act having come into operation, a voluntary benefit fund to indemnify owners and trainers against risks incurred by registered jockeys and apprentices engaged in their callings has been established with the Victoria Insurance Company. The whole tenor of the report is one of prosperity and good management.

New South Wales horses were in evidence on the principal racecourses of Victoria, South Australia, and Queensland on Saturday and Monday last. At Flemington on Saturday, the double—the Royal Handicap and Sandringham Handicap—were captured by Kwasind and Magas respectively, while Silver secured the Princess Handicap. Kwasind is a Widden-bred son of Maltster and Grafton Lass, by Grafton (imp.) from Miss Melos, by Melos; Magas is by Flavus (imp.) from Maggie, by Metal from Maid of Kent, by The Tester, and was bred by Mr. J. Donohue; and Silver is a Widden-bred colt by Royal Artillery (son of Hotchkiss) from Silver, by Grafton (imp.) from Silverhair, by Somnus (imp.) On Monday, the Riverina-bred Light Ballast, by Ballistite from Neerlight, secured the Marlborough Hurdle Race; the Combadello-bred Safrano, by Flavus (imp.) from Velox, by Bill of Portland, annexed the Birthday Handicap; the Inglewood-bred, Peck o' Maut, by Maltster from Lovelorn, by Grafton (imp.) appropriated the Cornwall Handicap; and the Barragan-bred Elvanite, by Sylvanite from Yashmak, by Pilgrim's Progress captured the Corinthian Handicap. At Brisbane Flavus was also represented by a couple of winners—Rose o' Merton, whose dam, Widden Lass, is by Maltster from Chutney, by Gossoon (imp.), secured the Claret Stakes; while Flavian, whose dam is Postea, by Positano, and was bred at the Combadello stud, annexed the Epsom Handicap; and the Brocklesby-bred Goard, by Goya (imp.) from Elsie II., appropriated the Royal Stakes. At Victoria Park, Adelaide, on Saturday, the Norwood Handicap fell to Iownit, by Grafton (imp.) from My Own, by Elridspord (imp.); and on Monday, Prince Maltster, by Maltster from Madura, bred at the St. Clair stud, near Singleton, won the Electric Welter; Aurifer, by Flavus (imp.), from Queenbird, broke Mr. F. Merton's spell of ill-luck in South Australia by winning the Alderman Cup; and the Tarcutta-bred Arndel, by Ibex from Iodine, annexed the Coalbrook Stakes.

The well-known Victorian sportsman, Mr. J. C. Bowden, was among the visitors at Randwick during the A.J.C. Winter Meeting. For a number of years Mr. Bowden was a patron of T. Payten's Newmarket stable, and raced in the nom de course of "J. B. Clark" in the nineties, with a good measure of success.

A case of some interest to sporting men is set down for hearing at the next sittings of the Supreme Court in Palmerston (N.Z.), when Mr. F. G. Roe, of Levin, owner of Thetta, will proceed against J. Rudd for £501 damages alleged to have been sustained by the death of the brood mare Probability. The mare, it was stated, was kicked by a stallion, her leg being broken, necessitating her destruction.

The prize-money distributed at the A.J.C. Winter meeting amounted to £3981, of which Mr. A. A. Donald received £458 for the victory of Electrakoff in the Winter Stakes. St Medoc's success in the June Stakes was worth £306 to Messrs. W. and F. A. Moses. Mrs. R. Phillips' share was £321, earned by old Hautapu in the Second Steeplechase, and third money in the First Steeplechase. Mr. L. Hawthorn secured £261 for Kororite's win in the First Steeplechase. Mr. R. B. Hogue, £255 for Offa's win in the Ellesmere Handicap; Mr. J. F. Heaslitt, £238, for Loughrea's victory in the Second Hurdle Race; and Mr. T. M. Boyd, £237 for Dyor's success in the First Hurdle Race. The others who shared in the spoil were:—Messrs. J. Lloyd, £230; John Lee, £215; H. Nicholls, £204; H. N. Gibbs, £185; E. Underwood, £125 10s; W. S. Andrews, £125 10s; J. Northern, £100; C. Hebden, £100; Mrs. H. F. Mitchell, £80; J. Corrigan, £60; E. F. Walker, £60; A. T. Creswick, £60; Russell Arthur, £60; J. L. Brown, £60; J. S. Johnston, P. A. Connolly, and E. Keys, £40 each; Thos. Murdock, £30; and A. Shannon, W. J. Day, D. Bannatyne, A. Foley, and A. Bruce, £20 each.

The One Thousand Guineas Stakes, decided at Newmarket on May 2, attracted a field of 22, and the Duke of Devonshire's filly Tasiett by William the Third from Burgonet was sent out favourite at 6 to 1: Capt. F. Forrester's Queen's Parade was next fancied at 8 to 1, while Mr. J. B. Joel's Jest, by Sundridge from Absurdity, started at a point longer odds. The finish was a wonderfully close and exciting one. The favourite appeared once or twice to get slightly the better of it, but on the whole, Jest always looked like winning, and the head verdict in her favour was well deserved. An objection was lodged on the score of bumping, and the stewards decided that though Jest and Tasiett had undoubtedly collided more than once, each was equally to blame, and dismissed the protest. It was a case of two tired horses hanging together as they so very often do, and the action of the stewards was generally endorsed by impartial onlookers. Jest, who is own sister to Absurd, displayed her consistency at Epsom last week by securing the Oaks Stakes. Her success in the "Ladies' Race" at Newmarket completed the full round of three-year-old classic triumphs for her owner, for Sunstar had credited him with the Two Thousand Guineas and the Derby, Glass Doll with the Doncaster Oaks, and Your Majesty with the Doncaster St. Leger. His Majesty, who was present at the meeting, was represented in the classic race by the Gallinule filly, Princess Dagmar, but she did not finish in the first dozen.

Relative to the admission of American importations into the English Stud Book, the "Special Commissioner" of the London "Sportsman" writes:—"The terms of Lord Villiers's question on the subject of the preface to the new Stud Book were inaccurately given by the daily papers. That is to say, they were quoted from the original draft of the question, but his lordship had seen the need of a verbal alteration on the lines suggested by me in last Wednesday's issue, and instead of the words "traced to a strain already accepted in earlier volumes," we now read, "traced to horses or mares themselves already accepted in earlier volumes." This effectively excludes all collateral relatives of horses or mares who have been admitted to the book in the past without sufficient right, and it limits the trouble absolutely to their own descendants. Thus there can be no fresh importations of native American blood. What we have got we have got, and must make the best of, but the influx of the base-born is stayed, and it only remains to consider whether the mares with American blood in them should not be grouped together in an Appendix, as Arab mares are. If that were done the most distinguished of the English and Irish untraced families might also be included, and it would be a distinct convenience, for when we want to look up the pedigree of—say Shogun—there is no work of reference at present in which we can find it. Lord Villiers has, I hope, a long life before him, and I make no doubt he will do a great deal of other good work for the turf and the British thoroughbred; but he will never do anything better in this direction than he has now accomplished in regard to the Stud Book."

During the past 23 years, the Sledmere yearlings bred by the late Sir Tatton Sykes, and sold by public auction at Doncaster, totalled 203, and brought in the aggregate 274,180 guineas, an average of slightly over 1283 gns. For some years horses, for whom liabilities have been taken for Sledmere-bred youngsters, have been entered in the name of Mr. H. Cholmondeley, a grandson of the late Sir Tatton, so that the nominations should not become void in the event of the death of their breeder, and among them was Craganour, who was subsequently purchased by Mr. C. Bower Ismay, who, owing to the trouble in connection with the race for the Derby last week, has sold the well-performed colt to the Argentine Republic on condition that he will not be raced again.

BASEBALL.

LANE COVE STILL LEADING.

The fifth round in the district division brought surprise to the premiers, inasmuch as they could only tie with Paddington, whereas it was expected that they would have had an easy win. The game was not a good exposition, although there was some splendid individual play. The best game of the day was that between Petersham and Burwood, at Petersham, where the local nine won by 5—4. Towards the finish the interest in the game was intense, and the large crowd became greatly excited. One good feature of the sallies between the "rooters" was the comparative absence of objectionable personalities. The attendance was also good at Waverley, as usual, where Lane Cove defeated University. The scores, 7—4, although low, were not indicative of good play, which was ragged and loose, and the leaders in the competition did not show their best form. Mosman-North Sydney did not surprise anyone by defeating Waverley at Mosman Oval; this was the highest scoring game of the series—15—4—and neither side played up to form. It was the first time that baseball has been played on the Mosman Oval, and, judging from the fair attendance, the association would do well to make an effort to secure this ground for next season. It would provide an excellent home ground for the local team, and foster the local interest that is so essential to a club's welfare. Several very fine matches have been lost this season to the baseball public by being played at distant Rydalmere.

In the A division there were at least two surprises, the greatest being the defeat of Brotherhood by Central Cumberland, 11—6; and Chatswood were expected to beat Petersham II. This is Central Cumberland's first win, and they are naturally elated. The team is to be congratulated on its improved form.

DISTRICT DIVISION.

Against Burwood, Petersham only scored in one innings—the fourth—good batting by Brady, Dean, Turner, and Donawa sent five men home, and none out. There was an opportunity for the local side to score more runs, but bad baserunning by Kennedy and Wenholz made two out, and the innings was closed by Lyons being struck out by Ritchie. Burwood scored in three innings—1, 2, and 1. In the second time at bat, Antill crossed the plate on a good hit by Ritchie, the other three runs being the result of bad fielding. Andrews at shortstop, in Burwood's sixth, muffed a hit by Brown, then overthrew first base, allowing Thomas and Lane home. In Burwood's seventh, bad fielding by Dean allowed Granger to first, and a "bad play" by Andrews eventually let him home on Thomas' hit to short-stop. Wenholz pitched well for the winners up to the seventh innings, when Dean took his place and held his opponents down for nil in the last two innings. Turner caught well, and with Donowa batted best for the side. Brady made no mistake at left-field, and saved runs on two occasions by taking two well-judged "flys." For the losers J. B. Lane, at second, fielded best, having plenty of work. Granger was also good at first base. The best batters were V. Petersen and J. Ritchie. J. Ritchie pitched well throughout, and struck out 9, as against R. Wenholz's 7. The final scores were 5—4.

The Mosman-North Sydney v Waverley game was won by 15—14 by the former. Both pitchers, H. P. Woolcott (Mosman) and P. Stacey (Waverley) were hit frequently, and fielding errors were numerous on both sides. W. J. Phypers caught well for the winners, his pitcher's deliveries not being so accurate as usual this season. F. E. M'Elhone filled a similar position for Waverley; this was his first try in the bird-cage this season. His throwing to second base was excellent, but he was not well supported by the baseminder. Stacey tired palpably, was easily hit, and Waverley became disorganised. On the whole, the display was disappointing. There is a plentitude of good material, and it only needs combination to develop the best in both sides; this refers more particularly to Waverley. Only five innings each were played. This was on account of the time wasted by the senior teams, as the early game was stopped punctually to time.

Leichhardt and Paddington were 9 all in eight completed innings at Leichhardt Oval. Paddington completed their ninth, but the light failed while Leichhardt were at bat, and the umpire called "game." Paddington did well to hold the premiers. J. A. Machado was in good form after a couple of weeks' spell off the slab, and J. Ames caught well up to the sixth innings, when an injured finger caused his retirement, and Hall took his place. Paddington worked two good "doubles"—Stafford (right-field) to Ames (home); Sayles (first), foul fly caught to Hall (home); C. White (left-field) caught two good "flys." Sayle fielded and batted in good style. For Leichhardt J. Franks caught well, and his brother Harold's pitching was hit more than usual, though he fielded his position excellently. Bailey, at centre field, pulled down a good fly when the bases were full.

Playing against Lane Cove, University were without the services of Campling (catcher) and Gregg (second base), and they did well to hold Lane Cove as they did at 7—4. E. P. Barbour played first base in good style in place of R. B. Minnett, who went to the outfield. Hunter, not being accustomed to the "hub" position, was not successful. J. Back, at third base, was the best fielder for the losers, and J. Turner, at first base, and W. Bernard, at centre-field, were Lane Cove's best. P. Johnston pitched very well.

"A" DIVISION.

Petersham II. v Chatswood proved an even game up to the end of the sixth innings, when the score was 7—6 in favour of Petersham at that stage. The winners, however, got a batting rally on in their seventh innings, and, scoring 8 runs, put the game beyond all doubt, as Chatswood could not respond. Glassop, at short-stop, was about the best fielder and batter for the winners, and Brough, at left-field, caught two and missed two. For the losers F. Meares, the old interstate player, was the best of the batters, but as captain he failed to prevent his side getting badly rattled on one or two occasions. The final scores were 16—7.

University II. were short-handed owing to the vacation, and forfeited to Leichhardt II.

The Petersham Junior "A" v St. George game, which promised to be one of the most interesting, could not be played, as the umpire did not arrive in time.

"B" DIVISION.

At Petersham Junior ground the Petersham Junior "B" team held the upper hand of Waverley III. throughout, winning by 9-7, with an innings to go. Campbell was in great form again, rendering 14 assists, and striking out 11, whilst Buckeridge gave 10 assists, and striking out 4 for Waverley. Warne (1st), Hooke (2nd), and Moss (c) performed ably for the victors, and Kelly (1st) and Robertson (S.S.) for their opponents.

WESTERN SUBURBS ASSOCIATION.

At Erskineville Petersham Juniors "C" team defeated the leaders—Warren Cambridge. At the end of the 7th innings Cambridge were leading by 6-5, but the boys came with a batting rally of 6 runs in their last innings, which won the game. Taking into consideration that the teams are novices, the exhibition was very good.

The crowd were excited, but still persist in encroaching on the diamond. Unfortunately it will be necessary to play the games elsewhere unless the spectators be removed from the playing area.

GOLF.

THE STATE AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

OPEN DAY AT DOBROYDE.

More perfect weather could not have been desired for an important golfing event than was enjoyed at Rose Bay on Saturday, when the qualifying round of the State amateur championship was played. The course was in good order, though a little soft in places as a result of the recent rains. Occasionally a ball would be found partly imbedded in the ground, but a special local rule was in force allowing it to be dropped behind without penalty if on the fairway, so that players did not suffer, except by the loss of distance consequent on the absence of run. The greens were in excellent order.

The play was a triumph for E. L. Apperly, last year's champion, who finished first with a score for the two rounds of 155, the first of which was a brilliant 74, and the second a solid 81. The 74 was better by three strokes than any other round of the day, while the total of 155 beat that of R. B. Godbolt, who ran second by 7 strokes.

The eight players to qualify for the match-play stages were E. L. Apperly, R. B. Godbolt, W. C. Sturrock, T. E Howard, H. W. M'Lelland, G. T. Balcombe, H. Terry, and Ross Gore, in that order. Of these Godbolt, Sturrock, and Howard are new players in the championship, and may be congratulated on the success of their first appearance. Godbolt has for years been one of our leading players, but has hitherto not been able to spare the time to practise for the event, confining his attention to the Concord Club championship, which he has held for several years.

W. C. Sturrock, who finished third, is an English golfer, who has not been with us many months, but who has earned many good opinions by those who know a good player. He has attached himself to Dobroyde, the record of which course he at present holds. Howard is a young player from the Bonnie Doon Club, who came into prominence a few weeks ago by finishing among the prize-winners at the opening of the City Council's course at Moore Park.

That golf can no longer be regarded as a game for old men is shown by the fact that at least six of those who qualified are in the hey-day of youth, while Dr Terrey and Ross Gore are not by any means veterans. One of the surprises of the day was the comparatively poor form shown by the local members, J. S. Marks, W. S. Laidley, H. B. Gritton, and G. B. Owen all failing to qualify. The club's sole representative to win a place in the match-play stages was Ross Gore, who did remarkably well in view of the fact that he has had practically no golf for six months.

E. L. Apperly's round of 74 in the morning was a brilliant effort. Starting off with an orthodox four, he secured the second (423 yards) in similar figures, and had the short third in three. The fourth in five was equal to bogey figures, but the next hole was expensive, costing seven. The sixth (a short hole) cost three, and the seventh was secured in a very good five, two fours bringing him to the turn in 39. Coming home he did much better, and though outside bogey at the tenth and twelfth holes, he was a stroke better at the eleventh, thirteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth, and two strokes better at the seventeenth, where he holed a brilliant three. He had the last four holes in 15, as against a bogey of 19, and was Apperly at his best. His card read as follows:—

Out: 4, 4, 3, 5, 7, 3, 5, 4, 4=39
In: 5, 4, 4, 4, 3, 4, 4, 3, 4=35
—74

In the afternoon he did not display the same form as in the morning, and took 42 to the turn, the two short holes proving expensive with four and five respectively, while the ninth cost six. The eighth, however, was obtained in three, and coming home he had good threes at both the eleventh and twelfth holes, and a fine two at the fourteenth. The sixteenth, however, was expensive, as, overrunning the green, he was badly placed near the fence, which spoiled his third shot and the hole cost seven. He took fives for the last two holes, and he was home in 39, or 81 for the round, and a total of 155 for the 36 holes. His figures for the second round were:—

Out: 4, 4, 4, 5, 5, 5, 6, 3, 6=42
—81

R. B. Godbolt fully upheld his reputation gained at Concord by two solid rounds, each of 81. In the morning he played splendidly going out, reaching the turn in 37, being then two strokes ahead of Apperly. Coming home he fell away considerably, chiefly owing to poor putting, and took 44, his card reading:—

Out .... 4, 4, 3, 5, 4, 3, 5, 4, 5—37
In .... 5, 5, 4, 6, 5, 5, 5, 5, 4—44
—81

His second round, while equal in strokes, had the merit of being more even than that of the morning, in that he took 41 out and 40 home, his card reading:—

Out .... 5, 5, 4, 4, 6, 4, 6, 3, 4—41
In .... 4, 4, 4, 5, 3, 6, 5, 4, 5—40
—81

This placed him second on the list, 7 strokes behind Apperly with 162. W. C. Sturrock, the third man, had an excellent round of 78 in the morning, his figures being.—

Out .... 4, 5, 2, 5, 6, 4, 5, 4, 4—39
In ...... 4, 5, 3, 5, 4, 5, 4, 5, 4—39
—78

His afternoon round was not nearly so good, bad holes at the second, eleventh, and sixteenth making his round 85—41 out and 44 home; yet his total took him into third place in the qualifying round. T. E. Howard played very steadily, and had two rounds of 80 and 84. Going out, in the morning, he showed the best form, and reached the turn in 38, his figures being—4, 4, 3, 6, 4, 3, 6, 4, 4—38. His place in the first eight was well deserved. H. W. M'Lelland was a long way in arrears in the morning with 88, and did not seem to have a chance, but a brilliant round of 79 in the afternoon placed him in the first eight.

G. T. Balcombe, one of the A.G.C. representatives, played good golf all day, but with nothing of a sensational nature. In the morning he was out in 43 and home in 41, while in the second round his figures were 42 and 41 respectively. In the afternoon he might have done much better but for an unfortunate 6 at the fifteenth and an 8 at the sixteenth, the remainder of his home round being very good. H. Terrey had two steady rounds of 84 each, while Ross Gore, after being well in the ruck at the conclusion of the morning round, ran into eighth place with a well-played 83 in the afternoon. C. L. Mackenzie, J. S. Marks, J. E. Matthews, H. N. Giblin, and N. F. Christoe were all level with 173, and just failed to qualify. W. S. Laidley, who was expected to qualify, started with a 7, and failed to do himself justice.

DOBROYDE'S OPEN DAY.

The Dobroyde club held a very successful open event on Saturday, when a bogey competition engaged the attention of members and visitors from almost all the Sydney clubs. The course was in very good order, considering the recent wet weather, while the greens were excellent. The event proved a runaway win for K. I. Harrison, who, with a handicap of 5, returned a card of 5 up, and gave ample evidence of his return to the form he displayed two years ago, when he was looked upon as one of the most promising young players in the State. He was in fine form, and after taking 7 to the first hole, scarcely made a mistake thereafter. He was 3 up at the turn, and increased his lead by two more holes coming home, his card working out at 77, figures which have not yet been beaten, though they were equalled by W. C. Sturrock a week before. His round was as follows:—

Out .... 7, 3, 3, 4, 5, 4, 4, 3, 4—37
In ...... 4, 4, 4, 5, 5, 6, 4, 4, 4—40
—77

The second trophy was won by J. P. Flynn, who, with a handicap of 12, returned a card all square with bogey, and showed good form; while third place was filled by W. E. Bain (7), with a card of 2 down. C. G. W. Davidson, the captain of the club, in presenting the trophies, regretted that they should all have been won by local members, and cordially welcomed the visitors to the course.

At Killara T. Honnor and S. B. Hague Smith played well together in the four-ball bogey competition, and after being four up at the turn finished eight up on bogey. Honnor played fine golf, being out in 39 and back in 41, a round of 80, and when he failed to halve or win a hole his partner came forward and did what was necessary.

Monday was a very bad day for golf, heavy rain and a strong wind making conditions anything but pleasant. W. Andrew, in the qualifying round of the club championship at Killara, played wonderfully good golf, considering the state of the course and weather, and in completing the morning round in 77, established a record for the new course, his figures being:—

Out .... 3, 5, 5, 4, 4, 4, 4, 6, 3=38
In ...... 4, 4, 6, 6, 3, 4, 3, 4, 5=39
—77

R. Colquhoun, with 81 and 82, was very consistent, making very few mistakes.

LAWN TENNIS.

THE AMERICAN VICTORY.

GERMANY DEFEATS FRANCE.

In our cable columns appears the result of the preliminary match between America and Australasia for the Davis Cup, which was won by the Americans. To Australians the defeat does not come in the nature of a surprise. Brookes, Wilding, Dunlop, and Heath were not playing, and it could not be expected that Doust, Jones, and Rice would make up for their absence, more especially as Jones was suffering from sickness. Although the Australasians were defeated, we congratulate the Americans on their brilliant victory.

The reputation of Australasian lawn tennis has been enhanced by the splendid success of A. B. Jones and S. N. Doust when opposed by M. E. M'Loughlin and H. H. Hackett in the preliminary Davis Cup doubles. The high praise bestowed upon A. B. Jones by the critics has been welcomed by all here, who regretted the indisposition which kept him out of the singles as much for his own sake as for the diminished chance of Australasia's success, which it involved. It is indeed hard luck to travel some thousands of miles and then be incapacitated by ill-health on the date of the match. "A fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind," and, no doubt, Jones would have no more sincere sympathiser than the American, W. A. Larned, who suffered from illness just prior to, and during, the cup match at Christchurch. To be described as the star performer in such company as M. E. M'Loughlin, double champion of America, H. H. Hackett, three times champion of the same nation, and S. N. Doust, covered courts doubles champion of England, is high praise indeed for A. B. Jones, yet it was impossible to see his play against the Englishmen in the doubles without being impressed with the opinion that he is superlatively good in doubles. That he will make his mark in singles also in England is also likely.

Jones is not likely to pair with Doust in England, in the championship at all events, as the latter is said to have decided to enter with Mavrogordato. Probably Doust did not know the capabilities of Jones when he made this arrangement.

Germany has gained the distinction of being the first nation to win a tie of this year's Davis Cup competition by defeating France by three matches to one; apparently the singles contest between Decugis and Kreuzer was not proceeded with when Germany had secured the three matches necessary for success. This nation has therefore made a happy entrance into the field of international lawn tennis, and may go further in the present series of matches. The defeat of France was not altogether a surprise, for the Germans showed superiority over the Frenchmen in the world's covered courts championship in Paris last year, when Froitzheim and Kreuzer were winner and runner-up respectively in the singles, and the same players in partnership won the doubles. True, Germany was without the assistance of Froitzheim this year, but against this had to be set off the deterioration in form of Gobert, who seems to have gone off his game since he took up his military duties, and also that of Laurentz, who, possibly for this reason, was not nominated. In Kleinschroth and Rahe the Germans had a pair better than Froitzheim and Kreuzer, one which went through the Riviera season this year undefeated, so that many were prepared to hear of Germany's victory when it was decided to play on hard courts at Wiesbaden. Whether the Germans will be such formidable opponents on the grass courts of England as the French would have been is, however, an open question. Much will depend upon whether Froitzheim is available, as of all the Germans who have played in England he alone has shown up prominently in singles there. He won the championship of the South of England at Eastbourne one year from a good field, and in the London championship last year beat Winslow, the South African, H. Kleinschroth, Ritchie, and Parke, forfeiting to Wilding in the final owing to an injured hand. Rahe has played a good deal in England, where he has some good singles performances to his credit, but nothing out of the way. In doubles, however, with Kleinschroth he has been conspicuous. The performance which first drew attention to them was that in which they were beaten by Decugis and Gobert in the all England championship two years ago—a match frequently spoken of as being the most brilliant display of doubles ever seen at Wimbledon.

In the match between the All England Club and the Turnier Club of Berlin, played at Wimbledon last July, Rahe and Kleinschroth beat Wilding and Beamish three sets straight, and Ritchie and Mavrogordato three sets to one. Rahe lost in straight sets to Beamish, and Kreuzer was similarly defeated by Ritchie. Kreuzer, who is a left-hander, does not appear to have adapted himself to the grass as well as his compatriots. He was beaten in the doubles with Froitzheim by Wilding and Beamish, and also by Ritchie and Mavrogordato.

When the cables informed us that Wilding and Doust had won the covered courts championship, defeating Gore and Lamb in the final, the opinion was expressed that Lamb would be found to be an assumed name, probably adopted by Roper Barrett. News by the mail proves this view to have been correct. Some of the papers concealed his identity to the last—he entered as E. W. E. Lamb—but one of them declined to use the pseudonym, and referred to the player boldly as Roper Barrett, for which it deserves thanks.

SWIMMING.

OSCAR DICKMAN IN ENGLAND.

THE PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Oscar Dickman, the Australian champion professional swimmer, and holder of the world's records for 220, 880, and 1750 yards, has arrived [illegible]nd. The Australian claims the world's championship, and is desirous of meeting David Billington, the English champion. Dickman also intends to compete in any first-class professional galas which may offer in Great Britain or on the Continent, but his primary object is a match for the world's championship, and with that end in view he will lose no time in getting into condition. Unlike the majority of first-class swimmers, Dickman is of very slight build; in fact, he weighs only 9st 2lb. Nevertheless, he is a very fine swimmer, as his records prove. They are as follow:—

THE DYING SEASON.

In this State the pursuit of the pastime of bowling never actually ceases, as it does in Victoria and New Zealand for a period of months, but the touch of winter's chilly hand brings about an appreciable diminution both in the number and ardour of players. This is the season of the ultra-enthusiast, to whom the vagaries of temperature are of small moment, but even to him the zest of the game is synchronous with the setting of the sun. The days are now with us when 21 ends is ample measure, and an early start at that. The allurement of the home green is more pronounced, and tripping abroad is less relished than it was a couple of months back. In the majority of clubs, therefore, home competitions are now in vogue, and notice-boards in pavilions are subject to much scanning of their budget of "handicaps" and "draws" and kindred particulars.

Marrickville, for example, has commenced its annual winter event, which is run on somewhat novel lines. It provides for the grouping of all players into four denominations—leaders, seconds, thirds, and skips, and rinks are drawn by ballot and matched in pairs. Members of successful rinks are credited with two points, and losers are debited with a like number. A fresh ballot takes place for the second round, and so on over a given period, at the end of which results are announced, and the winners determined. The scheme has the merit of continued variety of partners, and thus ensures the promotion of sociability and camaraderie. As the winter advances interest increases, and the progress of the competition as far as it has gone has appeared in our ordinary columns.

At Randwick also the annual events are in full swing, but are run on more orthodox lines. The single-handed championship and handicap, a rink handicap, a pair event, and a "drawing-the-shot" competition form the bulk of the programme, and promise to provide plenty of skilful rivalry.

Waverley is always alive with something of interesting discussion, and never allows a holiday to pass without some attraction for the delectation of its large clientele. Its annual meeting is approaching, and as a rule the business thereof is a topic for weeks beforehand. The fixtures for the current month include a twelve-rink match, President and Secretary, which forms a kind of valedictory to the closing year. The Evans trophy and the annual billiard tournament are also matters of immediate concern.

THE JOHN YOUNG SHIELD.

The last of the association competitions for the current season will be played on Saturday, and the draw has paired the clubs together in the following order:—

City v Gladstone Park	Petersham v Ashfield.
Waverley v Balmain.	Parramatta v Ryde.
Marrickville v Burwood.	Kuring-gai v Manly.

The conditions of play are well known, viz., three rinks on each green, home and home, with victory going to the club which secures the largest aggregate majority. Such terms are not conducive to anything in particular as a test of strength, and the luck of the draw dominates the situation in overwhelming degree. It may be found that the first-named of each pair will provide the majority of winners, though in several cases the issue is open to a diversity of opinion, as for instance in the duels between Randwick and Victoria Park, Marrickville and Burwood, Petersham and Ashfield, and Kuring-gai and Manly. In the search for the winning club one naturally pauses at the chance of the City against Gladstone Park, and if any of the other contestants succeeds in scoring a larger majority than the Rawson Cup winners a certain amount of surprise is bound to follow. Still bowls is bowls, and the most experienced watcher is best prepared for fortune's freaks. Of the recognised metropolitan regulars, Chatswood, Redfern, and Hunter's Hill are missing.

Mosman and North Sydney chose to settle their argument last Saturday, and the tussle resulted in an anticipated victory for the powerful Belmont-road institution by a majority of 29 points. The margin is not likely to prove wide enough to cause the shield to find a home in the Mosman pavilion for the next twelve months, as no fewer than five clubs exceeded a majority of fifty points in this competition last year, Maitland turning up winners with a surplus of 80, followed by North Sydney 77, Ashfield 67, Hamilton 63, and St. George 51. On each green Mosman prevailed in two of the three rinks, winning at home by 15 and away by 14. Those old Waverley confreres Macleod and Gelding were Mosman's unsuccessful skips, and in each instance their minority was 2 shots, but the enthusiastic Walters, whose ardour of late days has been somewhat diminished by the lure of the motor car, scored a two-to-one victory over Lawry, and Jenkins was a good second with 26 to 14 in opposition to Clarke. Burton-Smith and Evans each skipped a winning rink for Mosman with more modest margins, and Trivett and Walker upheld the North Sydney reputation in creditable but vain effort.

THE PRESIDENT'S WESTERN TRIP.

Mr. R. A. Bell made a fortunate choice in selecting Friday evening last to start on tour to Bathurst, Orange, and Dubbo, for his party were enabled to enjoy three days with the hospitable bowlers in those glorious districts in weather which contrasted strongly with metropolitan conditions. The Central station was left behind at 8.55 p.m., and Bathurst reached at 2.30 on Saturday morning. Notwithstanding the early hour, representatives of the City of the Plains offered a cordial welcome and drove the president's men to their respective hotels. At 11 a.m. all assembled at the "Royal" where Mr. Edgeley, president of the Bathurst Club, expressed the delight of the local bowlers at meeting such a formidable array of talent from the metropolis. At 1 o'clock sharp the tourists engaged and defeated three rinks, the scores being given in our usual column. Shortly after 4 a move was made for Orange, where dinner was partaken of, followed by a smoke concert which was thoroughly enjoyed on account of the excellent talent provided. The chief business of the evening, of course, was the presentation of the "B" competition and "Western District" shields to the Orange Club, and in doing so Mr. Bell, in his official capacity, congratulated the successful players on the high standard of play to which they had attained. The function was marked by the greatest enthusiasm. Sunday was fine, though somewhat overcast and cold, and the trippers were driven to the famous Canoblas, viewing en route some of the State's choicest country, and indulging at the summit in the, to many, somewhat rare pastime of snowballing. Early on Monday the third and last section of the trip was entered upon, and President Wheeler extended to the party the hospitalities of the Dubbo bowlers. The local forces were augmented by rinks from Orange and Wellington, but Mr. Bell's team proved equal to all requirements, and won, as stated in yesterday's issue. Messrs. Hawke and Wheeler received the trophies emblematic of their skill in the pairs championship of the State, and were roundly complimented on all hands. It only remains to be said that the unbounded hospitality of the western sportsmen was greatly appreciated by the city men, and the trip, brief as it was, is calculated to benefit and cement in no small measure the relations of the several component parts of the association. Expressions of good will were abundant on all sides, and some excellent and valuable suggestions were made as to the future conduct of the several State championships. Before leaving Dubbo, the happy team of tourists made Mr. Shadforth a handsome little present of silver-backed brushes and a match-box in recognition, partly of the excellent arrangements he had made for their comfort and pleasure, and partly for a remarkable exhibition of bare-back equestrianism to which he treated them in Orange. The party returned to Sydney yesterday.

Postcards to hand recently from the association president, Mr. John Spence, contain notes of interest in connection with his trip abroad, as well as good wishes and remembrances to the bowlers of the State generally.

It is more than likely that a strong Newcastle combination will visit Sydney on 21st instant, and that a return trip by a metropolitan team will follow shortly after.

A new competitor has appeared in the list of metropolitan clubs, and on Saturday Beecroft engaged Kuring-gai on the Warrawee award. In view of it being practically their maiden effort, the overwhelming disparity of scores was only to be expected, and it is to be remembered that some of our strongest clubs of to-day marked their infancy by similarly modest beginnings in the matter of points. The chief feature that presents itself to the hospitable community of bowlers is the advent of a new club, and a hearty welcome awaits Beecroft on all hands. Mr. John Wallace, veteran association treasurer, now on tour in Scotland, is largely responsible for the club's formation, and one of Saturday's skips, Mr. Nicholas Shiels, was once Randwick's honorary secretary.

To win the championship of one's club is an honour at any time, and the merit of the achievement increases proportionately with the strength and playing calibre of the club itself. In succeeding, therefore, to the title of champion of the City, William Donaldson affixed the seal, as it were, to a lengthy scroll of meritorious performance. If one essayed to sum up in brief the outstanding feature of Donaldson's game, the single word "consistency" would most aptly fill the bill, for, though his play varies after the manner of humankind, he is rarely guilty of a pronouncedly loose game. A splendid trier and match exponent, he possesses a cheery optimism and loyalty, which are of abundant help to the skip and rink; and his strength in the "absolute draw" phase of the bowlers' art makes him an invaluable number two. In the crack interstate teams, indeed, his name is looked for in this position with as much confidence as that of the notable Chatswood player, George Chapman.

Of equal distinction was the victory of H. C. Tyler, in the formidable and competition-loving Petersham Club. His successive conquest of Hilliard, Holmes, J. S. Davis, Oram, and F. Searl, won him the right to the coveted title, which, in this club, is even more keenly disputed than usual, and there is no doubt that the experience Tyler has gained on Victorian and New Zealand greens stands solidly in his favour to-day. In the season's pennant matches he acquitted himself with credit also, winning twice in three tries, and scoring 77 points to 55.

The prize presented to the North Coast clubs by Mr. F. J. Walters, of Mosman, was won by Messrs. Ridland, L. Jamieson, Martin, and Gibson, of the Ballina Club, and not by the four members of the Lismore team, as previously advised.

ROWING.

REVIVAL ON THE CLARENCE.

There has been little or no rowing done during the last few weeks, but the temporary rest is not due to a lack of energy, but to bad weather conditions. However, a surprising amount of activity is being shown by the clubs for this time of the year. The attention of the majority of the officials is in the direction of the preparation of reports and balance-sheets, together with social functions. Nearly all of the clubs report good membership rolls, and there seems to be a buoyancy of spirits amongst clubmen, which tends to give one a hopeful outlook for the coming season. The prominence given to the sport during the last 12 months is sure to make itself felt during the coming year, and, with careful and enthusiastic administration, there is every reason to believe that next year increased interest in the sport will be displayed.

Perhaps the spirits of the members of the Enterprise and Mosman clubs are more exuberant than any of the other clubs, for they are already looking forward to the happy day when they will unfurl "the little bits of bunting"—the champion pennants for 1912-13. These will be presented to them at the annual meeting of the N.S.W. Rowing Association. As it is the first time that either club has won the distinctive honour, they both propose to mark the event in a manner worthy of the occasion.

It is a matter for regret that the annual balls of the Sydney and North Shore rowing clubs will clash. Both fixtures are set down for July 3, and usually attract large gatherings.

A revival of rowing on the Clarence River has resulted in the South Grafton Rowing Club, which has been dormant for several years, being galvanised into life again. A very successful regatta was held recently under its auspices at South Grafton, which was largely attended by local residents, and excited considerable interest throughout the surrounding districts. The programme was comprised of open fours, double-sculls, club gladstones, open gladstones, and butcher-boats, and each race proved interesting. F. Amos, who won the double and single scull events, proves that the Clarence is not losing its prestige in the development of scullers. Mr. Moss, will, no doubt, be heard of again in district rowing events in the future.

Clarence River has always been a rowing centre, and, like the majority of the northern rivers, has some good stretches of water which are ideal for rowing purposes. Some of our best scullers have hailed from the northern rivers, and there is no reason why their oarsmen should not become famous too. This can only be accomplished by their participating in metropolitan regattas, and eventually securing representation in the State crew in interstate contests. It was with this object that several attempts have been made from time to time to induce the northern river clubs to affiliate with the governing body of rowing in this State, but they have only been feeble attempts, and so far, have proved unsuccessful. It is generally admitted that there are some difficulties in the way, but they are not insurmountable. The present revival might be an opportune time to make another effort in the direction of securing the consummation of what everyone in the sport wishes to see, and that is every rowing club in the State, no matter how small, coming under the control and the rules by which the metropolitan clubs are governed.

LACROSSE.

THE SCHOOLS.

Owing to the compulsory training introduced last year some ground was lost in the school divisions; but it is being regained under the able management of the Public Schools' Amateur Athletic Association, which has undertaken to control the competitions. At present there are two grades, each consisting of four teams. An effort is being made to send a representative school team to Brisbane at the end of the month.

On Saturday the concluding games of the first round of the A grade will be played. The most important contest should be that between Eastern Suburbs and Sydney (both unbeaten teams), which is set down for Waverley Park. It is unfortunate that such an interesting game is not played on a better and more centrally situated ground. St. George and Bexley are leading in their respective sections of the B grade.

The Mosman-Sydney fixture at the Domain was interesting, still bad passing spoiled an otherwise good game. Mosman secured a lead in the first half, but were unable to retain it. Shepherd's play as centre was excellent. After a retirement for a year Maxwell shaped well for Sydney. Allworth and Gurney in the Mosman defence proved very formidable.

The premiers were beaten by Eastern Suburbs at Waverley. The latter team are showing excellent form. M'Cormick showed fine judgment in the Petersham goal. University did not play so well as was expected against Birchgrove, which game they lost by 7-1. Federal's defeat of Mosman by 31-1 at the Domain was a meritorious performance. Many of the Federal players could easily secure positions in any A grade team. St. George played well together against Birchgrove, and secured a ten-goals victory.

Many of the boys playing B grade lacrosse will be prevented, owing to the compulsory training movement, taking part in the various matches next Saturday. It would be a wise move on the part of the association to suspend all B grade matches on that day, otherwise some teams might gain unfair advantages through the absence of prominent men in the opposing team.

The Petersham Federals and Delewares journeyed to Richmond on Monday, and played an exhibition game prior to the football match on the local oval. The day was hardly suitable for lacrosse; the ground was slippery and heavy, still the boys did well. The game is unknown in that town, but the display was appreciated by the spectators. Victor Barnett, played meritoriously, again and again beating heavier opponents, and some of the goals he scored were very cleverly executed. Roy Barnett was also in good form, and Gleeson, Fountain, and Robinson also did well. Delewares took the lead in the first half, but their opponents gradually wiped out the deficit, and the game ended in a draw, eight all.

With a view to judging the merits of the various players the interstate selectors asked 26 players to take part in a practice game on Monday. The weather, however, was responsible for the abandonment of the match.

BILLIARDS.

THE LOSING HAZARD.

EXPERIMENTAL TRIANGLE RULES.

Considerable interest was taken in the public demonstration of the experimental "triangle" rules, fathered by J. Mannock, the well-known billiards tutor and coach, at Mannock's Rooms, Hotel Victoria, London, on May 1. Among the billiards notabilities present were Col. Atkinson, of the Billiard Association, Maj. Broadfoot, and Messrs. J. P. Abbott (director of Messrs. Burroughes and Watts), C. Howard Craggs (managing director Messrs. Thurston and Co.), E. C. Ogden, S. H. Fry, C. E. Johnson (B.A.), G. H. Nelson (secretary B.C.C.), G. D. Roberts (B.C.C.), S. Eumorfopoulos (B.A.), G. S. Willins, and F. Heath.

The object of the sponsor of the new rules is primarily the curtailment of long sequences of losing hazards, although the claim is also made that the experiment will tend to improve the game generally. The experiment consists of a "triangle" marked inside the "D" at present in use, from inside of which triangle all losing hazards from hand must be played, while the whole of the "D" would remain open for all other strokes.

The demonstration consisted of a level game of 150 up between Harverson and Mannock under the proposed new rules, and a game of 200 up, in which Harverson conceded Mr. S. H. Fry 50 start, with the proviso that all strokes from hand be played from inside the triangle. Mannock won the first game, in which the best break of 40 was nearly all from purely top-of-the-table methods, while Harverson, with a spot end break of 82 as the best, won the other.

In the discussion which followed (says the "Sporting Life") the general opinion seemed to be that while the new rules "killed" losing hazard play effectively enough—whether long or short sequences—they were much too drastic, if not impracticable in other directions. Indeed, there was a preponderance of opinion against the new idea, though at the same time it was admitted the test was not made quite so searching as it might have been. Harverson, for instance, in his game with Mr. Fry, hardly operated from the "triangle" at all, as witness his first break of 82, which did not include a single loser.

THE AMATEUR DEFINITION.

In the majority of sports and pastimes, the amateur qualification has been a stumbling-block, but in none so much as billiards. For many years attempts have been made to draw up a definition, which would be fair, and also in keeping with the democratic tendencies of this section of the Empire. The New South Wales Sports Club was the first body in Australia to grapple with the question in 1900, when they submitted the following definition:—

"An amateur billiard player shall be one who, from the inception of this championship has not (1) played for gate money; (2) a money prize; (3) accepted prize money in a tournament for which a trophy and cash is offered; (4) followed billiards as a means of livelihood; and, notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing, it is provided always that no billiard player shall be considered as an amateur who has been employed as a billiard-marker, or in a billiard-room since January 1, 1896."

That definition was practically adopted by the New South Wales Amateur Billiard Association when it took over the control of amateur billiards in this State a few years back. From time to time one hears of alleged "hardships" being inflicted upon individuals who may have transgressed the latter section of the rule. A case in point came up for adjudication last week, in which a member of one of the institutes had taken charge of a billiard-room for a couple of months during industrial trouble in the business which he followed. After going into the matter thoroughly the committee decided by a majority vote to re-admit the player as an amateur.

The decision arrived at by the Billiard Association is a distinct contradiction to that portion of their definition which states that no player "who has been employed in a billiard-room since 1896" shall be considered as an amateur. Adverse comment on their action is almost certain to come from some of the inter-institute teams, who play under rules which specify that no one shall be allowed to compete in their championships who has acted as a billiard-marker within five years of the closing of nominations.

In Australia the general idea of an amateur in sport is one who plays the game only for pleasure. That definition applies to billiards as well, and no one who, as marker, instructor, or, in fact, anyone who makes his living wholly or in part by the game, is classed as an amateur. In the past there were a number of avowed amateurs who visited the public rooms and clubs to make what they could on the tables, either openly or on what used to be known as the "sharking" principle, but that class of player has long since died out.

At this season of the year, when the majority of the clubs, institutes, and public rooms are promoting tournaments, the "coursing" system of drawing heats should be resorted to. By this method all the byes are drawn in the first round, and it is a much better system than having the swing of a tournament interrupted by byes in the semi-final rounds, and the eternal question whether the drawer of the bye "shall play-off against the loser for second prize." As the majority of our readers are aware, it is a means of getting rid of what might be called the superfluous players in the first round. Thereafter the competitors can be paired off evenly until the end is reached. A handicap of ten players, as an instance, should have no fewer than six byes and two games in the first round, thus leaving eight players and four heats. The idea is to have multiples of 8, 16, 32, 64, or 128 games for the second round. Then there would be no byes.

This system was adopted in the markers' tournament which started on Monday night at Messrs. Heiron and Smith's rooms. It is now 17 years since this event was started for the benefit of those men who put in from 12 to 15 hours daily calling scores and attending to the requirements of the "hundred-upper." Each year's tournament appears to be an advance on its predecessor so far as good play is concerned, and as Frank Smith, the New South Wales champion, is standing out as a result of his two successive victories, some of the younger players should have a better chance of displaying their skill. For the past two seasons Smith's big breaks appeared to paralyse the opposition. Last year he won from 400 behind scratch in 500 up, with some of his opponents (seasoned markers, too) as far up as 350 on. Had he entered this year the State champion would have been at least 500 behind scratch.

In defeating Aiken in Brisbane last week, George Gray added another to his long list of breaks of over 1000. Considering that only two other living players have made four-figure runs (Lindrum (1239) and Stevenson (1016)—under present rules, the young Australian should be particularly proud of his record, which approaches 30 such breaks.

Next Monday Gray will commence a two-weeks' engagement against Williams, to whom he will concede the same start as he did to Aiken recently—2000 in 16,000. It will be a good test for Williams, and should give him a line as to his prospects of victory in the coming "money" match with Aiken on the 30th instant, the winning of which will be of much greater importance than the result of a mere exhibition game.

The Australian champion, F. Lindrum, is still in Melbourne. Unless a match is fixed up with Frank Smith, it is unlikely that he will be seen at the table again this season in an exhibition game.

Owing to the Australian Amateur Championship taking place earlier than usual this season, the New South Wales championships will start early in July. Later on the metropolitan and snooker championships will be held. In all these events the holder of the title must take part in heats right through the championship.

FOOTBALL.

THE RUGBY UNION GAME.

GLEBE AND NORTH SYDNEY SHOW FORM.

The Maoris made their first appearance on the University Oval on Monday, when New South Wales proved too good, and won by 15 to 3. The New Zealand natives are a heavy and sturdy side, and in the forward division were more than a match for the home eight in weight, which gave them an advantage in scrums and rucks. However, the pace of the Blues in the loose won them the game, and their showing will give the selectors a good guide for choosing the team for the New Zealand tour at the end of the season.

All the new men in the State team shaped well. Heath, Walters, Hughes, and Wallach made their first appearance with credit, especially Hughes and Wallach, who were always prominent. In the backs, Wood (appearing in place of Walker, whose knee had been injured), Tasker, Wogan, and Dwyer played up to their well-known standard, whilst new men in Carr and Cooney justified their selections. The former showed great judgment and dash, and is an acquisition to the State team. With fine weather conditions, the Maoris should develop into a good combination.

In the early games, the Duntroon Royal Military College team maintained its unbeaten record, and, after getting used to the conditions, played really well. Donald at wing threequarter gave a very fine exhibition. He is a fast and powerful runner.

The play generally in the first-grade games on Saturday was of a brilliant nature. Glebe and North Sydney showed their best display of the year, and romped over their opponents. Eastern Suburbs and Newtown maintained their best form, and, although seriously challenged, managed to account for two powerful rivals. The former are unbeaten, whilst Newtown lost only their first competition game, and even then scored more tries than their opponents, but were beaten by more accurate goal-kicking. The meeting of these two claimants for the 1913 honours will form the chief attraction for Saturday. Another feature of last week's game was the two excellent field goals by Buckle (who put the ball over the bar from the half-distance for Glebe) and Mayo (who effected a beautiful left-foot drop from the twenty-five). These two goals, added to those by Adamson, Bolden, M'Dowell, Buckle, Mayo, and Burnicle (2), make quite a respectable total for six rounds of matches.

University had to patch up their side against Eastern Suburbs at Rushcutter Bay owing to injuries, and they appear to be having as bad a run of luck as last year, except that the injuries are not so serious. Reynolds appeared instead of Massie, and showed very fine condition and pace. The forwards were quite as good as the opposing eight, but the Eastern backs were too clever. For three-parts of the match the students seemed to have a splendid chance of being the first team to lower the colours of the leaders, but after that the tricolours were the better all-round team. Cooney and Heath again dominated the line-outs, and Allen and Rossell also showed up prominently in every move. Aspinall was the best back for University, and with Beith performed an enormous amount of work. The full-back's tackling was perfect. For the winners, Walker and Adamson again executed many clever moves, but the other backs were not quite as good in attack as formerly. Duffy was the best forward, and he is showing more dash than ever.

At Metters' Sports Ground Newtown and South Sydney had a very strenuous and even match, with the former scoring the only try of the game a moment before full-time. The defence of both teams was almost perfect, and such sound and determined tackling, backing up, and rush-stopping has seldom been witnessed. Each side attacked in turn, but could not get through, and a drawn game seemed certain. The Blues, however, kept battling away until a fine passing movement sent Foote over. The winners have developed into a fine all-round side, which imparts variety to its work, Hill, Watson, and Cooper were always prominent in the forwards, whilst Tasker and Foote shone in the backs. South Sydney secured possession oftener in the scrums, but the advantage thus gained was nullified by Newtown's fine quick-breaking work.

It has been apparent that Glebe have not displayed the form they possessed in their previous matches, but on Saturday there was nothing to cavil at in this direction. Wood set Wogan going time after time, and the representative centre put in several long, speedy runs; in one passing rush he scored after handling the ball three times. The backing-up and combination of the Reds' backs completely nonplussed Balmain, and once Wogan received the ball he generally found a hole in the defence. Buckle was a cool full-back. Grose also played excellently, and Brett and Grimsley were good. Contrary to expectations, the losers' forwards did not hold Glebe, and there seems to have been a falling-off on the past season's performances. On the other hand, Glebe are improving.

Yet another old player has found the call of the game too strong. Ward Prentice helped Western Suburbs to victory against Manly on St. Luke's Oval, and showed all his old judgment in defence, although, as was only to be expected in his first game, he was hardly as good in attack as of yore. The forwards of the winners were too lively for the Villagers, and after a keen contest between the vanguards for about 20 minutes the home eight seemed to be the better. C. W. Prentice, who is bound to make his mark in big football before long, led the forwards ably.

North Sydney established a record for the district in piling up 35 points against St. George. The goal-kicking was very good, and this served to accentuate the big total. In the first half the game was fairly even, but on changing ends the shoremen completely romped over the visiting side. It is regrettable that St. George had to patch up their team when so many players are in the district that a fourth team has had to be formed to provide games for the members unable to secure places in the three grade fifteens.

THE RUGBY LEAGUE GAME.

THE NEW ZEALAND MATCHES.

HOME SIDE'S VICTORIES.

The Northern Union representatives from New Zealand opened their Australian campaign at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Saturday under the most auspicious circumstances. The day was gloriously fine, and it was fitting that the match should have turned out to be one of the most evenly-contested on the ground. Higher class exhibitions have been witnessed from previous New Zealand Rugby Union teams, but never since the inception of the 13-a-side code has such a well-sustained, vigorous, and sporting exhibition as that given by the "All Blacks" on Saturday been seen. They were beaten, but only after a sensational game.

In the early stages of the match the alertness of Halloway and Norman in initiating superb concerted movements threatened disaster for the New Zealanders, but the determination and cleverness of the visiting forwards were big factors in keeping the home side's tally within reasonable bounds. The quick-breaking methods of the whole New Zealand pack continuously harassed the Blue backs, although the latter's cleverness was responsible for a lead of seven points at the interval. In several instances the New Zealanders, notably King, were penalised for racing round the pack whilst the ball was in the scrum, but taken right through the first half their play was particularly clean and free from those little blemishes of illegalities which sometimes mar the play of a highly-strung contest between representative teams.

The play of the Welshmen was well worth the score. Except for occasional lapses, when the backs showed signs of crumbling in the face of the aggressiveness of their opponents, their combined work was really high-class. At times the backs and forwards harmonised to such purpose that the defenders were completely baffled, and the value of the re-pass was never more amply demonstrated.

Hallett gave one of his most delightful displays at full-back. His lengthy punts worried the big New Zealand forwards, and did much toward slowing them up in the closing stages of the game. He was also very clever in manoeuvring his third line into attacking positions, and were he to adopt this style of play more frequently he would enhance his value to his side, especially when he has such dangerous scoring men to serve.

Probably the greatest thorn in New Zealand's side was Norman, though on the year's club form one was dubious of this young player's ability to rise to the occasion. However, his brilliant play made victory possible for New South Wales. There was method in everything he did, whilst his generalship led up to Burge's try. He has apparently come back to his form of last season.

Where the New South Wales pack excelled was in the scrummages, and they certainly had a big pull over the opposition six in gaining possession. However, in the rushes and dribbles they were inferior to the Black six, though Courtney shone out in the latter department. On two occasions in the second half he was seen to flash out from a ruck of opponents and give exhibitions that would have done credit to a soccer exponent.

In the second half the New Zealand forwards obtained a fair share of the ball, and the visiting half-backs opened out the game in splendid style. On several occasions Ifwerson and Manning came into prominence, and showed both cleverness and speed. Soon after the interval Manning put in a magnificent sprint from about midfield, and though at one stage of his journey goalwards he seemed to be hopelessly pocketed, he gracefully manoeuvred towards the corner and outpaced the defence. It was a brilliant effort.

Shadbolt, the big New Zealand forward, also made a remarkably fine run which brought his side points. He sprinted along touch and grounded at the corner after being partially tackled by Halloway, who came at him fast from across field. It was a gallant effort on the part of the diminutive Eastern Suburbs half-back, but was just too late.

For New South Wales Devereux did some capital work, using his speed to advantage. He was unfortunate in colliding forcibly with an opponent, and the impact considerably militated against his play afterwards. Splendidly though S. Deane played, his handling of the ball in the second half was faulty, three or four passes being dropped by him, and some of these should have provided scores. The rest of his football was very fine. He ran strongly; his kicking was good, and he tackled with all his old effect. Frawley and Broomham were sound on the wings, though the ball did not go the former's way too frequently.

The sodden state of the ground favoured the New Zealanders for the return game on Monday, but the New South Wales team rose to the occasion, and won brilliantly. The New Zealanders had to take the field minus Bradley and Manning, who performed so well on Saturday. W. J. Mitchell was played at full-back, and Duvall and Proebstel appeared in the three-quarter line, with Kelly; and Jackson took Reke's place behind the scrummage, the latter playing five-eighths. The personnel of the New South Wales team was the same as in the first match, with the exception that H. H. Messenger was brought into the three-quarter line, and Deane was moved up to the stand-off half position, in place of Ray Norman, who was injured on Saturday.

Though the ground was treacherous and the ball heavy and greasy, the home side made so little of these disadvantageous conditions that from the moment of the kick-off they became brilliantly aggressive, and opened up the game with delightful combined passing bouts, which were executed with a rapidity such as characterised some of their Saturday's displays. And their victory of 31 points to 12 was well merited.

The dribbling and combined work of the forwards were magnificent, and, after obtaining a firm grip of the game in its early stages, they became complete masters of the scrummages, and dominated the "loose" play generally. Pearce gained possession in the scrums with great regularity, but Cann and the forwards directly in front of him varied their play at times to great purpose, and, instead of kicking to Halloway in the orthodox fashion, came away from the pack with ball at toe. It was great to see Courtney, Sullivan, Cann, McCue, Burge, and Pearce in these combined rushes. Messenger's captaincy was another factor which helped to make victory so pronounced for the Blues.

Hallett at full-back gave another superb display. Once only did he fail to clear, and on that occasion it was owing to miskicking the greasy ball. He displayed good judgment with his ground kicks and straight running. The home three-quarters played finely, with perhaps Frawley a little ahead of the others. Two of the three tries scored by him were particularly meritorious. Deane and Halloway were a happy combination, their passing being very clean and wonderfully accurate for such wet weather.

Mitchell, New Zealand's full-back, was good and bad in turn, but he had a tremendous amount of work to do. The three-quarters were not nearly so conspicuous as in Saturday's game. Duvall was the soundest of the lot.

The visitors were weak at half-back, Reke and Jackson being inferior to Manning and Reke. The latter is not physically fitted for such a strenuous post.

The forwards were outplayed in every department, and had a gruelling time right through, though they gamely waged the contest to the end.

SATURDAY, JUNE 14.

First Grade.

Newtown v Glebe, Wentworth Park, 3.15; Western Suburbs v Annandale, Pratten Park, 3.15; South Sydney v Eastern Suburbs, Cricket Ground, 3.15; North Sydney v Balmain, Birchgrove Oval, 3.15.

THE ASSOCIATION GAME.

SOME INTERESTING GAMES.

As a result of Saturday's games the first League wears a very open aspect, with every competing club a possible premiership winner, and although Balmain have jumped out in front in the First Reserve League, the signs are that interesting games will be prevalent in that competition. Annandale's splendid win, though not thought impossible, came as a pleasurable surprise, whilst the Glebe were always prominent at Clyde, and so far as play went Newtown did not suffer appreciably by comparison with Sydney. Balmain's walk-over against West Sydney was as unexpected it was emphatic, and although the Police were expected to win, it was anticipated that a more even struggle would be recorded. The game at Lyne Park possessed those elements of equality, expectation, and exhibition which are the features of the code. In the lower Leagues Scottish Rifles maintained the standard they have already attained, Rennie and Glenday being to the fore, and except the fixture at Easton Park all other teams were thoroughly tried out ere the victorious side was evolved.

Sydney were deprived of a possible victory at Wentworth Oval, as the referee, Mr. G. H. Harget, stopped play with seven minutes to go on account of failing light. This experience should be an object-lesson in punctuality, for the competing teams in particular, and all teams in general. Quite eight minutes were lost between the early and late fixtures owing to dilatoriness on the part of the contestants in the latter game, and, besides the non-appreciated possibility of finishing an important match in waning light, it behoves the association to act firmly in all these cases, as its interest is of greater paramountcy, insofar as the acquisition of enclosed playing areas is concerned.

Both goalkeepers were effective, but in the back division Sydney outshone Newtown, whose last line of defence suffered considerably by comparison with the sterling work of Kirkpatrick and Hughes, although when Dennis found his game in the concluding half-hour he was as effective as either. Mill, Davies, and Rigby were more reliable than Newton, Carmichael, and Bywater, and of the sextet perhaps Rigby stood out, though Mill again played finely, but was fortunate that the disposition of the Newtown attack made many free kicks. Carmichael performed ably for his side, which was placed at a disadvantage through Jennings sustaining an injury at work which prevented him playing.

The Sydney forwards kept their places better than their opponents' attack, but the best player was Blake, whose speed, agility, and accurate placing stamp him as being a winger of the class of Grogan and Acres. Gallagher shaped better than usual, and showed some neat footwork, but a certain timidity, for which he can hardly be blamed, has yet to be overcome. Masters, though good, was inclined to transgress the laws, and with M'Anish and Bruce, kept Hughes and Kirkpatrick on the qui vive, whilst Herron and Willingham, also Burroughes (when he crossed instead of hanging on) were conspicuous in a game brimful of interest.

Annandale took a firm grip of their game against Balmain from the kick off, and were never headed, a feature of their win being the splendid defensive qualities exhibited by Mertus and Hillyard and the all-round qualities of Newson. Carroll strikingly demonstrated that his sun has not set, and he had an able lieutenant in Tawle. Butcher's goal was a gem. Balmain were minus Grogan, and suffered considerably on account of inferior shooting, Pryde being the principal offender. Some experts think that Balmain have retrogressed, but no exceptionally decisive victory has been recorded at their expense. Perhaps the comparative increase of ability in the skill of their opponents has been overlooked, and a disturbing factor is the constant changing of the team, the defence being altered each week, which does not tend to perfect combination.

Canterbury's run of success should be taken to heart by all selection committees. Latta sustained a serious injury, which he peculiarly inflicted on himself, and knowing his prowess and chances of an interstate game consequent thereon, he is being sympathised with all round. It has been stated that Moore has deteriorated, which, if it were a fact, does not imply a high standard of proficiency amongst present-day exponents. For years Moore was a class in himself, and was to the code what Messenger is to the Rugby League game, and it speaks volumes for his ability that for eleven years (his first regular games as a senior player were with the famous 1902 Rovers' eleven, though he played in the first grade final with Pyrmont Rangers (winners in 1901), he has been the foremost figure on the playing side of the code. As an all-rounder his ability could not be surpassed anywhere, and his superiors, if any amongst native-born talent have been few. Like many of our famous cricketers, Moore is one of a quartet of brothers who were amongst the best in their time, one K. D. (now deceased) being a brilliant performer for the erstwhile champion Pyrmont Rangers' team.

Glebe experienced their usual share of ill-luck. At Clyde, when they headed Granville for the major part of the game, Hall performing brilliantly, with Storey as alert as ever, Granville apparently have found the right spot for Watkins (he netted two goals), and the fallacy of regarding Doherty as a back number has probably been dispelled. Hilder was again good, and Hoffmann, Peaty, and Mobbs performed meritoriously.

The meeting of the leaders in the First Reserve League was expected to provide something brilliant, but Balmain were always masters of West Sydney, their attacking quintet displaying splendid form, a fine acquaintance with combination, and ability as marksmen. Indeed, on Saturday's form there are not five better forwards in the metropolis. Thompson played a fine back game, and Law, Howie, and Ferrier are a better trio than their Rawson Cup confreres. O'Brien played a hard game for West Sydney, likewise A. Quill and A. H. Quill; Lambert was most effective. A tendency to roughness marred the side's display in the closing stages, and the club would do well to check boisterous proclivities of some of its supporters.

The Police were never headed by Canterbury, and will surely have a say in the final disposition of the trophies, but Burns' Club and Northern Suburbs had strong opposition ere they reached the winning-post. A splendid game—scoreless—was played at Lyne Park between Royal Navy and Y.M.C.A., and, while a good game is always expected from, and is a feature of, the former, the improved form of Y.M.C.A. is a cause for gratification.

Scottish Rifles still display a winning vein—a fact partly attributable to a fine half-line.

For the second year in succession Northern Suburbs attained second round Gardiner Cup honours, this time at the expense of Helensburgh, whose seventh try ended exactly as did their first many years ago, when Minmi administered a similar defeat. Laird played a splendid wing game, and practically won the match by a piece of fine play. Layton was in splendid form, and with exponents of the calibre of the Jones Brothers either side of him was able to impress the spectators at Epping with his ability. The South Coast team suffered from the want of practice together, but for all that Gilmore, Craig, Neate, Stewart, and Shepton performed creditably.

FIXTURES.

SATURDAY, June 14.

FIRST LEAGUE.

Sydney v Granville; Newtown v Canterbury; Annandale v Northern Suburbs, which complete the first round.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

PADDINGTON AND SYDNEY LEADING.

Saturday's series of games caused a shuffling of the clubs' positions on the competition list. Paddington and Sydney provided a strenuous and exciting contest at the Australian Football Ground. Though Paddington played the better all-round, they were materially helped towards victory by the suicidal policy of several Sydney players, who throughout the game played the man in preference to the ball. In a few instances the Paddingtonians retaliated, and once during the final quarters, as darkness was enveloping the field, the play was hung up while the field umpire restored order among what seemed a mass of struggling players. The field umpire—L. Davidson—carried out his duties in a praiseworthy manner, and penalised each act of unfair play that came under his notice.

There were many brilliant pieces of play shown individually and collectively during the match, but two players stood out from their fellows—Vincent (Sydney) and Hanrahan (Paddington)—by their solid brilliance. The latter, who filled the responsible position of full-back, made but few mistakes throughout a hard game, in which he was under severe pressure on several occasions. Once he erred in attempting a short foot-pass to the half-back, which, intercepted by a Sydney player, cost his side one point, a behind being scored through the error. The high marking of Dunbar and Hyett (Sydney), and Parr and Chapman (Paddington), was exceedingly good; while the general play of Gough, Vockler, Wise, Mahony, Beaver, Morgan, and Gorman, for Paddington, and Conn, A. Barry, McCullagh, O'Grady, and Lynch for Sydney, was excellent.

With a weak team afield East Sydney went under to Balmain, who show great improvement each game they play. Though as a whole the winners played splendidly, Ratcliffe was their bright star, and he capped a fine performance by notching no fewer than seven goals. Groves, the ex Sydney and South Sydney forward, demonstrated that his head and foot have not lost their cunning by running a close second to Ratcliffe with six goals. M'Inerney and Delaney, after being incapacitated for several weeks, reappeared for East Sydney, but neither was fit to do himself justice. Balmain, who have the bye on Saturday, will visit Duntroon and play the Military College.

South Sydney put up their best performance of the season on Saturday, when they won handsomely from erratic North Sydney. The solid training that has been part of the Southerners' equipment since the season's active operations began is now standing to them, and apart from their football skill they are able to see out a fast gruelling game. With a strong reserve list of players, they are likely to prove a formidable side to all opponents between this and the League semi-final games, and should they succeed in winning their way into the final games of the season it will be but meet recompense for their enthusiasm and strict attention to details, which, after all, are very necessary parts to football successes.

The results of Monday's games caused Paddington to be dethroned from their short-lived position as leaders in the competition. Their defeat by South Sydney, which was not wholly unexpected, leaves them and Sydney as joint leaders. By beating Balmain, Newtown demonstrated that they are very much in the running. The district principle may be said to have won its way at the first time of asking, and the second round of matches which starts on Saturday, bids fair to prove the most interesting that has taken place under the League's regime.

The football shown by the Northern Districts and Paddington second grade teams in the early game on Saturday at the Australian Football Ground was of a good standard. During next month a strong second grade combination from South Australia will visit Sydney to meet a local combination. The date of the match—July 12—has been given over by the League to the Second Grade Association, and all League games will be postponed on that date.

The South Australian team has been selected from the B teams of Norwood, Port Adelaide, Sturt, West Adelaide, North Adelaide, West Torrens, and South Adelaide clubs, and consists of S. James, P. Crowley, B. Offe, A. Benda, L. Wisdom, S. Creeseman, B. Nash, W. McAuliffer, G. Battye, F. Harwood, J. Middleton, P. Rowan, S. Fisher, H. Coates, M. Sims, P. Baulderstone, A. Miller, R. Oatley, H. Thomas, C. Ryan, Marshall, Goodyer, and Richardson.

The Arish Park Club, who intended visiting Sydney early in the season, will probably play Sydney an early game to the interstate second-grade fixture. The Sydney Club, who are receiving the visitors, have made application to the League for permission to play the fixture as mentioned, and such seems certain to be given.

The competition in connection with the public schools was commenced on Friday. Thirty-three schools are playing the game this season, which is an advance on last season. A competition table will be published from time to time, by the schools' committee of the P.S.A.A.A. in the columns of the "Herald."

As was generally anticipated, New South Wales won from Queensland at Brisbane on Saturday in the first interstate game of the season; but only after an excellent contest, in which the winning margin was not a very large one. Queensland form, as we know it in Sydney, is below that of the mother State, but on occasions—notably in 1907—the Northerners have risen to the occasion. Depending largely upon migratory players, Queensland necessarily shows in and out form. The return match with New South Wales will take place in Sydney in August.

ATHLETICS.

LONG DISTANCE SEASON.

OPEN AND CLUB RACES.

Cross-country and long-distance runners received official intimation last week that on August 23 the 10 miles championship of New South Wales will be conducted at Victoria Park Racecourse, and that Randwick Racecourse has again been obtained for the five miles cross-country championship, which will be decided a fortnight later. The venue of each of these meetings is the same as that of last year, and they have in the past given satisfaction to the competitors. The cross-country championship will be held over the steeplechase track, and is one of the most admirable courses possible to obtain for such an event. These two races will bring the long-distance season to a conclusion, but as the open winter events have only recently commenced, there will be many items for consideration before the championships, and, as the latter have been fixed for much later than last year, the arrangement of dates will permit of more handicap road races being promoted. Club members will also have a greater amount of time at their disposal to thoroughly prepare for the more important fixtures, and there is every prospect of a bright season. The fields in club events already decided, have been very fair, and this may be an indication that the open races will receive increased support, as there is need for ample improvement upon last year' when there was such a great falling-off in nominations. In the A grade of the cross-country championship the field was the smallest on record, and the same state of affairs existed in the 10 miles championship. Yet, with the new men who are continually entering the ranks of amateur athletics each year, this State should certainly display greater progress in long-distance running, for, when compared with Victoria, this section is lamentably weak.

Runners associated with the city clubs have been provided with excellent facilities for training at the Sydney Sports Ground on three nights each week during the winter, but the response has not been so gratifying as expected. As the open racing starts this deficiency may be rectified, and the attendance should improve. The South Sydney Harriers are sending a team to Brisbane for the cross-country championship of Queensland, to be held on August 2, and the distance members are evincing a more earnest desire to enter into the sport of cross-country running this year. Under the guidance of the club's captain, R. J. Fitzsimmons, a very satisfactory number are participating in the club runs, but, while the East Sydney and Redfern Clubs are catering well for members, the attendance at training quarters is not so large as desired. The Botany Harriers are recognised as specialists in long-distance racing, and their members are showing well in training, but it does not appear that the "royal blues" will be so formidable this season, as some of the leaders of the club have intimated their intention of retiring, and W. O'Reilly, who has generally occupied a place in the winning team, has decided to seek new fields by associating himself with South Sydney. These circumstances will certainly weaken the Botany Club, and will offer other bodies an opportunity to strive for supremacy over the holders of the title.

One feature that for the first time since 1909 will not figure amongst the winter fixtures is the "Marathon." The Y.M.C.A. promoted the opening race in Sydney four years ago, and since then the Newtown Harriers have annually organised the long run over 26 miles 385 yards; but changes in the membership of that club and the weakened state of the finances have prompted the Newtown body to refrain from undertaking the venture this year. It is not a regrettable feature that the "Marathon" will not be conducted, for the climate of this country is not suitable for such lengthy events, and, while the race itself may be decided in the middle of winter, it requires an extended preparation, and often under weather conditions totally unsuitable for training over long distances. The race is also a heavy tax upon the funds of the promoting body, for it is essential that it should be held over a road course, and there is no financial return for the labour involved. While the "Marathon" is not an event calculated to injure the competitors, much shorter races will produce all the necessary exhibitions of perseverance and stamina. The longest race this season will be the Parramatta to Sydney road handicap, the distance of which is 15 miles, and this event will be decided on August 9.

Members of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association were engaged at Manly on Saturday. The principal event was the 880 yards open handicap, and this brought out a field of 24, the three back-markers being the most noticeable absentees. Scratch man A. F. Thorpe, with T. J. Wood and F. Flowers, were expected to show to advantage, but the first-mentioned having encountered a slight mishap was unable to compete, and the other two failed to present an appearance. It was a most interesting race, and the finish was close and exciting. R. A. Anson, on the limit (60 yards) made the running during the earlier stages, and led from B. M'Carthy, J. Dalgleish, and A. K. Curtis at the commencement of the concluding lap. The pace set by the front men could not be retained, and S. G. M'Leland, with the St. Patrick's Day half-mile winner, A. W. Williamson, attempted to break from the field, but L. Buhl and J. Dalgleish did not permit them to secure too great an advantage, although they could not close the gap. In a splendid race to the tape M'Leland (40 yards) won by less than a yard from Williamson (20 yards) in 2m [illegible]s, with Buhl (25 yards), who finished strongly, three yards away.

The mile handicap for members of the Sydney Walkers' Club was another keenly-contested event. There were 15 starters, and the first man despatched was J. E. O'Dwyer (55s), who with S. Carter maintained the lead for nearly three laps. H. Campbell (40s) went to the front at the bell, with A. W. Pickard (15s) and S. Sheaves (20s) nearest in order. The leading trio were not afterwards displaced, and Campbell won by 10 yards in 7m 39½s, with Sheaves 15 yards in the rear of Pickard. It was a noticeable feature that the handicapper had considerably reduced the starts allotted, and even with the shorter allowance the virtual scratch man failed to occupy a position. For a lengthy period this has caused walking enthusiasts much trouble, and the new club has at last made an advisable step by granting the scratch men a possible chance of getting in the vicinity of the placed men. The work of the heel and toe men on Saturday gave evidence of marked improvement. The walking was very fair, and the officials were not called upon to disqualify any of the competitors, only one being upon the point of lifting, but he retired before action was necessary. It is generally recognised that the walkers in Sydney adhere to the rules in this respect, and the reason that they are not so apt to lift is that the judges of walking are strict in the duties allotted them—a condition which is not always observed in other States. It is to the competitors' advantage to walk fairly, especially men who show a likelihood of having a chance of selection for Australasian championships or other interstate meetings where the officials are not all from the one centre, and another feature is that the correct actions of the champions and other back-markers will be adopted by the young walkers.

G. H. Patching, who won the 100 Yards Championship of England last year, and also occupied places in the 220 and 440 yards events, was defeated in the 100 Yards Championship of South Africa, held at Johannesburg last month, by R. Povey, of Capetown, in 10s—1-5th of a second slower than Patching's time in the English race. He, however, made amends by reversing the positions in the 220 yards championship, which he won from Povey in 22s, creating a new South African record, and in the 440 yards retained his title by leading throughout, gaining a ten yards victory, in 51s. At the same meeting C. W. Gitsham, the second man to finish in the Olympic Marathon at Stockholm, annexed the 4 miles championship in 21m 49 4-5s, and, by winning the 10 miles championship in 56m 23 1-5s, created a new record for South Africa. In two other events the existing figures were beaten; J. Kynock, holder of the title, threw the 16lb hammer 129ft 11½in, and in the 2 miles steeplechase J. A. Victor, another of last year's winners, covered the distance in 11m 25s.

The amateur athletic event for Saturday will be the third annual 5 miles novice cross-country championship. This race will be conducted by the East Sydney Club at Rose Bay, starting from Lyne Park at 3 p.m. The event generally commands a good nomination, and Saturday's list is quite equal to its predecessors. The knowledge that no athlete is eligible who has won a prize in an open race of two miles or further brings confidence to the youthful distance runner by the fact that he will not be opposed by the front rank of cross-country exponents. In addition to the championship a teams' race will be conducted—the first four of a club to count—under the same conditions as the 5 and 10 miles championships of the State, thus the club securing the fewest number of points with the first four men will be declared the winners. A sealed handicap in conjunction with the event is another good feature, and in the matter of prizes the novices are specially well provided for.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES OF 1916.

The International Committee of the Olympic Games met at Lausanne on May 7 for its 25th session, under the presidency of Baron Coubertin. The proceedings were not open to the public. The Duke of Somerset was elected to represent England on the committee in lieu of Lord Desborough, resigned. In view of the disqualification of the American athlete, James Thorpe, it was decided to make an alteration in the honours list of the nations which took part in the fifth Olympic Games at Stockholm in 1912 by eliminating Thorpe's points. A motion was then adopted for the regulation of the Olympic Congress in Paris in June, 1914, for the 20th anniversary of the re-establishment of the Olympic Games.

HOCKEY.

ALTERATION OF RULES.

By the last English mail came the result of the annual meeting of the International Hockey Board. The meeting must have been an important one, as several alterations of the rules were made, of which the most important is the addition to rule 9. The members present were: Messrs. T. Burman (chairman), B. Fletcher and P. Collins (hon. secretary and treasurer of the Hockey Association); W. T. Graham and H. L. Murphy, of the Irish Hockey Union; F. M. Hannay and J. B. Hamilton, of the Scottish Hockey Association; and J. R. Williams and Wynne Reece, of the Welsh Hockey Association.

It was decided to alter rule 9, so that the word "alternately" be substituted for "alternatively." The sentence referring to the bully-off will therefore read: "To bully the ball, each player shall strike first the ground on his own side of the ball, and then his opponent's stick three times alternately; after which one of these two players must strike the ball before it is in general play."

Rule 16 was altered, in line 17, the words "stick of the attacker or" being inserted. The sentence in the penalty bully rule now reads: "If the ball goes over the goal line between the goal posts off the stick of the attacker, or stick or person of the offender, a penalty goal shall be awarded to the attacking team."

The second paragraphs of rules 19 and 20 were altered, so that the second sentence in each now reads: "A player taking a corner hit cannot participate in the game again until the ball has been touched or hit by another player."

The proposal of the Southern Counties Hockey Association that a rule be framed to deal with the dangerous practice of hitting the ball in the air, especially with the reversed stick, was not passed.

A letter was read from the New Zealand Hockey Association, enclosing suggestions for improvements in the laws of hockey recommended by the association for the consideration of the International Board. They were the outcome of appeals the association had to consider, or points where umpires differed as to interpretation, and the New Zealand Association considered that the adoption of these alterations would improve the game. The International Board accepted the addition to rule 9 of the words "but shall not stand within three yards of the players participating in the bully." This will prevent the crowding of players round the bully.

The board also accepted the idea suggested in the proposed alteration of the second sentence of rule 17, so that it commenced with the words: "All other players must be in the field of play, inside the five yards line, which they may cross immediately the ball leaves the hand of the roller-in." At present a number of players consider that if they are over the side line outside the field of play, they are complying with the rule. The board propose altering the wording slightly.

MOTORING.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AUSTRALIA.

Some 200 children of the Randwick Asylum were taken for a short suburban motor run on Saturday afternoon by the club members, and, subsequently, were entertained to tea in Centennial Park. This is an annual outing, which is greatly looked forward to by the youngsters and, if their happy faces can be taken as any criterion, their last excursion was most thoroughly enjoyed. The following members kindly placed their cars at the disposal of the roads and tours committee for the afternoon:—Messrs. O. W. Ibels, A. J. Christie, Chas. Nott, C. O. Sherwood, Alick McNeill, Paul Meyer, Aubrey Halloran, J. T. M'Carthy, A. P. Innes, Boyd Edkins, J. G. Pritchard, G. F. Hill, J. H. Harris, Lebbeus Hordern, Arthur Rickard, A. Turner, A. Douzans, L. W. Pye, J. N. Grace, and R. J. McGregor.

The speed-judging contest, to be held this month, is a distinct departure from the more usual hill-climbing, economy, and reliability contests. It is promoted with a view to test a driver's judgment in negotiating a measured distance at an allotted average speed. Competitors will not be made familiar with the route to be followed until a few minutes before starting in the event, and any time-pieces or speedometers must be disconnected or obscured. The contest last year, which was won by Mr. H. Knight Eaton, was distinctly popular among the members, and it is expected that a large number of entries will be attracted on this occasion.

Mr. A. L. Harden, a member of the Automobile Club of Victoria, is at present spending a short holiday in this State.

MOTOR YACHT CLUB OF N.S.W.

Close as the finish of the ocean race for the Harvey Cup undoubtedly was, it was eclipsed on Saturday when Rooganah, Mr. Alvin Taylor's 48ft cruiser, the scratch boat, annexed the trophy presented by Messrs. Frank Saunders and W. B. Small, for a handicap deep sea race, from the club waters to the basin, Broken Bay, a distance of 25 miles. Six boats started out of seven entries, and four finished within a minute of each other.

There was a following sea until Barranjoey was reached, where Mr. Neil Harvey's Duzgo (hdcap 10m), and Rooganah, making a long stern chase of it, appeared to gain a distinct advantage over the leading boats by standing in dangerously close to the breakers. Entering the smooth water, 1½ mile from the finish, Mr. Stewart Black's Koala (handicap 36m), was leading, with Mr. G. E. S. Sandeman's Corinna (handicap 28m), a close second Duzgo and Rooganah were coming up at a great pace, while Mr. W. B. Small's Margyne brought up the rear at comfortable speed. At Little Mackrell Beach it was anybody's race. When only about a hundred yards from the post, Rooganah took the lead. Duzgo passing first and, Corinna and then Koala, finished second. Corinna and Koala finished in the order named, while Margyne was some minutes behind, her owner taking matters easily.

Following are the official times:—

Duzgo, Mr. Neil Harvey (handicap 10m), time 2h 55m 30s	2
Corinna, Mr. G. E. S. Sandeman (handicap 18m), time 3h 11m	3
Koala, Mr. Stewart Black (handicap 36m), time, 3h 22m 30s	4
Margyne, Mr. W. B. Small (handicap 25m), time 3h 40m	5
Ituri, Mr. Frank Saunders (handicap 7m), started late, time 3h 31m	6

An enjoyable week-end was spent fishing and cruising in the Hawkesbury reaches. On Monday Mr. Dempster's Petrel, Duzgo, and Rooganah attempted to return, but when some distance out they put back for shelter, in company with some North Coasters, on account of the heavy and dangerous sea.

The race for the speed pennant and championship of Sydney Harbour, will be held on Saturday, over a course from the club waters, Rose Bay, round both buoys at Manly, finishing at the starting line. In event of rough weather the boats will round the Sow and Pigs white light, race across to and around the South Reef red light, and around the pile light to the starter's boat in Rose Bay. On this course there will be two laps to each heat, and in both cases the turns will be made on the starboard hand. Three heats will be run, and the winner will secure two unless each boat secures a heat, when an additional heat will be contested. The official entries are as follow:—Meteor II., Mr. C. H. Relph, racing No. 1; N.S.W., Messrs. W. Charles Moseley and A. G. James, No. 2; Peerless, Mr. Reg. Holmes, No. 3. The first heat will be started at 3hrs. 10min. o'clock, the second at 3rs. 50min. o'clock, and the third at 4hrs. 30min. o'clock, regardless of absentees.

A heat will start at the drop of the fourth red flag and gun fire from the starter's boat, and should the rough weather course be adopted, two code flags will be hoisted over the starters' flag. Skippers of pleasure craft are requested to anchor on the western side of the course.

A MISNOMER.

For some unknown reason the terms "single-seater" and "two-seater" have been generally applied in Australia to automobiles, the passenger-carrying capacity of which is never less than two in the first instance, and anything from four to seven in the latter. The Australian terms are useless and misleading, and are not in use in any other part of the automobile world. With the advent of the cyclecar, which, in many models, is actually fitted with a single-seater body, i.e., a seat made to accommodate one passenger only, it is essential that these inaccurate terms should be abandoned, and the usual expressions of two, three, five, or seven-"passenger" cars—the appellation common to America and Europe—substituted.

As an example of how utterly misleading these local terms are, the story of a dealer who cabled for a "two-seater" car, meaning an automobile with front and back seats, and received a car fitted with a body to carry two passengers, and, moreover, had to bear the brunt of his mistake, is ample evidence. A similar instance recently occurred in New Zealand, where an agent, evidently afraid to use the word "tonneau," wired for a car, having a "removable back seat." He unpacked, naturally, a car having the back seat cushion and its supports removable. What he really wanted was a car with a "detachable tonneau," a type of construction which has found great favour in the sheep country of the South Island, N.Z. By this means, the rear half of the chassis may be used on occasions for the transportation of bulky goods.

Although of widely divergent origin, names have been found for every part of the automobile, and the new situations which its adoption has created. In view of ultimate universal employment of the internal combustion engine for road transport, failing, of course, the appearance of Mr. Edison's long-promised battery, a motorist who makes common use of international automobile phraseology cannot be truly described as being a pedant. It is much easier to call a spade a spade than an agricultural implement; and then it is certain not to be mistaken for a hay-fork.

MOTOR CYCLING.

CLUB NOTES.

MOTOR CYCLE CLUB.

Although the Open Reliability Trial, promoted by the Great Northern M.C. Club, under the auspices of the A.C.A., had to be abandoned owing to the bad weather, Messrs. J. C. Halliday, A. Frazer, F. Delandro, A. Waggstall, F. Facey, A. Caldwell, V. Pearce, C. Glynn, and J. A. Fair, the members who journeyed to Newcastle to represent the club in the contest, nevertheless had a most enjoyable trip. During their short stay they were the guests of the Great Northern Club, and on Sunday a social run, in which fully 25 members took part, was held to Catherine Hill Bay in honour of the visitors. The trial may possibly be held on June 23.

A combined tour and competition has been arranged for Saturday, June 21. Members will meet at the corner of George and Harris streets at 2.30 o'clock on that date. Entries for the event positively close at the club meeting, June 19. Already 23 entries have been received by the hon. secretary, Mr. J. A. Fair.

A committee meeting will be held at the Sports Club to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, to draw up the conditions governing the 4th annual interstate reliability trial. Some new features will be introduced this year, and it is intended to hold a minor competition during each day's run. Mr. Fair states that in all probability the following controls will be agreed upon:—First day, Goulburn; second day, Gundagai; third day, Wangaratta; fourth day, Melbourne. It is anticipated that the entries will eclipse all previous records.

A party of club members, who undertook a holiday tour down the South Coast, were forced to abandon their trip owing to the bad weather, and had to return by train.

Tickets are now available for the second annual ball, which takes place on July 30.

KOOKABURRA CLUB.

Leaving Sydney on Saturday afternoon, a party of 18 members journeyed down the South Coast for a three-day holiday tour. As far as Wollongong, the venue of the first day's run, the roads via Tom Ugly's Point and upper road to Bulli Pass, were as bad as could possibly be imagined. In fact, there was no pleasure in riding over the road. The top-dressing had been washed off by the recent rains, leaving the foundations bare, while the culverts were so bad in places that the exhaust boxes of several machines struck the ground. Punctures, too, were frequent. On the second day's run to Bowral, Messrs. Allen and Kingsmill missed the road and arrived at Nowra, finally reaching their destination via Cambewarra and Kangaroo Valley. The mountains were crossed in the dark, and Mr. Allen was in continual difficulties with his belt which, when not breaking, was slipping. Mr. Biden also arrived late, his back cover having "blown-out," destroying the tube. He was the rear file. Berry mountain, a climb five miles long, was in a bad state, especially at the corners, which had been strewn with loose metal, a practice of the shires which is to be depreciated. The members enjoyed a novel experience on Monday morning, engaging in a snowball fight on the top of the Jib at Bowral. Later in the afternoon they entrained for Sydney, special accommodation being provided for their machines.

A speed-judging contest will be held on Saturday, when members, who will meet at the junction of Gordon and Longueville roads at 2.30 o'clock, will be asked to ride half a mile at a balloted speed.

A run to Galston, via Hornsby Gully, has been arranged for Sunday. Members will meet at the corner of Gordon and Longueville roads at 10 a.m.

CANBERRA CLUB.

A hill climb, open to all riders affiliated with the Auto Cycle Association, will be held on the Artillery Hill, National Park, on Saturday. The entries, which closed yesterday, include the following:—Messrs. J. Wilson (3½-h.p. Victa), R. Murray (5-h.p. Victa), A. Robinson (3½ Triumph), E. Rigg (3½ Triumph), E. Thomson (3½ L.M.C.), A. Smith (6-h.p. Speedwell), A. Zink (3½ Speedwell), A. Levi (3½ Metro), M. Farman (5-h.p. Jap), L. V. Palmer (5-h.p. Roma), S. Sinclair (3½-h.p. Rex), C. Cavey (3½-h.p. Jap), J. D. Pateman (3½-h.p. L.M.C.), C. Ogden (2¾-h.p. Minerva), F. Ferris (3½-h.p. Singer), A. Sales (3½-h.p. Triumph), E. Meller (5/6-h.p. Iris Jap), E. Bunting (2½-h.p. Sarolea), J. Meller (3½-h.p. Precision), S. C. Gosney (3½-h.p. Premier), A. Miller (3½-h.p. Rover).

POLO.

THE COUNTRY CARNIVALS.

YERONG CREEK.

A successful tournament was held on Saturday at Yerong Creek, which is situated in a prosperous district between Wagga and Albury. Four teams competed—Yerong, The Rock, Henty, and Big Springs. Those familiar with the locality will agree that there is no better nursery ground in the State calculated to produce a good stamp of the polo player than that surrounding the township where last Saturday's games were played. Mr. G. F. Plunkett, hon. secretary, and Mr. G. F. Hutchings, president, of the Yerong Club, assisted by other local enthusiasts, made excellent provision for the enjoyment of the teams and numerous visitors from the various centres, who are noted for their delight in a good gallop at all times, whether in the hunting field, on the racecourse, or polo ground.

Big Springs and Yerong were the first teams to take the field, the personnel being:—Big Springs: Mr. G. P. Wilson (captain), Mr. G. Paterson, Mr. E. H. Wilson, Mr. S. Jackson, and Mr. C. McMicking; Yerong: Mr. G. F. Plunkett (captain), Mr. S. Kelly, Mr. J. Kelly and Mr. G. Kelly. Mr. R. Armstrong, however, played up to the fourth period. Only six periods of eight minutes were played, but as there was no score at the final bell play was continued, and the Yerong captain goaled and won the match for his side. The game was a most exciting one, and thoroughly enjoyed by the spectators. It was late (4.30) when the second match was commenced between Henty and The Rock, which was won after a good game by the latter by 3 goals to 2. The teams were:—Henty: Mr. K. McDonald (captain), Mr. T. Montague, Mr. F. Watts, and Mr. A. Bunyan; The Rock: Mr. W. West (captain), Mr. J. Cox, Mr. J. Montague, and Mr. A. Montague.

GLEN INNES AND HARDEN.

Glen Innes club's carnival was set down to commence yesterday, and a report of the first day's play may reach us in time for our late sporting columns of this issue. The teams entered are:—Glen, Inverell, Goondiwindi A and B, Ohio, and Moree.

The festivities at Harden will open to-day; and the Narromine team which showed such good form and won the cup final, at Narrandera, should prevail again; although the opposition is somewhat stronger. If the luck of the game is in favour of the Sydney club's representatives, Mr. C. J. Withycombe (captain, back), Mr. K. G. Richards (1), Mr. E. W. Garvan (2), and Mr. A. W. Turnbull (3), they will not be easily "hustled" out of their games; but they have not had all the practice necessary for team combination. The Narrandera side is a good one, including Mr. A. W. Austin (captain, back), Mr. S. S. Robertson (1), Mr. A. W. Laxton (2), and Mr. H. E. Bullivant (3). The team, which was beaten by one goal at Narrandera by Narromine, has been altered, Mr. Laxton playing No. 2 instead of Dr. Lethbridge.

It was calculated that 120 ponies would be played at the Harden carnival; and special accommodation was prepared for a large number in the racecourse stalls. The following teams are engaged:—Harden A and B, Kalangan (Harden), Sydney, Narromine, Narrandera, Grenfell, and Cooma.

NOTES.

The great struggle for supremacy between England and America was to commence yesterday, that is, last night, according to Australian time. The feeling in America, according to the last news to hand, had undergone no change regarding the result, the local champions being considered invincible. His Majesty, the King, repeated his act of two years ago, and received the England team to wish them good luck.

The weather, so far as the Sydney club is concerned, has again interfered with the game, and will further retard the preparation of the Kensington ground for the Countess of Dudley Cup Carnival. Practice was impossible yesterday, and it is doubtful if the ground will be fit to play upon this week.

CRICKET.

THE AUSTRALIANS ON TOUR.

The Australian cricketers, who left Sydney last month, are performing splendidly in their one-day matches, though from the smallness of the totals scored against them, and their high scoring, it would appear that their opponents in British Columbia are not adepts at the game.

In the match at Suva, Ratu Pope, who will be remembered by Australians as being a member of the Fijian team which toured these parts some years ago, was the best bowler on the side, taking five wickets for 39, in a total of 220. P. S. Arnott (63 retired) and H. L. Collins (66 not out) were the chief run-getters for the Australians.

The Fijians found Emery's bowling very difficult to negotiate, his record being seven wickets for 17. Mailey took two for 18, and Colling two for 10. The Governor, Sir Bickham Sweet-Escott and Lady Escott, witnessed the match, and E. R. Mayne and Austin Diamond were introduced to them.

Writing to his mother, Warren Bardsley states that the team was immensely popular on board the Niagara. When they touched at New Zealand they each bought a toy musical instrument, and formed a band, which gave "performances" at intervals, and the passengers "simply cried with laughter at the weird sounds." The cricketers were cinematographed at play, and it is probable that the pictures will be shown in Sydney in the near future. Warren adds that the members of the team are all well in health.

ANGLING.

THE HABITS OF WHALES.

In our issue of Wednesday last reference was made to the scare given by a whale to two fishermen outside the Heads, and there is no doubt their experience would have been very unpleasant had the great cetacean happened to rise to the surface right under their boat, but it is hardly likely that it had any sinister designs on the frail craft, which a flap of its tail would have smashed to splinters. Gambolling in frolicsome mood it probably was, as hump-backed whales are stout and extremely muscular, and frequently in their play jump right out of the water, falling on the surface with a resonant crash. When harpooned they do not charge the boat, but, unless mortally wounded, they frequently leap out of the water, and their struggles are most vigorous. There is, of course, a likelihood of their making a blind rush towards the boat, but certainly not with malice aforethought. They are endowed with enormous strength and endurance. The sperm whale, on the contrary, will, and frequently does, deliberately charge the pursuing steamer, and Mr. D. G. Stead has on record the fact that one of these monsters, in the early part of this year, did charge down on the gunboat whence the harpoon that enraged it had been fired, and dented some plates on the port side of the steamer.

The humpback whale commonly attains a length of 45 to 50 feet, with girth in proportion, and the struggles of such a creature, whose body is practically all muscle and bone, can be better imagined than described. The Norwegian whalers now operating on our coast appear to be doing fairly well; it is a great pity that this lucrative industry has so long been neglected and left to outsiders to exploit. It evidently pays, even with the heavy expence of maintaining the factory ship, and could be made a far more remunerative undertaking by the establishment of a shore station with equipment for the treatment of the carcases.

QUEENSLAND TRUMPETER.

A very large example of the Queensland trumpeter (Pomadasis hasta, family Pristipomatidae) was on view last week at Chinnery's—it was one of the largest ever seen in Sydney. The habitat of this splendid food fish is principally along the coast of Queensland. It also abounds to some extent on the northern portions of the coast of New South Wales, and is found in Western Australian waters, in the Red Sea, and in the Malay Archipelago. Mr. Stead says, in his "Fishes of Australia," that the casual observer would pass this fish as a kind of bream, as it is rather bream-like in shape. It's colours vary with age, but the body is usually prettily ornamented along the upper parts, with prominent irregular dark spots. In our waters these fish grow to a length of at least 21¼ inches, that being the size of a specimen sent to Mr. Stead from the Macleay River. The "grunters," to which group the trumpeter belongs, are so called, because of their habit of making a sort of grunting, buzzing sound after capture.

SHARK V ROD AND LINE.

Mr. David G. Stead, who keeps careful note of all remarkable authentic reports regarding the capture of fishes and other marine animals, believes that the feat performed by Mr. H. O. Chidgey some weeks ago at Port Stephens in capturing a nine-foot shark on a rod with 22 cord cuttyhank line is probably a world's record. A shark does not put up a rushing, brilliant battle like a tunny or Spanish mackerel, but fights with dogged persistence, which, added to the weight of the monster caught by Mr. Chidgey, leaves little room for wonder that his rod was broken in the endeavour to bring such a ponderous quarry within reach of the gaff, after a contest lasting several hours. Owing to the great quantity of fresh water emptied into Port Stephens since the recent heavy rains, the shoals of tunny and Spanish mackerel have disappeared, and as the season is now rather far advanced it is doubtful whether they will put in an appearance again until next February or March. Their re-appearance will be notified in this column. A party left on Friday night to try and locate the fish.

BOXING.

A good heavyweight contest will be held at the Stadium to-night, the opponents being Gordon Coghill and Pat Doran. Coghill has shown himself to be the best heavyweight among the new aspirants whom Mr. Baker tried out at the Stadium. In Doran he will have a formidable opponent, and a combat full of interest will be seen. The match will begin at half-past 8.

As the principal feature of the Stadium matinee to-morrow afternoon a 10-round match will be held between Geo. Newbury and Phil Guthrie, and Newbury may be relied on to impart his usual vim to the contest. Five three-round bouts will also be put on. The sparring exhibitions will be of particular interest, for they will include displays by the famous Queenslander, Joe Russell, and the Victorian middleweight, Carrie, who are matched respectively against Herb M'Coy and Larry Foran. M'Coy and Foran are also billed to appear. The matinee will begin at 3 o'clock, ladies being invited as usual.

World-wide significance attaches to the match between Johnny Summers and Sid Burns, the two English welters, at the end of next week. The winner will undoubtedly rank as the champion welterweight of the British Empire, and that is the title which is announced as depending upon the contest.

Whatever were the reasons which made it seem likely that the English heavyweight Petty-officer Curran would not remain in Australia for a series of matches, they have been removed, for at the beginning of the week Curran asked and received Mr. Baker's consent to stay on. Curran offered to meet Bill Lang for the return match early in July, and accordingly this has been made a Stadium fixture for July 19. The difficulty which the big Englishman found in securing suitable sparring partners has been remedied by the permanent engagement of Sid Fitzsimmons in that capacity.

The match leading up to the featherweight championship of Australia between Jimmy Hill (N.S.W.) and Charlie Simpson (Vic.), which fell through more than once, would now seem to be clinched for Wednesday, June 25. Each man has signed to appear on that date under forfeit of £100.

Joe Russell arrived from Brisbane on Sunday fit and keen for his third match against Herb. M'Coy, which will take place in the Stadium next Saturday night. He went out to the camp at Figtree, but, being already in thoroughly satisfactory condition, he will do only light work for the rest of the week. M'Coy came over from Victoria on Monday, and went to the Waverley training quarters. This will be the deciding contest for the two. They have each won one match, Russell being first the victor on points, and then M'Coy on a knockout.

Negotiations between the Stadium and England promise that the featherweight, Joe Starmer, will be the next noted English boxer to undertake an Australian tour. Starmer's quality is shown by the fact that he has a decision over Boyo Driscoll, the brilliant little Welshman.

Brisbane matches in Mr. R. L. Baker's Stadium include one between Sid. Stagg and the Queensland welter champion, Sol. Jones (an undefeated boxer) on Saturday next, and a subsequent match between Alf. Spenceley (Eng.) and Jack Read (N.S.W.).

A cable message from England to Mr. Baker has announced the departure of the welterweights "Young Nipper" and Arthur Evernden, by the R.M.S. Orsova.

Waldemar Holberg, the Danish boxer, has solved by his arrival the question of Hughie Mehegan's first opponent. He and Mehegan are matched to meet at the Stadium on Saturday, July 12.

THE DIGNITY OF SERVICE.

"Service is the only thing that leads to a sane and coherent life," said the Rev. Dr. Harper, speaking at a meeting of the Y.W.C.A. last week. The occasion was the closing session of the Training School. Twice a year the national board of the association holds a training school, to which come young women from all parts of the Commonwealth to go through a course of study which will fit them to take up special work in the association. The course covers a wide field, and includes lectures from experts on the Bible, church history, homiletics, mission work, as well as on economic questions, social movements, and current topics. The girls who go through the course must of necessity be girls of education, otherwise they would not be able to profit by the lectures; and at the end of their training they are prepared to undertake responsible and organising work in the association.

For the Y.W.C.A. is wide awake to the fact that the women who are going to stand as leaders in any work of reform must be women who are not only well educated in the ordinary sense, but who have made a special study of their own subject. The day of the amateur is past in social work, as in most other serious walks of life. It is the woman who has a broad outlook on life and a complete grip of her subject, as well as a fund of loving sympathy, who sends the world along. And it is the women who have studied in detail every side of their work who realise to the full the dignity of service. As Principal Harper said in his address, all labour is service if it be done in the right spirit; and, he said, one of the most respected women of his acquaintance was a housemaid, whose ideal was to be the very best housemaid in the world. This woman had realised the dignity of service, and scorned to do less than her very best. That is the ideal of all good workers—to be the very best of their kind. Without study and preparation, and very often self-sacrifice and anguish of spirit, it is impossible to produce the best that is within one. And the man or woman who performs the daily task with a true consciousness of the dignity of that task is performing a service to humanity.

It has been said that there is none of the old pride of work left; that machinery and modern unrest have killed the spirit that used to fill the oldtime artisans and craftsmen. There is no doubt that the social upheaval through which the world is passing has thrown many men and women off their balance and left them with distorted views of work and life generally. But it is also true that never in the world's history was the dignity of labour so fully realised by women of the cultured class. It is within our lifetime that women have really come to the understanding that "whatever is worth doing is worth doing well," and, moreover, that the fact of doing a thing well gives it a dignity of its own. A few years ago when a girl who had been brought up in comfort was thrown on the world her first idea of supporting herself was to do "something ladylike"—teaching, as a rule. The fact that she had no qualifications for such work did not worry her, nor did she ever seem to imagine that, in offering to sell what she did not possess, she was dishonest. Her one object was to keep her "gentility," and the harm that her ignorance and incompetency might do to others did not enter into her calculations. She might have had a gift for cookery, millinery, or dressmaking; but these occupations were "unladylike;" so rather than a useful, honest life spent in doing what she could do well, she struggled feebly along at work for which she was unfitted and untrained.

There are a few relics of this type, women who foolishly cling to "what a lady can do," and undertake duties which they are not honestly able to carry out. But most educated women of to-day realise that the only undignified work is the work that is badly done; and the teacher, the writer, the secretary, the typist, the milliner, the dressmaker, the nurse all know that training and study are as necessary to them as to the doctor, the lawyer, or the architect. And it is only when a woman feels herself in command of her subject, and realises the value of her efforts to the community, that she attains the highest dignity of her work.

PERSONAL HYGIENE FOR GIRLS.

It is an extraordinary thing that even in these days of liberal education the last things we learn are the facts about our own bodies. The average person knows practically nothing about the needs and demands of the human body. Appalling, and very often tragic, are the mistakes due to ignorance. It is not necessary to have a scientific training to understand the ordinary facts; just common sense and some careful reading are enough to put most of us on the right track with regard to our physical needs. And nowadays it is easy to obtain the right kind of literature, for many books are being written to teach scientific facts in popular language. Just such a book is "Personal Hygiene for Girls," by Mary Humphreys. In simple terms and a straightforward manner the author gives a wonderful amount of valuable information in a small volume. She begins with a few words on the ideals of girlhood, and then goes on naturally to show that to realise the best of the divine part of one's nature one must care for the body, which is its home. "There are many really good people who believe that to take care of the body—is consider, to develop, and to watch over it—is wrong; that such a course does harm to the soul. That is a very foolish belief when the body is considered in its right aspect. It is, indeed, an imperative duty to treat the body with care, to reverence it, and to develop it to its most perfect form and condition.

"You must know as much about your body as will enable you to keep it well. By this I mean very well—so many people are not very well, neither are they ill. But, having resolved to rise to the very highest of your powers, you must be aware that you cannot do so unless you are in vigorous, robust health."

Then she goes on to give many sound and simple rules for keeping in perfect health. She explains in easy language the different functions of the body, and shows why it is right or wrong to sit or walk in certain ways, why certain foods are nourishing, why rest and exercise, cleanliness, and fresh air are necessary. One chapter is devoted to clothing, and, while strongly condemning all that is unhygienic in dress, the writer says: "It has been realised that clothing, to be healthy, must be artistic and becoming, a pleasure to its wearer and to those who behold it. Ugly dress is detrimental to perfect health; the fine, sensitive organisation of girls and women is soon affected by external influences and impressions. It is well-nigh impossible for a self-respecting girl or woman to be cheerful in dowdy attire."

In another chapter the writer talks wisely of the forming of habits, both physical and mental; in another, rules for physical development are given; and again the importance of thorough cleanliness in the home, and so on.

The book is written for girls, and any girl in her teens should be able to appreciate it. But many a mother who has had no chance of studying the laws of health and of nature will find this little volume of inestimable help in bringing up her daughters to be happy, healthy girls.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

An interesting experiment is being tried by the Colonial Intelligence League, London, by arrangement with the Government of Victoria. A number of young gentlewomen are being given assisted passages to Australia to take up domestic work on purely business lines. Three are to do the pioneering work. They are to arrive in Melbourne about the middle of June, and are then prepared to take engagements as domestic employees. A number of Australians have to see that these women will have opportunities for social interests and enjoyment. Dr. Edith Barrett is interesting herself in the matter, and those who desire the services of employees under these conditions are requested to apply to her. In speaking of the plan of operations to be followed, Dr. Edith Barrett stated that when the project was mooted in London it was understood that superior, educated women, capable of doing domestic work, would command positions of trust here, just as this class of lady-help has been welcomed in Canada during the past few years.

In a deputation recently received by Mr. Murray, the Australian Women's Association cited the many cases of deserted wives, and pointed out that punishing the husband by sending him to gaol afforded no relief to the wife and children. They suggested the establishment of labour colonies—as in Germany—where defaulting husbands can be compelled to work and so contribute to the support of their families. It is altogether unfair that the charitably-disposed public should be called upon winter after winter to contribute to the keeping of women and children (whose natural protector has shaken off his responsibility). The wife-deserter is a problem for our legislators to deal with, and one that is becoming more acute every year.

An interesting report has just been furnished to the Immigration Department by a nurse who was specially engaged to travel from England and observe the conditions under which female emigrants travel. She made the trip on a ship which recently arrived here. As there were only two baths it was impossible for them to observe laws of cleanliness, according to the report. There appears to be room for improvement, not only in regard to the shipping arrangements, but also in connection with the mode of selection of emigrants. Several were afflicted with disease, but no steps were taken to segregate them. Better supervision is necessary in regard to their selection in future. The hospital accommodation is totally inadequate, and too much meat was given to children, resulting in skin and blood diseases. The nurse's report is to be sent to the State Health Department with a request that suggestions should be offered with a view of improving matters.

Women scrutineers were a novelty to voters in Kooyong at the recent election. Since women were enfranchised, occasionally they have been appointed to act in this capacity. Miss Goldstein had a large number of women as scrutineers and counters. They acted in an honorary capacity, and harmony prevailed between the presiding officers, poll clerks, and scrutineers of both candidates.

On the last day of the Australian Art Association's exhibition at the Athenaeum Hall so many works were purchased that the season's receipts were brought up to over £400. The exhibition was well patronised. Mr. and Mrs. Coates' work will open at the Athenaeum early next month. Mrs. Coates (Miss Dora Meeson) desires to take notes of Australian landscape before returning to Europe.

THE CRAFT OF THE NEEDLE.

The writer of "A Woman's Letter," from London, writes:—

I was shown some new design suitable for white embroidery by a clever woman, who runs a little atelier, where she designs work for ladies to do themselves. Miss Ruth Cross is the artist in question. She designs the material, and sends it to any lady from the dimensions given her. I saw some delightful squares for a bed-spread, made in coarse creamy or stone-coloured Pearsall linen. This is the very thing for doing coarse drawn-thread work. It takes no time to do. The solid part of the designs is worked in thick satin stitch. Large leaves and rich lace-like devices were prepared in this way of the squares of linen. It looks just like a Ruskin hand-made linen, such as you see at Windermere. The width is 68 inches, and its cost about six shillings per yard. I was very taken with it.

Another set of designs were of coarse Venetian point, the designs are drawn on pale green American leather, so that there is as little eyestrain as possible. You, perhaps, know the procedure of this kind of lace. The coarse linen thread is laid down all round the designs stitched through the American cloth. This done you start on the lace, never taking any of your stitches through. It is mostly buttonhole and lace stitches, such as any lace instruction book gives you. The more varied the better. When the motif is finished you cut the stitches from the back of the leather, and a piece of hand-made lace is the result. These pieces of lace can be inserted into the centres of squares for bed-spreads, table cloths, or any purpose towards which you wish to apply them. Miss Cross assured me that they take no time to do, and, indeed, most of her work is designed to meet the requirements of the day, when the maximum of effect is wanted by the expenditure of a minimum of labour.

A lady customer of this artist is embroidering a cloth for her dinner table designed by Miss Cross, of a panel of Richelieu cut work with motifs of coarse Venetian lace let in in places. I saw the drawing of the design, and can assure you it is well worth doing, for nothing washes as well as this class of work. You can arrange the cut work to suit yourself, either as a centre panel, with your coat of arms in the centre, carried out in lace, or with corner pieces of the cut linen work showing at the four corners of the table. I know how it wears and washes, for I have some small cloths in use which I worked five years ago. Then I saw Italian darned backgrounds on grey linen looking beautiful. For this coarse Pearsall linen is wonderfully artistic-looking, and very silky in appearance.

One of the windows of the studio was screened in a curious way, it was simply a banner-shaped piece of the thickest unbleached crochet I ever saw. It fitted the top of the window, and had a huge double crochet rose and leaves hanging by means of bars of crochet interlaced, till it terminated in a point. It looked like ivory, and was so strong and solid it would wear for years. The one complaint of this clever woman was that people would not take up this coarse style of crochet seriously. The thread is something like Macrame twine, only of a softer texture. You work with a coarse crochet needle, and you follow patterns in exactly the same way as for ordinary crochet lace. It is wonderfully handsome, and in small cottage windows would effectually keep off the gaze of passers-by without excluding light or air.

IMMIGRATION AND THE CHILDREN.

Change does everyone good, providing it is wholesome, and nowadays even a teacher gets her share. Madge and I were bosom companions for nearly five years, but she has left me now, for, as she puts it herself, "miles and miles of scrub land—120 degrees in the shade and goodness only knows how many in the sun." She has a small school out west, with an enrolment of 17 children. "I've a mixture," she writes; "five aboriginals, three Chinese, and nine whites," and she ends in her own characteristic way with a postscript that reads: "You'll be surprised to know, I suppose, that the best child of the bunch is a frizzy-headed aboriginal girl, who wears a hideously red dress and smiles with her teeth; you know what I mean."

Naturally I replied, to express my surprise, and informed her that up to date I had enrolled 60 children—a mixture, too, of English, Scotch, Irish, German, and Australian; and because something seemed to demand it I, too, appended a postscript wherein I stated that she would not be surprised to learn that my smartest child was a freckled, sandy-haired Australian laddie, with a pocketful of begrimed cigarette cards and a twang that was appalling.

Well, anyway we both have variety. Whether her white children gain any advantage from their association with the coloured ones I am not able to state, but I certainly can vouch for the advantages my Australians are gaining from their intercourse with the children from the United Kingdom, at least.

In the first place the latter possess that delightful broad, soft speech which the quick-witted Australian child, hearing every day, grows to like; and it is more than likely that by and by it will help him to better his own now half-pronounced wrods. Of course, "Timothy," who has come direct from "Doublin," causes a little flutter of amusing excitement when he offers to sing, for instance, and rolls out his charming vowels good-humouredly, and "Wee Bobby" from Glasgow puts everyone into a happy mood with his "noos," his "ceeke," his "brid and booter," and the irresistible way he has of saying "Jack and Jill"; but the Australian child loves to hear this talk, and the more he hears it the more he likes it. Just now, we know it has the novelty of being strange—this soft, gentle pronunciation and clear articulation—but it is not always going to be strange, and with it, and the now almost compulsory method of phonetic teaching in the schools, it seems certain that later on Australia will have that stigma against her pronunciation permanently removed.

There are other advantages to the child, too, besides this. The Motherland, that wonderful, almost mythical, place to the ordinary child, is given a place amongst the real things in his mind now; and Germany, Denmark, and even Russia become at least countries that exist outside geography books and school atlases when the child can actually touch someone who has been there. But perhaps the greatest advantage of all (I speak from direct experience with the younger children) is the hopeful trait in the Australian's character this immigrant child is disclosing to us—that of good-fellowship. Since the immigrants have arrived amongst them the Australians are making of friendship a fine art.

For example, there was Dennis. He had come straight from Ireland—was seven, blue-eyed, black-haired. Never having been to school before—an only child, and a shy one at that—he wandered about the playground a pathetically lonely figure in navy serge and sailor hat. The medley of laughing, running children seemed to fill his young soul with terror, and his one thought was to get away from it. His class-mates made numerous attempts to draw him into their games. It was in vain; Dennis could not, would not, understand. On the third day of his lonely roving, however, a brown-eyed laddie with a jam-smeared white coat and soiled blue knickerbockers picked him out, as he stood hugging the fence amicably, as the very thing they wanted for the particular game they were playing. He asked no questions of Dennis—he just placed two very dirty little hands upon him in rough kindness, cried excitedly "Come on, you're our man," and fairly dragged Dennis into the fun. At 2 o'clock, hot, red-faced and aching delightfully, Dennis pushed into his line with new vigour, and by the end of a week had found school quite a jolly place and the brown-eyed laddie the best fellow on earth.

Then there was Otto. He was a German boy who could not speak a word of English. He had a quaint little face that had an enchanting way of smiling on all possible and impossible occasions, and eyes that twinkled. He was six. What school was to him, when he could not understand a word about him, one dares not imagine. But the pointings and signings of his teacher highly amused Otto, and the little class had a smile always ready for each time "teacher" had to nod or beckon or sign to him. Nevertheless it interested as well as amused them, and they took Otto in hand themselves. It happened that he had rather extraordinary long arms for a child—his feet were big, and his legs a sensible length. So Otto made a very good hen for a peculiar "hen and chickens" game they played, and he was a truly astounding runner at "'Igh 'Acky." Thus Otto played games with the children, and by and by learned to say "teacher." In a school "teacher" is a big word to know. You see, "teacher" is so pre-eminently important. Call on her when you are in trouble, and you are bound to find a champion.

The advantages to the child then are apparent, and the teacher—well, she gets her amusement from them—varieties of temperaments—varieties of manner—all of which go to make her work much more interesting. And as for poor old Madge in her far-away western village, I have no doubt that she too will find out later on that there are advantages even in her queer variety, which is, after all, the redeeming feature of a teacher's work.

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

"I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes."—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

Among the passengers who left by the Orvieto on Saturday was Dr. Mary Booth, who has gone to Europe to take up special study in the London and Continental hospitals. As Dr. Booth will be absent from Australia for about 12 months, she was obliged to resign her position as general organising secretary to the central committee on the care and control of the feeble-minded, appointed by the British Medical Congress. Her work will be carried on by Dr. J. Sanderson Yule, of Melbourne. Dr. Mary Booth has also been acting as general secretary to the anthropometric committee of the Science Association, which has successfully organised an anthropometric survey of the school children in the Commonwealth. Dr. H. C. Brennand, of this city, will take Dr. Booth's place on this committee.

When Professor MacCallum suggested to the audience at the "Mystery Play" last Friday that they should suspend their criticism, and imagine themselves seated amongst the simple peasants in Oberammergau, or back in the 15th century, waiting in the dawn outside the Abbey gate for the sacred play to begin, he was proposing something easier than might seem possible. By his own words the speaker had prepared his listeners for the play that was to follow; and the simple setting and the entry of the chanting monks pacing down the aisles between the onlookers created an atmosphere that no gorgeous stagecraft could have achieved. Sitting in the half-light, with the hooded monks kneeling on either side of the players, it needed but little imagination to travel across the centuries and picture the play as it was last performed. Then, too, wise precaution against stupid applause helped the effect, and the thread of the play was not broken by hand-clapping. It was a performance as interesting as unique, and the thanks that was conveyed to Mr. Grimwood was none the less sincere for being carried by the silent raising of the hand.

The Society of Arts and Crafts is to be warmly congratulated upon its exhibition at present being held in the Royal Art Society's rooms. The work shown is of a high standard, and several new crafts lend an additional interest to the exhibition. The designs for stained glass windows have attracted a great deal of attention, and the member engaged in making Valenciennes lace has been constantly surrounded by an interested throng. As usual, there is some very beautiful metal work displayed, and, indeed, excellent work in every craft; while the absence of the "potboilers" adds greatly to the value of the exhibition.

Although the Renwick Hospital for Infants has only been in existence for a couple of years, already the accommodation is inadequate, and many a poor baby has to be denied admittance for want of room. So far no cots in the hospital have been endowed, as they are at the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children, but at present there is a movement to alter this state of affairs, and next Saturday evening a concert will be held at the Repertory Theatre, to raise funds to endow a cot. Mrs. Wessberg and Mrs. D. R. Hall are acting as hon. secretaries of the concert committee, and Lady Edeline Strickland, who is deeply interested in the Renwick Hospital, has given permission for the cot to be called the "Lady Edeline" cot.

The executive of the National Council of Women met for its monthly meeting at Government House on Thursday, June 5. Lady Edeline Strickland presided. The secretary reported an increase of 60 associate members, evidence of public interest in the work of the council. Interesting foreign correspondence was read by Miss Rose Scott with regard to the forthcoming elections of the International Council, and to the International Woman's Suffrage Congress, to be held shortly at Buda Pesth. Delegates will attend this conference from nearly every country in the world, including China, India, Persia, and Spain, but English, French, and German will be the only languages spoken. Bylaws under the new constitution were submitted to the meeting, and adopted with a few alterations. It was also decided that the general meeting of the council should be held on the first Thursday of the month.

Belfast and the North of Ireland have been much in the limelight recently, but there are some dark corners in Ulster which are kept well hidden from the light of publicity, the dark corners where women are working at the sweated trades. A recent inquiry into the condition of the Irish home-workers brought forth some appalling figures. Irish shirtmakers, for instance, earn from 4s to 10s a week, mostly 5s to 8s, collar finishers earn 8s or 9s; the women who embroider the dainty linen handkerchiefs, for which we pay anything from 2s apiece, upwards, earn from 4s to 7s a week, or, in a few exceptional instances, 10s to 12s; most of them consider it "brave pay" to earn 1s a day; the drawn-thread workers are shamefully paid, 3s a week being a common wage; while a woman who embroidered with exquisite skill a silk parasol received 2s for it, though it took her three days to do. And the "day" means anything from early morning to late at night, not a day of eight hours.

Increasing interest is being taken in the subject of horticultural training for women. The Women's Horticultural Guild—which has for its object the practical training of women in fruitgrowing, poultry-farming, and other branches of horticultural work—encouraged by the success of the series of lectures on "Poultry-farming for Women," is now taking steps to arrange for lectures in the other branches. For this purpose a meeting will be held at the Queen Victoria Club, Wynyard-street, to-day, at 3 p.m., when an address will be given by Mr. Cheel, of the Botanic Gardens, on "General Gardening—suitable for Women." And Miss Connolly will emphasise the need for practical training. As enthusiastic women from the University and other educational centres are giving attention to the subject, a good meeting should be ensured.

The woman's work in the home in cooking, washing, cleaning, nursing, managing, is every whit as essential to society as her husband's work in bricklaying, hawking, or driving a motor 'bus, and often demands greater brain power, says Miss Anna Martin, in an article on "The Mother and Social Reform," in the "Nineteenth Century." That she should be forced into accepting degrading terms of labour, injurious to a healthy, self-respecting life, is just as detrimental to the body politic as if men were the sufferers. That the wife is in the disadvantageous position of being tied to only one possible employer should have been the most powerful of reasons for safeguarding her interests for protecting the weaker party in the bargain. Inquiry, however, into the actual facts of the daily life of the humbler classes, as distinguished from legal fictions and conventional beliefs, reveals the truth that, as compared with the male worker, the wife suffers from two fundamental disabilities: first, the law does not enforce contract for her as against her employer-husband; secondly, it does not, save in the feeblest and most inefficient way, protect her from his personal violence.

A TALK ON TEACHING.

It was a very interested audience that listened to Miss Hodge and Miss Newcomb speaking at the Kindergarten Training College yesterday afternoon. Kindergarten and the Montessori method were the subjects of the addresses, and as both speakers are renowned educationalists the subjects were treated with clearness and thoroughness only possible to an expert in so limited a time.

Miss Newcomb spoke of the work of Madame Montessori, and while giving all credit and honour to the great Italian woman for her contribution to education, pointed out that fundamentally her system differed but little from the principles of kindergarten. Not kindergarten as it was known to Madame Montessori in Italy, but at its best as it is practised in England, America, and Australia. The speaker pointed out that in Italy the schools, as a rule, are as rigid in their discipline as they were 40 years ago, and that Madame Montessori's doctrine of freewill and individuality was really a revolution in that country. The great value of her work in other lands is, said the speaker, that it has been the means of causing teachers to look back over the history of education, and to study more closely the underlying principles.

Miss Hodge gave some interesting glimpses of kindergarten work in Germany, Japan, America, and England. In Germany, the home of kindergarten, the work has been hampered by the lack of support from the authorities, who have small sympathy with pre-formal teaching. The same silly chats which were suggested as an occupation by the ignorant German mothers of Froebel's day are still to be seen in every German kindergarten. But there is a hopeful movement on foot at present, and, with their national thoroughness, it is probable that as soon as the Germans give their earnest attention to the subject of kindergarten, they will study it scientifically, and train their teachers thoroughly. In Japan, kindergarten is one of the many things borrowed from the west, but the real spirit which is behind all true kindergarten teaching is unknown there. "It was a pathetic thing," said Miss Hodge, "to see a Japanese teacher taking a number of old-young children out to play a game. The children, who go to school to learn, could see no use in the game, and the teacher herself could see no use or meaning in it, but thought it her duty to play it. So gravely they went through it, missing all the value and meaning that should have been in it."

Graceful velvet gown for the winter evenings. The skirt is draped to simulate a panier effect, and the upper part of the bodice is of ninon, showing an embroidery of coloured silks.

In America the kindergarten is supported with tremendous enthusiasm, and although there is a certain amount of superficial knowledge acquired, there are very many highly-trained and capable kindergarteners. Miss Hodge told a pretty story of a Californian kindergarten, where, of the 32 pupils, only one was an American. The teacher wisely realising that patriotism to America could only be taught after patriotism to their own country had invented a game in which, to the tune of their national anthems, each child carried forward its own flag, and then the American child waved the stars and stripes protectingly over all. The American teacher who asked Miss Hodge if they knew the story of "Red Riding Hood" in England did not display so deep a knowledge.

In speaking of education in England, Miss Hodge said that there is nothing to equal the absolute revolution in education in the British Isles during the past six years. The Boer War taught the lesson that British children must be trained to develop their own powers of initiative and individuality, and a wholesale reformation has been worked in the schools. Already there is a most marked change in the habits and demeanour of the children; while, as for the teachers—to thousands of whom Miss Hodge has lectured during the past six years—she could not say enough of the splendid enthusiasm with which the teachers work, sparing no time or pains to fit themselves for their work.

That enthusiastic little band, the Sydney Health Society, is not satisfied with the good work done in the past, but is now making an effort to extend its field of activity. With this end in view a sub-committee has been formed, with Dr. Marion Thornett as president, with the object of arousing more active interest amongst the members. The annual winter course of lectures will begin on the 16th instant, and arrangements are being made for giving lectures in the suburbs this year.

SCHOOLS FOR WOMEN.

During the last score of years women have been slowly but surely taking their place—in the more strenuous walks of life. They have not only worked their way into the various clerical professions, but are even working with credit on the land. In Australia many a woman in the backblocks has to do a man's work, and without any previous knowledge of the hard, often fruitless toil; has endured privations and lack of comforts with heroic fortitude. In this age of progress, when science teaches us the right way to work, much labour can be saved by a little knowledge. Some of the latest and most interesting schools which have been opened for girls in Germany during the last few years are the garden and orchard schools. In these schools educated girls are thoroughly taught the art of gardening, practically and theoretically, and are afterwards able to take positions as teachers in garden schools; head gardeners on large estates and villas, or as independent gardeners, etc. At the school I visited there are several courses, besides the full course of two years for professional gardeners; and a course for those whose health needs building up an strengthening. A special course for tree-pruning is held one month early in the year and two weeks in autumn. A course for preserving fruits, for bee-culture, and a shorter course for those only wishing to learn enough to be able afterwards to look after their own home gardens. Those who study to become professional gardeners must after a two-years' full course pass a written and practical examination. The written examination, among other subjects, includes botany, physiology, zoology, plant diseases, landscape gardening, fruit, vegetable and flower culture, chemistry, the different woods, manures, and soils, etc. Provision is made for 29 scholars to board at the school. Others are boarded out in adjoining pensions. The school is the property of Frau Dr. Elvira Castner, and has the following aims:—

1. To educate thoroughly ladies as gardeners and garden teachers.
2. To give refined women an aim and purpose in life through garden work.
3. To raise and further the cultivation of fruit in the fatherland by educated lady gardeners.
4. To stimulate garden work as a means of education, and to introduce it into the school and family.
5. To strengthen weak, anemic, and nervous women by systematically conducted garden work, and so by it to regain their health.

The first garden school was opened 19 years ago by Dr. Castner, and a visit to this school very lately convinced me that this new calling for women is not only a healthy, but a most interesting one. The story of the founding of this school by Dr. Castner is also a most interesting one, proving what a single woman can do against great odds for the benefit of her country and countrywomen. We were most kindly received by this lady, who sat in the garden in front of the large school, watching some of her pupils weeding the flower beds. She willingly told us the history of the origin of this the first garden and orchard school to be opened in Germany. "I am a dentist," she said, "and studied for my profession in America. At Baltimore I saw so much fruit shipped to Germany that the thought occurred to me, how can we improve the culture of fruit so that Germany can cultivate and produce her own fruit without having to import it from other countries? The idea then occurred to me to educate the women to help in this work. I returned to Germany, and worked in Berlin at my profession till I had saved enough money to work out my idea. After long years my burning wish was fulfilled, and in October, 1894, I opened my school in Friedenau, near Berlin, with seven scholars, on an area of 2½ acres." Instead of gaining the admiration of her fellow-country-people, she (like all those who start something new) was subjected to the sneers and calumnies of those around her. Some said she was mad, others advised people not to have anything to do with the American swindler. But the new idea was a success, and now garden schools for women have sprung up like mushrooms all over Germany. The parent school, with its ever-increasing family, moved to its present fine property in Marienfelde, near Berlin, in the year 1899. At present over 70 pupils from all parts of the Continent attend the school, and over 600 ladies have been trained there since its inception.

The kind doctor called one of the pupils, and told her to show us round the school and gardens. A bright-faced, strong, sturdy girl came forward without a hat, her rosy, good-natured, happy face covered with freckles, which the early summer sun this year had painted on her unprotected complexion. She was dressed, as were all the other pupils, in the reform dress. She was so interested in her work and so delighted to explain everything that we found ourselves quite wishing that we, too, had had the chance of taking up this interesting calling. The hot-houses were first visited. Several pupils were busy there, potting small plants in specially prepared soil. "We attend to the heating apparatus ourselves," said our guide. Pots of strawberries just above our heads, with large, delicious-looking berries, made our mouths water; delicate fresh lettuce just ready to cut; palms, cactus, arum lilies, etc. In an adjoining house, fine cucumber vines, with fresh green cucumbers. Out in the open air strawberries and other delicate plants were just being planted out, protected by glass in case of another cold snap. But the orchard is the principal purpose of this school, and we coud not have chosen a better morning to see the fine cherry, pear, and apple trees in full bloom. Trained on trellises, the strong, sturdy apple trees all looked so well cared for that one can readily understand why many prizes have been won at shows by these girl gardeners for their fine fruit. In a bed of wild tree cuttings two girls were busily engaged grafting fruit buds into the cuttings. Small fruit trees, in cardboard pots, well ventilated all round, were shown to us as a new invention. The tree and pot are planted together, the cardboard in course of time decays, and the tree is thus undisturbed. We next saw the bee hives, the course for bee culture is optional. In the carpentering room several scholars were busy sharpening stakes on a special machine for the purpose, making wooden placards, mending glass frames, etc. "We do all our own carpentering, we don't need the men," was our guide's comment. The class-rooms were next visited, and an idea given of the pedagogical part of this most interesting calling. Our guide did not disguise the fact that the examinations were very difficult; besides the subjects already mentioned, Latin plays an important part in the examinations. Some of the girls, however, who were not able, on account of nervousness, to do justice to themselves at an examination, but had proved good and industrious workers, were allowed to leave the institution without passing the examination. They obtained good positions, and are working to the satisfaction of their employers.

E.M.D.

THE PATH OF THE PIONEER.

Several English and American papers have recently expressed their fear that men's chivalry is being undermined by the action of the militant suffragist. Miss Edith Palliser, in an English magazine article, points out that every forward movement on the part of women has had the same effect:—"A reference to the history of the various movements in which women are concerned, either to bring about a change in their position or to alter certain laws—movements it will be remembered conducted on constitutional and perfectly legitimate lines of agitation—will show that these have always been accompanied at some stages in their progress by hostile demonstration from men. True, this hostility did not always take the form of physical violence, but there is a hostility which manifests itself in the lash and sting of words, in attacks upon personal character, and in imputations of immoral and dishonest motives not less painful than actual physical blows.

"Mrs. Josephine Butler, the gentlest and kindest of women, was more than once in danger of her life at the hands of men whose chivalry was presumably 'undermined.' On one occasion when she was addressing a small gathering of women in a hayloft, a crowd of men set fire to some straw and hay underneath, in the hope of smoking the women out, but as this was not effective they rushed into the room and tried to terrify them into abandoning the meeting. 'It was not,' says Mrs. Butler, 'personal violence that we feared so much as the mental pain inflicted by the rage, profanity, and obscenity of the men, of their words and their threats; their language was hideous. They shook their fists in our faces with volleys of oaths. Two of the leaders of these men wore the dress of gentlemen.'

"The women students who sought admission to study in the wards of the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, had to undergo rough treatment from the male students, whose feelings of delicacy, it was alleged, were violated by the presence of women in the wards. In order to show how delicate these feelings were, they pursued the women students shouting after them abusive words and obscene allusions. This treatment was referred to by Professor Blackie when he said to Miss Jex-Blake, 'Well ye can now say that ye have fought with wild beasts at Ephesus.'"

Miss Palliser cites the case of the two American women, Lucretia Mott and Lucy Crandall, whose only crime was to advocate the abolition of slavery. One was attacked with stones and vitriol; the other was boycotted, and no one would sell her food, and, finally, her house was set on fire.

Women pioneers have always been met with hostility. "Mary Somerville was condemned for studying science; Elizabeth Fry for trying to improve the conditions of female prisoners; Florence Nightingale for nursing soldiers; Sonia Kovalesvsky for following the bent of her genius. Innumerable instances could be cited to prove that women qua women were not exempt from suffering, mentally and physically, although they may never have resisted the law, or availed themselves of any other than peaceful methods of persuasion to promote a change in social conditions."

GOLDEN EVENINGS.

The month of May has run its course, gloomily clouded, wind-swept, and wet, but amongst its sombre greyness here and there have been some glorious evenings, glints of gold on days of grey.

It was Monday, and Monday is always washing day. Even when one lives in a single room, with the week's wash a brown paper parcel, and has been no closer to the washing than past the steam laundry in the tram, it is still the same old washing day, with a new start in everything to be made.

A long, grey Monday drew towards its close. The crowds, depressed and cheerless, hurried along the muddy streets, where everything was limp and damp, when, suddenly, a parting flash of sunlight burst through the misty clouds and lay like a benediction upon the brow of the city. George-street was full of hidden beauty; its narrow, winding way dim with shadowy twilight, where the lamps of the trams shone redly, and big shop windows made splashes of colour and light. One was full of golden velvets under amber lamps, another of Eastern carpets with its lights in crimson shades, and one was all Imperial purple. Above the misty shadows and moving lights of the narrow street, the high walls of the buildings were warm in sunshine. Westward a hazy golden sunset came through the drifting smoke, and to the east the sky was cold and pastel-tinted. The great grey mass of the Post Office rose from where the purple shadows lapped its foundations, and violets were heaped in the street-sellers' baskets, and carried its tower aloft to the sunlit spaces. Beyond, a Union Jack was floating blue and red, on the pastel sky.

Another day had come and gone. The long straight roads of Strathfield led into the sunset, a cloudless sky of shimmering gold. The air so crisp and clear, was all exhilaration, and we hurried onwards eager to walk to the sun's full glory. Beneath our feet fallen russet leaves of the camphor laurels crushed and rustled, and a spring gushed out across the footpath. On one side of the long, red road, gum trees, left from the bushland, strongly erect on tall bare trunks, spread their foliage lightly on the sunset's golden glow. On the other side, chrysanthemums, amber and tawny browns, still lingered in the gardens, and a grape vine grew in ragged yellow masses. The slanting sunlight crowned the laurels with emerald touches, and lingered in joyous dalliance, where a fence was hung with gold and red minalobata. The western sky deepened to copper and crimson; the hills frob blue to purpleling night. Breathless we watched its transient beauty. A few golden moments, and then—an exquisite memory.

The railway train rushed up the incline to the station, past the beds of amaranthus, their reds emboldened by surrounding greyness. A silver disc in a cloudy sky marked the sun's endeavour to come through. As we waited on the platform a wintry wind was blowing, ceaseless trains were rushing over wet rails to and from the tunnel, din and dreariness everywhere. But at last the conquering sun burst through the mists of smoke and cloud in a golden radiance. The tower of old St. Paul's, square and ficus-draped, stood out in burnished splendour lifting upwards our eyes and thoughts.

A day of azure beauty had run to eventide. From a sea-girt garden on Darling Point we watched its sands of time run out. A sky of liquid rose and crimson overhung the distant city, whose spires and domes pricked through the violet haze of smoke and caught the sunset's shimmering rays. Its reflection burned on the harbour's surface, "one long track and trail of splendour," and on either side the shadowy water was tinged to translucent pink.

Parting day
Dies like the dolphin, whom each pang imbues
With a new colour as it gasps away,
The last still loveliest, till—'tis gone—
And all is grey.

—Byron.

Nature's Way to the Lungs

PEPS, "THE NATURAL BREATHING REMEDY" FOR THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

THERE is but one way for a remedy to reach the chest and lungs, and that is the Peps way. The throat divides into two passages; one leads to the stomach, where all foods and liquids go, the other goes direct to the lungs, through the voice box and bronchial tubes, and through which passage nothing can pass in the shape of food or drink; hence the folly of dosing the stomach with liquid cough mixtures in an effort to treat the lungs. The only way of reaching and treating the lungs direct is by inhalation, and for which the volatile pine fumes as stored in Peps—the latest scientific discovery—have proven so wonderfully successful. . . . As Peps, when divested of their silver wrapper, dissolve pleasantly on the tongue, certain volatile pine fumes are released. These fumes mix with the air we breathe, and so are carried with every deep breath through the throat and bronchial tubes into the lungs, and bring soothing, healing, and germ-killing virtues to the weak or inflamed tissues. No drowsy cough mixtures, oily emulsions, or drugs and irritants sucked into the gullet from ordinary cough lozenges can possibly reach the chest and lungs. Peps contain no narcotics, sedatives, or other drowsy drugs. Peps are always safe and sure alike for young and old, weak and strong. They effectually allay the most obstinate and chronic cough, soothe and conquer the irritation and inflammation of the delicate lining membranes, destroy the germs of disease, loosen phlegm, and bring strength, healing, and tone to tissues injured and weakened by incessant coughing. . . . For the various throat, chest, and lung troubles so prevalent at this season, keep Peps always handy. The prompt efficacy and ideal comfort of this unique breathing cure always comes as a great surprise to all who have hitherto relied on ineffectual and nauseous cough mixtures and cough drops.

PEPS GO DIRECT TO THE LUNGS.

SORE THROAT AND CHEST COLD.

COUGH WAS VERY TROUBLESOME.

"Both my husband and myself suffered from severe colds," says Mrs. F. Stuart, of 73 Grose-street, Camperdown, Sydney. "My cold was accompanied by a violent cough, which was very troublesome. Peps brought me immediate relief, and we both think they are a splendid remedy. My husband's throat was frightfully sore from coughing, but Peps took all the soreness away, and completely cured him. We think Peps are the finest cough remedy it is possible to have for restoring the lungs to perfect health."

"My two children suffered from very severe colds," writes Mrs. Ethel Nyes, of 54 M'Kenzie-street, Leichhardt, Sydney, "which were accompanied by such fearful coughs that I became very anxious. My mother, who had herself been cured by Peps of Bronchitis, strongly advised me to administer them to the little ones, and after taking a few of the Pastilles the cough eased, phlegm was freely ejected, and a continuation of the Peps treatment completely cured them. Now we are never without a box of Peps always handy, especially in the winter months."

CHAPTER I.

THE MEETING.

When Fate is in a whimsical mood, she will weave the glowing gold of romance out of the oddest and most prosaic materials. In my case she chose the snapping of a piece of copper wire and—a railway strike. It happened in this wise.

I started from Hendon to fly to the Isle of Wight, and, although I was delayed by head winds, all went well until I had passed over Winchester. Then the motor began to go wrong, and as the wind blowing up from the Solent was freshening and I couldn't get the engine to behave properly, I decided not to risk the crossing without ascertaining the trouble. So I picked out an open space near the West Station and planed down. Not being a very experienced airman, however, I bungled matters; the wire of one of the planes snapped when I was a few feet from the ground; the aeroplane dropped like a stone, and further flight was hopeless.

Considerable time was occupied in making arrangements for the removal of the craft and its safe custody until my mechanics could be sent for, and thus it was getting dark before everything was completed, and I was at liberty to think about what to do next. I was undecided whether to return to town or stay in Southampton for the night; and that was where the strike of the railwaymen came into operation.

The train service was out of gear; I had missed a fast train, it was doubtful when the next would start; and it appeared that I had arrived at a moment of crisis, just when a vigorous attempt was being made to force the hand of the company by bringing out the dock-workers to join the strike. The streets were thronged; the rougher elements of the crowd were out of hand; some ugly horse-play had commenced; a few shop windows had been smashed, and altogether there was a prospect of a very rowdy night. Accordingly I decided to stop and see the fun.

As I was wearing my overalls, and had not washed since I had been tinkering with the aeroplane, I was grimy enough to be accepted by the crowd as one of the strikers, and was soon on good terms with them. I learnt that all the row was being caused by the rougher lot, the irresponsible unemployed, who saw a possible chance of looting a shop or two, and meant to use it if they could. But the police, who behaved admirably, soon rendered this impracticable; and a number of arrests and the prompt use of the batons on some of the well-known loafers, began to put a very different aspect on matters.

I watched things for an hour or so, and then, to avoid the crowd, I turned into a side street to make my way to the South-Western Hotel, to secure a bed and get some dinner.

Then came the surprise which Fate had been saving up for me.

Half a dozen roughs came tearing past me with the police close at their heels, and I had scarcely watched them out of sight, when three men came hurrying round the corner of a street just ahead of me; two of them with their hands on the collar of the third. The latter was respectably dressed and well on in years; but the glimpse I had of him, as they hurried past, suggested that so far from resisting them, he was little less anxious than they were to get away. Then from the street out of which they had just turned came a cry for help in a woman's voice.

I ran to the corner, and a short distance along the street I saw a woman being rough-handled by a couple of loafers. She attempted to repeat the cry when she saw me, but one of the brutes silenced her by clapping his hand on her mouth. I am always very chary of interfering in a street row, but this was more than flesh and blood could stand, so I dashed up to take a hand.

The fellow who had silenced her turned just in time to get my fist in his face, and he was on his back in the gutter before he could think of defending himself. His companion released the woman, and raising his stick, aimed a vicious blow at my head. He was a dark, swarthy, foreign-looking rascal, and, as I avoided the blow and closed with him, I noticed a scar on his left cheek.

I wrenched the stick away and sent him staggering back; and as his fellow had scrambled to his feet, they both rushed to attack me. A whack on the arm from the stick disabled one and put him out of action, leaving me free to tackle the man with the scarred face.

He was a lithe wiry fellow, but I was the taller, and as hard as nails, and knew how to take full advantage of my greater height and reach. He sprang for my throat, but I butted him off with my shoulder and gave him a left upper cut which knocked a good deal of the fight out of him. He had plenty of pluck, however, and was coming at me again, when three or four men came out of a public-house a little farther along the street. This settled the affair; for as soon as the two scoundrels caught sight of the men, they turned and bolted off at top speed.

It was all over in a few seconds; so quickly indeed that the woman had not recovered from her scare, before her assailants were out of sight. Her features were hidden by a thick veil; but her violent trembling and laboured breathing showed that she was both agitated and exhausted by the struggle and fright.

"You won't have any more trouble from those two," I said to reassure her; "but the streets are none too safe with all these rowdies about, and the sooner you're indoors the better."

Just then a burst of noisy laughter from the men who had turned out of the inn so opportunely startled her and she glanced round nervously at them as they approached us.

"These men won't trouble you," I added. "Don't worry. I'll stay here until they've passed."

They were of the better class of workmen and had evidently had enough beer to render them a little boisterous; and as they passed, the youngest of them coughed suggestively and called out to me in a chaffing falsetto voice—

"Hm! Good-night, John. Don't keep her out too late, mind."

"All right, mate," I returned in a similar chaffing tone. It would have been sheer folly to treat the thing otherwise than as a jest; but I certainly did not foresee the effect of this trifling incident upon my companion.

"You can see for yourself that you'd better get home as soon as you can," I said, when they had passed. My interest in the affair was over. I took her for a woman of much the same class as the fellows who had molested her, and was rather impatient for her to go. Whatever the cause of the quarrel might be it was none of mine; she was now perfectly safe from any risk of interference at their hands; and her indecision and hesitation began to irritate me. At the same time I could not leave her in the lurch.

"You can safely go home now," I said, a little insistently.

She stood clasping and unclasping her hands, looking first at me and then up and down the street, as if in great perplexity and, as I thought, somewhat exaggerated distress. Presently she tossed up her hands. "But I—I don't know what to do." On the instant the situation was completely changed for me, and I gave an involuntary start of surprise. The voice was that of a girl; the accent one of culture and refinement, and the tone so rich and melodious and so eloquent of genuine trouble that its appeal was irresistible. I looked at her closely for the first time and marked the graceful lines of her figure, and saw that her dress, of the plainest and simplest description, bore the unmistakable hall-mark of the West End of London. Her voice had so thrilled me that I was consumed with the desire to see her features. All thought of my own affairs was lost in the bewildering speculation as to the cause of her present plight, and the wish to be of help to her.

"Is that your name?"

The question roused me from these thoughts. It was sharply asked, and the note of authority in the tone suggested that she was accustomed to received prompt attention and respect. It was evident that similar consideration was expected from me; and I had difficulty in restraining a smile as the reason flashed upon me. The man in passing had called me "John," judging by my overalls that I was a fellow-workman, and my companion was no doubt under the same impression.

"Yes, Ian," I replied, making my name as much like John as I could. There was no need to enter into lengthy explanation of my outward appearance which would have been necessary if I told her that I was really Sir Ian Calmadale; while it occurred to me that she might be more willing to make use of my help if I accepted the situation; and that she would do so was now my most urgent hope.

"You are evidently an honest man and have shown yourself a brave one, and I am much obliged to you for what you did. If you will give me your name and address, I will see that you are well rewarded."

I had not quite bargained for this. "Thank you, madam, but there is no need. Would you like me to see you safely back to your friends?"

She hesitated. "Yes, but——" and she stopped.

"I hope you will not hesitate to trust me."

"No. Oh no. It's not that. After what you have done I should trust you implicitly; but—well, I do not live here; and the only friend I had was taken by the companions of the men you drove off."

"An elderly man with a grizzled pointed beard?"

"Yes. Have you seen him?" she asked eagerly.

"I met him as I was hurrying here. Two men had him by the collar." I did not think it necessary to add that he had appeared to be a very willing captive.

She winced. "Then I really don't know what to do," she said in a tone of baffled perplexity.

It was no doubt exceedingly unchivalrous of me, but I could not help feeling a little unholy glee at this. It might take much longer than I had expected to restore her to her friends. I was growing more interested in her with every word she uttered; and the knowledge that there was no one except myself in the town to whom she could look for help was unspeakably welcome. But I maintained a discreet and respectful silence.

"I wish to get away from the town," she said presently. "Do you think that—but there, of course, it's impossible."

"The train service is all to pieces on account of the strike, and——"

"Oh, I couldn't go by train. That's out of the question. I daren't," she broke in with some excitement. "Besides, for one thing I haven't enough——" Once more she left the sentence unfinished; but this time she laughed. A nervous jerky laugh, but with all the sweetness of a silver bell. It suggested that the unspoken reason was in itself ridiculous, and only serious because of the present circumstances. I guessed what it was.

"If you think I can be of any assistance, madam, I hope you will allow me to offer such services as are in my power," I replied, as gravely as a judge.

"What are you?" she asked, scanning me closely from head to foot. "A chauffeur?"

"Not exactly, madam; but I know a good deal about cars."

"Do you think you could——" she began impulsively, but checked herself as before. "But of course you could not," she added.

"Naturally I cannot, unless you tell me what it is you wish."

This was scarcely an appropriate reply for a chauffeur, and she straightened up slightly in surprise, and her tone was distinctly stiffer when she spoke again. "I meant, could you hire me a car?"

"Certainly I can, without the least difficulty, madam." I was careful this time to remember my station.

"Yes, but can you drive it? I couldn't trust myself with a strange man."

"I hold a driving license," I said, at great pains to suppress my inense appreciation of the implied confidence.

"But I—I must explain. It's very ridiculous, of course—" and once more that silvery nervous laugh thrilled me. "Well, it's no use trying to disguise the truth, and that is that I have no money with me."

"That will be no difficulty at all. I can get a car in a moment, and will undertake to drive you wherever you wish to go."

"Even to London?" she cried, scarcely able to believe what I said.

"To John o' Groats, if you wish it," I assured her, eagerly, and nearly added—"the farther the better."

Again the little stiffening gesture told me I had overstepped the line, but her intense relief at the prospect of getting out of her present plight was too great to be marred by my slip. I was sure there was a smile behind the sigh of relief; and I wished the thick veil at Jericho.

"You seem a very resourceful person, and, of course, you understand that—that everything will be repaid, whatever the amount."

"If you will allow me to walk with you to a garage in the High Street, we can be off in a few minutes form now, madam; or, if you prefer it, I will bring the car here."

"I would rather not be alone, thank you," she replied nervously; and after she had cast one or two anxious glances up and down the street, we started. I made as if to fall back a step behind her, but she waited for me to walk by her side. "I shall feel safer if you are at my side," she said.

THE BARRON MORLEY MATINEE.

In addition to all that was said in praise of Mr. F. Barron Morley after his first concert as a classic pianist, he now stands confessed in virtue of yesterday's recital at the Town Hall as a great player of Beethoven. His choice fell upon the "Sonata in E major" (op. 109), one of the three last of the master's sonatas, and, as the interpretation revealed, one of the most poetic. Students will doubtless remember that for long years these three were condemned by the professional virtuosi as too difficult, and the one now in question is still less known than the earlier works. The brief vivace was rendered with a silvery lightness of tone and touch that still maintained association with the legato manner, and the arresting modulation on an arpeggio chord was delivered with poignant delicacy of effect. Generally, the interpretation of the music throughout was on an elevated plane, the beautiful theme of the andante stealing in again and again with touching expression, whilst in the variations a masterly technique enabled the player, even in the most complex passages, to avoid any suggestion of hurry or lack of definite purpose. It seems strange that so fine an interpreter of the great composer should not have included one of Beethoven's compositions in the opening programme. Rarely is the meaning of these last sonatas so clearly expressed.

Mr. Morley, whose performance excited the utmost enthusiasm, was again at the height of his powers in the Schumann "Fantasie in C" (op. 17). In the famous middle movement —Massig-Durchaus-energisch—he exhibited a colossal executive ability that realised all the triumphant force of the exultant theme; whilst, by way of contrast, the final movement was marked by sentiment of the right kind, namely classic. The artist was recalled four times at this point, but did not respond with an extra number, inasmuch as he had the "Twelve Etudes" (op. 25) of Chopin still before him. In these also he fascinated the listeners, so that there was a renewed storm of applause, and he then accepted a double encore.

A group of little masterpieces introduced the brilliant pianist in Bach's "Gigue in E minor," in which he showed finish of technique in an extreme rapidity to which the intricacy of the chord-passages proved no obstacle. Godowski's arrangement of Corelli's "Pastorale" and "Tambourin" especially won the audience in the former, due to the soloist's bell-like sweetness of touch, and to the art of a gradual crescendo rising to a grand climax, and ultimately sinking again to a song-like charm. After the sparkling, staccato precisions of the Mendelssohn "Scherzo," with its many subtle nuances, the audience again waxed joyous, and the Chopin "Berceuse" was delightfully added as encore. Mr. Morley, before leaving Sydney, will make an appearance with the Symphony Orchestra, an event which will be eagerly anticipated.

PROPOSED RAILWAYS.

GILGANDRA TO CURLEWIS.

The expediency of constructing a railway from Gilgandra to Curlewis was further considered by the Public Works Committee yesterday.

Mr. William Doel stated that he was in favour of the construction of the suggested line. There was plenty of land around the district of the proposed route that would be suitable for grazing purposes.

Mr. Stead, colliery manager, Curlewis, said the district of Curlewis had the prospect of a great future in so far as the output of coal was concerned.

The question of constructing a railway from Thirool to Hillston was also considered.

Mr. J. A. B. Wade, Commissioner for Water Conservation and Irrigation, said he was in favour of the route from Thirool to Hillston.

TARALGA DISTRICT.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman A. C. Cocks, M.L.A.), spent the week-end in the Goulburn district, and during his visit was waited on by a number of residents of Taralga, who were successful in enlisting his sympathy in their efforts to secure railway communication.

The Lord Mayor said yesterday that it had been declared by an expert that the Taralga district was equal to the very best potato districts in Tasmania, and in an ordinary season at least 30,000 tons could be sent away from the locality.

A TUMUT ESTATE.

Probate has been granted of the will of George Frederick Grill, late of Tumut, general merchant, who died on December 5 last. The estate is valued at 37,635 14s 1d. The testator appointed his wife, Amy Elizabeth Grill, his cousin, George Cyril Trewella Grill, and his manager, Frederick Lawrence Baker, of Tumut, executors and trustees. He directed that his property should be sold, subject to the discretion of the trustees, and the net income be paid to his wife so long as she remained his widow. In the event of her marriage, the proceeds were to be divided equally between herself and her children. There was a further provision that on either her death or remarriage certain property at Erskineville should pass to his daughter, Catherine Henrietta. Bequests of £100 each were provided for Herbert Blundell, of Marrickville, Ada Matilda Bentley, wife of Arthur Bentley, of Cowra, and his cousin, Amelia Henrietta Grill.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A.R. (Unanderra).—Your inquiry as to the best time to set eggs, so that the pullets will lay in April, May, and June, has been frequently answered in this column. With rare exceptions, pullets from healthy and vigorous parents, of a good laying strain, if properly cared for, will commence to lay when about five months old. Those hatched in April, May, and June will lay a little earlier; while October, November, and December hatches will not lay under six months of age. The former generally moult in the months you mention; while the latter will lay right on. It is not so much the time the pullets are hatched, as the care exercised in housing and feeding during the winter months that gives the desired results.

The results of the laying competition conducted by the Government at the Hawkesbury College for last month were very much lower than those for the corresponding month of the previous year. No doubt the heavy rains caused the falling off in all sections.

The scores of the leading pens were as follows: Monthy prizes: Mrs. E. Seaysbrook, A. W. Waine, Mrs. E. J. Hunt, and D. Salter, divide. Third year hens: Mrs. E. Seaysbrook, R. H. Stewart, H. J. Holier, M. Venard, and R. Boardman. Second year hens: S. Champion, H. J. E. Peters, W. J. Ransley, A. W. Waine, and C. Bloomfield. Twelfth annual competition: Mrs. E. J. Hunt (Langshans), D. Salter (W. Leghorns), Burrowes and Lovegrove (B. Orpingtons), W. H. Forsyth (Silver Wyandottes), E. Goddard (Langshans), A. Hollier (B. Orpingtons), and F. A. Hollier (Minorcas).

Mr. C. J. Turner's monthly sale of pure poultry, held last Wednesday, was the best so far this season. All the popular breeds were well represented, and of excellent quality throughout. There was keen competition, especially for picked lots, and the prices realised were as follows:—White Leghorns, to 23s; Black Orpingtons, from 7s 6d to 14s; Silver Wyandottes, to 9s; and Indian Game, 7s 6d to 11s 6d. Other breeds ranged from 5s to 10s each. Inferior birds, as usual, brought low prices.

The high rates which have ruled for eggs during the last two months are still being maintained. Early last week prices dropped, but the cold snap experienced caused them to again advance. Best brands of new-laids realised from 2s 7d to 2s 9d per dozen at auction, while Sussex-street agents found no difficulty in getting the above prices for best graded lots. These exceptional figures are being reflected in the case of cold store supplies, and those known as fresh country and river lots, the values quoted ranging from 1s 6d to 2s per dozen.

GRADING TABLE POULTRY.

Those engaged in the poultry industry are often puzzled at the difference in the prices received for different consignments, although there may not be any change in the market values, as published in the press from day to day. The reason is simply a want of grading on the part of the consignor. As an illustration, Jones has six pairs to dispose of, and puts them before the buyer in the auction room. Three pairs plump young cockerels, say, 4 to 4½ lb weight each bird, would at the current rates bring 8s per pair; two pairs of old hens (heavy weights) would fetch 5s per pair; the other two, say, old rooters, 2s 6d the pair; a total amount for the six pairs of £1 16s 6d. Brown has also six pairs similar to those sent in by Jones; but he puts his lot all together in one pen, and the auctioneer will have a hard job to get 5s per pair for the mixed lot—total account sale, £1 10s. This is no exaggeration, and observation at any of the auction rooms where poultry is sold will bear out the statement. The up-to-date poultry raiser is careful that each lot is of the same colour, size, and variety, and put into separate pens accordingly. Many breeders make the mistake of keeping their cockerels too long—from 3¾ to 4½ lb is the most profitable weight; but they must be young and fleshy to bring fancy prices. Consignments from a distance in Government or large coops (if pens are available) are invariably graded by the employees. Some of them are very expert at the work, and in striking contrast to the local suburban farmer who just throws the poor birds into the pens anyhow. Hens should also be as nearly uniform as possible. Old rooters should always be sold separately. These remarks apply to ducks as well as fowls.

DEMONSTRATION TRAINS.

Demonstration trains and moving pictures are the latest methods of teaching the science of poultry culture. In Great Britain these trains are arranged by the agricultural societies, and travel throughout the country, covering over 1000 miles before returning to headquarters. The railway companies make complete arrangements, and use their finest vans for the poultry, as well as providing restaurant cars for the staff of the society. Representatives of the Board of Agriculture, the county councils, and county education committees accompany the moving poultry farm to give lectures and instruction.

In America the work is carried out by the staff of the State experiment stations. In addition to the trains there is a moving picture poultry farm show to illustrate the right and wrong methods of poultry raising.

It will probably be some time before the New South Wales poultry farming community will see demonstration trains going from place to place to give them the needful instruction in the art of making poultry pay, but they can rely on having the moving picture poultry farm in the near future.

A practical enthusiast of many years' standing is making arrangements to have the latter method put into practice. His intention is to have films taken at the most likely establishment to suit his purpose.

THE CYPHERS CUP.

The hon. secretary of the Poultry, Pigeon, and Canary Club of New South Wales, Mr. L. L. Ramsay, writes:—

I am instructed by my committee to ask you to be good enough to place the true facts in reference to the Cyphers Cup award at our 1912 show before your readers, which are as follows:—At that show, in the usual course of judging, the Cyphers Cup was awarded by the judges to the bird which, in their opinion, was the best in the show. It happened that the winner was an imported Silver Wyandotte, shown by J. H. Hemsworth. The conditions state that the cup is open only to Australian-bred birds. It was not until the last day of the show that the error was noticed, and it was then too late to rejudge, consequently a cup winner for that year lapsed. At the first committee meeting after the show Mr. Hemsworth brought the matter forward, stating that he made no claim to the cup, and was immediately withdrawing all advertisements wherein he announced he had won the cup in question. The fact of the advertisement referred to appearing in the Parramatta schedule was an oversight, and this he reported to the committee at their last meeting held on 21st ult. In the list of special prizes in our 1913 schedule it will be seen that in the list of winners attached to the Cyphers Cup no award is marked for 1912.

THE CHARGE FOR EMPTIES.

A large and representative meeting of the Hoxton Park poultry farmers was held on Saturday evening at Mr. Padmore's store. Mr George Mann presided. The meeting was called to protest against what was described as the unnecessary charge about to be made by some of the Sussex-street commission agents who are members of the Dairy Produce Selling Agents' Association, namely, 3d per case for all empties returned to the consignor. This charge, which is to cover the expenses incurred by the agents in keeping a record of the cases until returned, was considered excessive. It was stated that very few cases were lost, and these were usually lost in transit, and not because the buyer failed to return them. Those present thought that the usual 5 per cent. commission was ample to cover all expenses.

A deputation was appointed to interview the agents.

NOTES.

The Bulldog Club of New South Wales provided an enjoyable outing on Saturday for lovers of the "national" breed. There was an attendance of about 150. Among the ladies present were Mesdames M'William (wife of the club's president), W. T. White, T. A. Griffin (hon. secretary Ladies' Kennel Club), H. Lord, A. H. Cunningham, A. W. Wilkins, and P. S. Pemell. Dr. Furnival, who judged, was painstaking. Lord Roberts, looking better than ever, was preferred in open dogs to the runner-up, Kilburn Peter (imp.), and Centurion (imp.). Mr. Ekin, the owner of the winner, was congratulated on his success. During the afternoon refreshments were served to the visitors.

The prize certificates of the Bulldog Club are a novelty to Sydney exhibitors. These documents are worded in legal terms. The text of them is as follows: "To whosoever these presents may come, be it known that —— having competed in the —— class, and being judged in the manner prescribed by the rules of the Bulldog Club, was awarded first prize. In good faith, therefore, this certificate is issued to certify the facts above set forth." Name of owner and date of show follow.

Mr. J. Maude has consented to judge Australian terriers at the coming show of the Sydney Silky, Yorkshire, and Australian Terrier Club. Mr. Crane, who was asked to judge the other two breeds, will not be able to do so. The members will meet on Friday to discuss show matters.

Some time ago Mr. G. L. Luck, of Adelaide, imported the collie Billesley Bayardie from Mr. H. E. Packwood, one of England's foremost breeders. Word is now to hand that Mr. Luck has just received from Mr. Packwood a collie bitch named Billesley Beatrice. He has had "Luck's luck" in getting with the bitch eight puppies (seven dogs) by the English crack, Billesley Bandit.

Mr. J. A. Dickson, of Canley Vale, last month transferred the following deerhounds: Waltz, to Mr. M. Mackay, Coolabah; Speed, to Mr. A. J. Dawson, Edgeroi, Narrabri; Ayrshire Mavis and Moncrieffe Kisber, to Mr. E. M. Haute, Cairns, Queensland; Kismet, to Mr. C. F. Bates, Ben Lomond; Embracer, to Mr. J. Campbell, Pengilly, Quirindi; Minembah and Catherine, to Mr. Tyson Donelly, Toowoomba; Finn, to Mr. B. C. Lloyd, Inglewood, Queensland; Foxey, to Mr. H. Murkins, Gulgong; Macdonald Chieftain, to S. Newlands, Clarence River; Model, to Mr. P. J. Guilfoyle, Rowena; Capture, to Mr. J. A. Atkinson, Mudgee.

There was a large attendance of members at a meeting of the Australian Scotch Collie Club, held at the Railway Hotel on the 2nd instant. The president (Mr. W. R. Stallwood) occupied the chair. Messrs. Walker, Cosgrove, and Benard were elected members. Professor Johnston was elected a life-member, and Messrs. Ruthven, Walker, and M'Kenzie hon. members for the ensuing year in recognition of their valuable assistance at the recent Scotch evening and social held in aid of the club fund. It is the intention of the club to hold a show at an early date, when special inducement in prizes will be offered exhibitors.

The Victorian Bulldog Society will hold its first annual show in the Guild Hall, Melbourne, on the 21st instant. Mr. J. Lindley, an English bulldog man, will act as judge. The prize list is attractive, and on a graduated scale. Puppies get prizes of 15s, 7s 6d, and 5s; limit and Australian, 20s, 10s, and 15s; open, 42s, 21s, and 10s 6d. There are, in addition, special trophies, challenge cups, etc.

Mr. R. J. Oehr, secretary of the Victorian Poultry and Kennel Club, forwards the prize schedule of the club's July show. The classes number 375. Fox-terriers have 32 classes, the "wires" having half of them. Bull-terriers, with 20 classes, show the strength of that breed; collies have 25, including five for the smooth-coated variety, which are not known at Sydney shows; English, Irish, and Gordon setters have 34 classes. These breeds make a splendid display at Melbourne shows. Kelpies have seven classes, and cattle-dogs four. Other classes are bulldogs (16), pointers (14), and sporting spaniels (27). Mr. A. W. Wilkins, of Sydney, will judge the bulldogs, Mr. S. Wrathall fox-terriers, Mr. F. D. Helin Australian terriers, skyes, Scottish greyhounds, cockers, and fields; Mr. R. A. Ashe, collies; Mrs. W. H. Waters, Pomeranians; and Mr. G. M. Duncan most of the other breeds.

Miss A. Mackay writes:—Through the medium of your kennel column, may I ask prospective exhibitors at the forthcoming stock dog show (to be held at the R.A. Society's ground on July 4 and 5) to please take the trouble to fill in registration and entry forms themselves before coming to the office. Filling in these forms can only be done satisfactorily with plenty of time to attend to details, which details cannot be properly dealt with by the secretary at lightning speed, especially when others are waiting to be attended to—all more or less vague in their minds as to what they wish recorded on the forms. Speaking from a full experience, I find exhibitors most thoughtless in many respects, and though I am always ready to help any who don't "know the ropes" well enough to fill in forms themselves, there are many who come with blank forms to be filled in by the secretary, only as a result of pure laziness. I once read a contribution entitled "The Troubles of a Music Teacher," but they are as nothing to those of a kennel club secretary (honorary of course). And if human nature discloses its weakness and subtleties to the former, what does it do when entry forms supply date of birth as well as parentage of exhibits, while the name of breeder is recorded "unknown"?

HOW TO TREAT PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS.

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water, and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation, and clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness, yellow, oily, mothy, and other unwholesome conditions of the skin.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. M., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

FARM AND STATION.

HANDLING WHEAT.

The drastic criticism of existing methods of handling wheat, as given by the American bulk handling expert, will not come as a surprise to those who have any knowledge of this matter. Mr. G. T. Burrell simply echoes what has been said in these columns for years, what has been complained of by growers, and by at least a section of the trade, but which has been ignored by successive Governments. The criticism is not the least bit too strong, and is interesting as showing the impression created in the mind of one accustomed to modern methods of handling grain. It is also significant that such a short examination of conditions in the country should have furnished reason for this drastic comment. But Mr. Burrell will find the same things right through the wheat belt, unless it be in districts that had the misfortune to have a short crop. The railways are at least impartial to the degree that the same wasteful system prevails on all sides.

What will now be awaited with keen expectation is the expert's report on the cost and possibility of remedying the present state of things quickly. It has been common knowledge that it was time we altered our system, and got in line with other progressive countries, and what is wanted is a practical scheme, showing the exact cost and the best lines to go on. The report should be able, presumably, to let us know what would be the result of applying the elevator system to present railway facilities, and we will then be able to see if it is correct to assert that duplication and other necessary means of alleviating the present congestion must come before the bulk handling system is introduced. It will be serious indeed if this is the case, for such improvements take time, and will mean considerable expenditure. But we can see no reason to anticipate any such development. Bulk handling is admittedly a quicker and easier manner of shifting grain than the bag system that we endure. It must then surely follow that if we can shift a certain quantity of wheat with present facilities, we will at least shift as much or more under the bulk handling system. We can certainly be no worse off, and, in addition, as we have previously pointed out, the loss and waste that has so amazed Mr. Burrell will be avoided when the wheat is stacked in elevators instead of being in the open or under sheds as at present. The latter consideration alone is sufficient to warrant an alteration as soon as possible, and, while other railway improvements must be attended to at the earliest moment, and it is obvious that it will be some time before transport arrangements in this State are satisfactory, the wheatgrowers can be depended upon to recognise that they have everything to gain by the speedy introduction of the bulk handling system, even if worked in conjunction with present inadequate facilities. The fact that the Commission appointed by the Victorian Government to inquire into the matter of handling wheat has recommended the installation of the bulk handling system is of particular interest at this juncture. The Commission advises sending commissioners to different parts of the world to obtain full advice regarding the transport of wheat. It also advances, as an answer to the objection that may be forthcoming in regard to the wheat yield not being large enough to warrant the change suggested, that possibly Victoria, New South Wales, and South Australia might co-operate in the matter of introducing bulk handling. The suggestion is well worthy of the fullest consideration, as such co-operation would be important from a shipping standpoint, and economical in every way. As it is, the indications of coming change in our methods of handling wheat are most promising, and we should be seen in sight of the end of the bag system.

WASTE ON THE FARMS.

In an article under the above heading in the May number of the "Agricultural Gazette" Mr A. H. E. M'Donald deals with a practical subject of considerable importance to farmers. The contention that the waste which takes place on many farms, one might safely say the large majority of farms, amounts to far more in the aggregate than is generally realised. It exists in many directions, for under the heading of waste comes lower production than is possible by good cultivation, failure to conserve fodder, or to carry the full amount of stock that could be done with good management, to improve the quality of stock from a productive standpoint, and so on. It is, indeed, a very long and formidable list, and represents an enormous amount of money, as we have pointed out at different times. It is all a matter of waste, whether that is recognised or not. Mr. M'Donald, however, deals with the subject from another standpoint, and one that must be appreciated. Deterioration in machinery and harness, owing to lack of proper care, and the loss through bad fences, are examples given that are of every day occurrence, and which all mount up. The matter is well worth attention, for, as Mr. M'Donald says:—"It is attention to detail which spells success with the farmer as with every other business man. A glance at the farm will tell whether the owner is prosperous. On the well-managed property which is paying, as distinguished from the one which is merely providing a living, everything is spick-and-span. Often the difference between the farms of two men, who have had equal opportunities, is remarkable. One is well improved, the fences are good, gates are properly hung, windmills lift the water from the wells, barns and sheds are commodious, and the homestead is comfortable; while on the other everything is out of repair, and about the only building on the place is a small house."

BUSH TONICS.

There is little doubt that the Australian bush contains many plants possessing valuable medicinal properties. The majority do not seem to have been the subject of extensive, if any, research or test. The advance of chemical abstraction, as distinguished from herbal extraction, and the consequent manufacture of chemical remedies from cheap and handy substances, is probably responsible for this want of inquiry. It is perhaps an old fashioned notion that vegetable, or herbal decoctions, are purer and better than the mysterious compounds of the laboratory, but it is a notion that clings. The bushman of Australia often has most faith in the home cures of his beloved bush. It may be a reasonable faith. Hundreds of people think there is no better tonic than that obtained from an infusion of the common pink-flowering herb Erythrea Australis, that so many call century. Wine shops in the cities sell tonic wine made from steeping this weed in Madeira, which bids fair to knock quinine wines out of the market. A little labiate weed, Gratiola peruviana, takes the place amongst old wives' cures that brooklime had in the old world. It is sometimes used to make a decoction used as a "tea," for the relief of asthma. Bitters are infused from plants known as native hops, a name given alike to Godenia ovata, aviesia latifolia, and D. corymbosa, probably on the principle that all good things have a nasty taste. Some people profess to find virtue in the bark of the Australian sassafras, and the leaves of the eucalyptus are undoubted cure-alls. There is nothing like the juice of common bracken for the relief of ant bites—unless it be faith. Whether these virtues really exist should be worth proving.

One of Australia's native shrubs, known in Queensland—where it grows—as the fever bark, has, however, been thoroughly exploited and submitted to careful research. This small tree—it often grows to a height of 40 feet—is not confined only to Queensland, but is found in the northern and north-western parts of New South Wales. Scientifically it is known as Alstonia constricta, and was so named by the late Baron von Mueller. The name of the genus Alstonia was given by the renowned botanist Robert Brown, in honour of Charles Alston, a professor of medicine and botany in the University of Edinburgh, in the middle of the eighteenth century—a period when medicine and botany ran more hand in hand than they do now. The bark of this shrub has been used with great success in typhoid and other fevers, and as a substitute for quinine and cinchona. It has properties resembling both quinine and strychnine. Backblockers in Queensland know the tree also by the names bitter bark and quinine bark, and in the far north as whitewood. Alstonia constricta belongs to a genus all the species of which exclude a white sap of the nature of rubber, and from one found in Fiji, A. plumosa, a kind of rubber is obtained. There are two other well-known species, A. spectabilies, which grows in Borneo and Java, and A. scholaris, a native of India and the Malays. Both possess the medicinal qualities of the Queensland tree. A. scholaris, a tree which grows plentifully in India, and reaches a height, in instances, of 80 feet, produces a very hard, black, close grained wood, which on that account is often called lignum scholare. The specific name scholare has a peculiar origin, for the weed being so dark and close grained, it was used for school slates. The wood of the Queensland Alstonia constricta is white, or light yellow, and very liable to warp. Collecting the bark is quite an industry, for the produce is sent all over the world for medicinal purposes.

ITEMS.

A year or so ago Mr. Sedgwick, of New Zealand, arranged to bring from London 50 town boys for farm work. The scheme is pronounced to have been a great success.

A South Australian farmer has proved the great value of peas for topping up sheep for the market. He purchased 114 lambs at Christmas time at 7s each, and turned them into a field of peas which were too damaged to harvest. When fattened they realised 21s 11d each.

The butchers in the northern State are falling in with the conditions of the new meat regulations, which made drastic changes in slaughterhouses and shops, the latter having to be closed in and protected from dust and flies. Queensland had been a long way behind in this wholesome sanitary reform.

The tobacco crop in northern New South Wales was not equal to that of many preceding seasons, the prolonged dry weather in the late summer being generally detrimental. Reports from Fraser's Creek, in the Inverell district, and from Texas (Q.) indicate that the second crop was almost a failure.

The tobacco expert employed by the Queensland Government, Mr. R. S. Nevill, will complete his term of service at the end of June, and return to America after 16 years in the Commonwealth. In that time the industry has made steady progress, but has been kept back by the number of Chinese engaged in the business in the northern State, as they created a prejudice against it in the minds of white men.

The tobacco expert in Queensland considers that tobacco from the heaviest to the finest aromatic types can be grown in the Texas district, and on the land adjoining it across the border in this State. He considers that tobacco should be grown as an auxiliary, and not as a main crop. Curing methods have so far been too crude; but Mr. Nevill thinks that Australia can grow all she needs.

An officer of the Lands Department in Queensland, who has given a great deal of attention to the subject, estimates that in that State the prickly pear, either densely or sparsely, has invaded 30 million acres of land. The area put down in New South Wales by the same writer is eight million acres.

A big reform is to be effected at the Gatton Agricultural College (Q.). Most of the existing dairy herds are to be cleared out, and the new principal is purchasing substitutes in New Zealand. It is intended to raise the standard for students, so as to turn out future dairy factory managers. Some attention will also be given to sheep, and improved cultivation will also be a feature of the college's work. The new principal is a man of energy.

Victoria has its irrigation failures as well as its irrigation successes. The former cases are mostly due to the farms being too large, which is apropos of the proposal in this State to increase the size of some of the Murrumbidgee blocks. The holders must pay their rates, which come to about £1 per acre, and if this sum has to be paid on land which is not producing anything the losses will be easily understood.

Western Canada, working in unison with the British buyers, is trying to extend the wool industry. The idea of the buyers is to get the business of marketing carried out in Bradford, to compensate for the falling off in the sales there of Australian wool. The Government of Canada is providing three experts to class the wool before it is exported. It is also proposed by the Government to pay one-fourth the freights till the industry gets on its feet.

The keeping qualities of lucerne hay is shown by an incident connected with the recent flood, the veracity of which is vouched for by a Maitland farmer. This farmer lost nearly all his hay in the flood, and had to fall back on a few bales which he had in the top of a barn. This hay dated back nearly to the '93 flood. He cut the bales, and found the hay in excellent condition, and the cattle ate the lucerne in preference to some new hay he had got in.

A movement is in progress in Queensland for the holding of a conference of persons directly concerned in prickly pear lands to arrive at some general conclusion regarding the pest so that the Government might embody them in an amending bill to be placed before the next session of Parliament. It is considered by the movers that the legislation at present in existence is not liberal enough in its incidence to induce settlement on pear-infested country to encourage men to select it.

CLIPPING THE TEST.

"Cocky" writes:—I have read with special interest your article re "Clipping the Test" in factories, and your condemnation of such a practice must be appreciated by the "Cockies" if Mr. Evans is sincere he deserves the respect of all cream suppliers, as having set an honourable example in a matter where there is such room for improvement. But as a rule the "cocky" is so innocent and timid that he accepts the "half loaf," in preference to ill-feeling. I would suggest, as a way out of the difficulty, shareholders of a co-operative factory employing a check weighman and tester, as the miners do, or let the Department of Agriculture send out an expert as a detective, and where necessary prosecute the management.

TUMBARUMBA AND BATLOW.

Mr. J. E. Dodds, honorary secretary Batlow West Progress Association, writes:—Mr. C. E. Lee's letter in your columns on May 13 proves that Mr. May is right in his contention that the timber lies on the Batlow side of Tumbarumba, not on the Humula side. He does not, however, give a fair statement of the facts re timber. The two principal out of the three mills he speaks of, are nearer to Batlow than to Tumbarumba. They lie on the slope toward Gilmore, and the whole of their produce to-day is hauled by teams through Batlow to the railway at Tumut or Gilmore. To get it to Tumbarumba they would have to haul it over such rough country that it is very doubtful if it would go there even if Tumbarumba had a railway station. The mountain ash country does not extend beyond the 13-mile limit from Batlow in the direction of Tumbarumba, and that timber represents the biggest asset we have without in any way detracting from the values of messmate and mountain gum timber for their particulars uses. The proposed line from Gilmore to Tumbarumba would go right through the lower slopes of the mountain ash country, and the heart of the messmate and gum country.

We admit that the country from a point about three miles from Batlow on the slope towards Gilmore is inclined to be of a white granite character, as is much of the land round Tumbarumba. It does not attract settlement here at the present time, since there is land of a much better quality available. There is no extent of barren land around Batlow. In rainfall, Batlow also enjoys an advance of 10 inches over Tumbarumba. If one might suggest an alteration to Mr. May, it would be that he should speak of the Batlow road not the Tumbarumba district when dealing with the wealth of timber and the productiveness of the soil.

As regards "the engineering difficulties," some time ago a private syndicate was very anxious to obtain the concession to build and run the railway from Gilmore to Batlow, and it is to be presumed that they had engineers in their employ quite competent to gauge the importance of these difficulties Mr. Lee mentions. I have not heard of any private enterprise being anxious to connect Humula and Tumbarumba by rail. We are just now in the unfortunate position that the Government declines to construct the line or to allow private enterprise to do so.

Mr. R. R. Timmis, Batlow, writes:—Mr. M'Micking takes exception to some remarks by Mr. Dalrymple Hay on the timber resources of Tumbarumba district, and says all the timber is nearer to the Humula-Tumbarumba line than to the Gilmore to Tumbarumba route. If all these sawmills are about Tumbarumba, how is it that the timber for the Public school at Tumbarumba was supplied by a mill in the Gilmore district, only four miles from the proposed Gilmore to Tumbarumba line? Did Mr. M'Micking ever hear of Kopsen and Co.'s sawmill and boat our factory within a stone's throw of the railway line, and not a quarter of a mile from the Gilmore Creek? Mr. M'Micking says there are no sawmills on the Gilmore side, so he cannot know every inch of the country, as he says he does. Tumbarumba was drawing its supply of potatoes from Batlow a year or two ago, and would very likely do so always if they had a railway from Batlow. For Mr. M'Micking's information I may state that Hides and Co. are now moving their mill on to the despised Gilmore Creek.

Mr. O. C. Barbérie, Batlow, writes:—There is no timber worth calling the name on the proposed route from Humula to Tumbarumba. The whole of the timber belt would lie east of proposed line via Gilmore, and as the Humula line comes in on the west side the nearest point to any good timber would be Tumbarumba. The largest mill carts its timber right along the proposed Gilmore line for 12 miles to Tumbarumba, and a second is within a few yards of Gilmore route, both of these on the Gilmore fall. There is still another reason why Tumbarumba should be approached from Gilmore, from a national point of view. It would form a link in a short route from Melbourne to the Federal Capital and Sydney. It only wants the line to be continued from Tumbarumba to Upper Murray, and Tumbarumba would be on a main line, instead of an isolated terminus.

APPRENTICESHIP FOR EMIGRANTS.

"C. L." writes:—The above is the only system that will solve the difficulty attending the successful introduction of a rural population from the older countries. It is really pitiful to see the number of young men—immigrants—now roaming over this State, many of whom are able and willing to do any kind of manual labour, and yet wholly incapable of handling any tool in use on either farm or station. The writer has seen, quite recently, a number of these new arrivals who could not either ride or drive, catch, saddle, or harness a horse, milk a cow, or use any tool in use on the farm. They have been told that there was lots of work for them in the country, and they expect, at least, £1 per week to commence, and complain bitterly of the hard-heartedness of employers who refuse to give them employment on those terms. No doubt there are many fair-minded people in the cities who consider these men will soon learn how to do things if given a chance. The same persons would not think of taking either the country man or woman into their business premises, be it shop or factory, unless as an apprentice, for a term of years, and at a wage ridiculously low in comparison with the wage of country employees, who, in every case, are found in board and lodgings, even though the latter may be rough in comparison with city provisions. And any employer working country property asked is it easy to carry on with the class of immigrant or new chum referred to, will tell you, "I have no time to spare following up and instructing my employees. I may as well do the work myself."

It would not be necessary to fix any lengthy term of apprenticeship for general country work. Many employers are so situated that they could take these new chums, deal fairly and humanely with them, and under certain articled conditions, instruct them for say one year at a nominal wage. I have no doubt many of those young men would learn enough within that time to have a fair start in life and become capable of starting on their own account, in time, should the opportunity come their way. At present men are buffeted about from one employer to another, with absolutely no knowledge of country conditions, often unprovided with the ordinary bushman's outfit, and, worst of all, hated unmercifully by many of their fellow employees, who regard the immigrant as an interloper, who will, they think, in time, according to their narrow doctrine, cut down their wages from the present union rates. It is well-known that the experienced workman has been known to refuse to give any instruction or assistance to the new chum, but rather holds him up to derision when the opportunity occurs.

BETTERMENT LAND TAX.

Mr. John Flanagan, writing with regard to the necessity for railway expansion, asks: "Is the betterment tax advisable?" and writes:—"I make bold to say that had that policy been inaugurated when the line from Sydney to Parramatta was first constructed, and continued as a general railway policy to this day, we would have six millions of population in New South Wales, and a ramification of railway from end to end of it. The farmers, who would chiefly bear the burden of the betterment tax, were willing to shoulder it, so ot can hardly be fairly said that the farmers wanted something for nothing, as is often alleged. Is it too late yet to bring in this betterment tax?"

LAND FOR THE LANDLESS.

Mr. James Witcombe, Hillston, writes:—The 637 applicants, with a total capital of £220,000, applying for 19 blocks of land at Forbes are not the only persons wanting land. There are thousands more in the State and out of it who are ready and willing to go on the land and make it productive. There are also millions of acres awaiting development, almost all of which is first-class agricultural land, especially adapted for wheat-growing, at present locked up from selection—the reason given being that the railway policy is to be determined before the land is made available for settlement. I am referring particularly to the large tract of country to the north of the Murrumbidgee Irrigation Area, in the direction and vicinity of Hillston. For over two years this land has been locked up. Although every visiting Minister for Lands, the Chief Commissioner of Railways, the Government, and the Opposition are agreed that a railway is needed, and that the country is entitled to one, nothing is done. The line from Temora to Barellan has thoroughly justified its construction, as can be seen by the enormous quantity of wheat stacked at the various stations. The extension to Mirool has been passed. Why not continue this line at once and develop this fine stretch of country? There is practically no resumption necessary, no cuttings or embankments are required, as the country is practically level. The cost of construction of a railway would not be great, and would serve over a million acres of land capable of settling from 800 to 1000 families.

FLOODS AND DROUGHTS.

Mr. G. Logue, Tamworth, writes.—As your article dealing with the disaster wrought by the recent Hunter flood very correctly says, the question of flood mitigation resolves itself into a consideration of either reservoirs or channels. This is undoubtedly a question of vital importance, for a recurrence of this disaster at any stage within the next few years would create, apart from the pecuniary loss involved, a feeling of well-founded uneasiness, which would be reflected in decreased production and shrunken values. The flaties were remarkable for a succession of floods, and history may repeat itself, but the conditions then and now are vastly altered, for increase in settlement emphasises the effect of flood or drought. To combat the evils of drought the gradual adoption of irrigation has commended itself to the Hunter River landholders and settlers, and today this practice provides a profitable and permanent employment to a daily swelling host of settlers. The claims of these people for some system of water conservation has for years past engaged departmental attention, but it has now reached a stage when the path of dalliance may be trodden no longer. This to my mind is where the claim of the Lower Hunter dweller and the Maitland dweller joins issue. Both demands are problems of the immediate future, and both are so involved that from their very nature they cannot be considered apart. There are natural sites—one on the Goulburn, and one on the Upper Hunter—where an immense part of the flood waters may be stored, thereby mitigating the effect of the headlong rush, checking and storing up for use during the long summer months this much-needed factor. Such a proposal carried into effect would provide protection against flood and supply an abundance for future irrigation development. There seems to be no ample scope for a commission or committee of experts to inquire into these allied matters of flood protection and water conservation on the Peel, as well as on the Hunter.

CATTLE TICKS AND BLACKS.

Mr. A. C. Waller, of Woodenbong, in the course of a letter to the Kyogle Tick Board, stated:—"I believe that the blacks are to a great measure responsible for the introduction of ticks here, and until some restriction or control is placed on the aborigines so long shall we have the ticks, and if our cattle are dipped every week, while they live. The aborigines are free to go to and from Queensland and bring the ticks with them to our district, viz., the aborigines' home here, and then distribute unintentionally on the settlers' land per medium of their blankets, dogs, etc. About two years past I started dairying here. My land adjoins the aborigines' home. The dividing fence was not quite completed between the two holdings, and occasionally my cows would stray on the blacks' land, and I have seen them lying down near the camps. I had purchased my cows from Tooloom station, and they were only here about one month when the tick inspector came to examine the cattle, and said it was not likely that he would find ticks on them. Imagine our surprise when he pulled 40 ticks off one cow. It was arranged to then examine Mr. Martin's cattle in my yard—that is, his cattle that were on the aborigines' home. About 20 or 30 ticks were found on them. I then told Mr. M'Neil, the inspector, that I believed the ticks came from the blacks' home. It was arranged that my cattle should be kept on my land, and Mr. Martin's on the blacks' home, and at next muster if ticks were on Mr. Martin's cattle and none on my stock we could say the tick came from the blacks' home. There has never been a tick found on my stock since. But at next muster Mr. Martin's cattle that were kept on the blacks' home had ticks."

SCHOOL AGRICULTURE.

SUPERINTENDENT'S ANNUAL REPORT.

The Superintendent of School Agriculture reports that sets of gardening tools and flowers, vegetable, and farm seeds have been supplied to schools on application. Trees and flowering shrubs were supplied by the Botanic Gardens, but in the opinion of the Superintendent of School Agriculture the time has arrived for each school to raise its own supply of trees.

"There is a keen desire," he reports, "by the majority for information on horticulture and floriculture, and this augurs well for the future. There are teachers who have scientifically handled the subject, and among these there is progress; there are others who, through want of knowledge, laboured in vain, and had to start afresh; there are others who, hearing of an intended visit, have cleared up the surroundings, planting pieces of plants, trusting to luck that they might thrive and meet with approval; and there are others whose apathy is so pronounced that they only do what is absolutely necessary, and hence make every excuse imaginable.

"In many districts where the teaching has been systematic, the effect is evident by the neater home surroundings and gardens, and where the growing of varieties of grasses has been demonstrated the pastures have improved."

HANDLING GRAIN.

VICTORIAN COMMISSION'S REPORT.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

The progress report of the Victorian Royal Commission on marketing, transportation, and storage of grain was issued on Friday. The commissioners commend the adoption of the principles of the bulk handling of wheat based on the general lines of the Canadian practice. It is only possible by this means, the report points out, to relieve the wheat producers of Victoria from many serious disadvantages and charges upon their produce. The commissioners are of opinion that as the railways are State-owned and managed if the bulk system be adopted the principle of Government ownership of the utility should obtain; that grain-growing districts be divided into complete units, each to be developed with suitable additional terminal elevator accommodation; that as a commencement country elevators be erected as advised by the Railway Department; that terminal elevators be erected at Williamstown and Geelong, and eventually at Portland.

Pending the inauguration of the bulk system of handling wheat, it is recommended that legislation be introduced next session for the appointment of a wheat standard committee, whose duty shall be to determine the f.a.q. standard of each season. It is also recommended, in order to minimise the losses farmers suffer through the f.a.q. standard being determined late in the season, that consideration be given as to the advisability of fixing an earlier date each season than is usual for the determination of the standard; that the Federal Government be urged to make stricter supervision over the quality of bags imported; that freight charges be compared with the lower ones ruling in New South Wales and revised; that a dock be constructed at the mouth of the Yarra to increase shipping facilities; and that large grain sheds be erected at Geelong.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN WHEAT.

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

The final evidence was taken in respect to wheat-growing by the Dominions Commission before departing to-day for England. Mr. Sutton, Commissioner of the wheat belt, said it contained five million acres which could give an average of 11 to 12 bushels; and to clear expenses, farmers should get from 7 to 8 bushels per acre, with wheat at 3s.

Heavy rains continue to fall, raising greatly the agricultural prospects of the season.

RIPARIAN RIGHTS.

GRAFTON.—A case of importance to landowners on creek frontages was dealt with by the local land board this week. G. Avery applied for a special lease of the bed of Reedy Creek, in the parish of Ulmarra, on which certain properties abut. The creek is dry at times, and grass grows at such periods in its bed. The land applied for by Avery was a strip of considerable length, separating the portions that were on the creek frontage, and the owners of these blocks objected to the granting of the lease. Mr. M'Gurck, on their behalf, contended that the objectors had natural rights to the creeks on which their properties abutted, and it would be unfair to grant the lease of the creek. He argued also that they were riparian owners, and as such held riparian rights to the waters of the creek, and of these they would be deprived if the lease were granted. The board refused to grant the application for the lease, holding that the adjoining owners held riparian rights, and under these were entitled to access to the waters of the creek. If anyone were to be granted a lease of the land covering the bed of the creek it should be the parties who had the adjacent properties.

FIGHTING THE TICK.

MURWILLUMBAH.—As a result of the visit of the chief inspector of stock (Mr. Cowley) to the Tweed, it has been decided to erect 12 additional cattle dips in this district during the winter.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

FOREST REEFS.—The majority of the potato crops, with and without artificial manures, have through the good season shown splendid yields, and many are showing extra large tubers, some over 4lb weight. One grown by Mr. Murphy weighed 8¼lb. Mr. H. Hagar and several others reached eight tons per acre. Potato digging by machinery is making little headway.

MOLONG.—A good number of the farmers in the Yeoval district have left a great deal of their land unsown this season, allowing it to remain in fallow. Others are experimenting in the direction of crops. One disadvantage of the prolific growth of grass is the bursting of stock. Two or three cases have been reported during the last few days where valuable cattle have been found dead. It is anticipated locally that the season's lambing will be a very heavy one.

AT THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, May 9.

A humorous correspondent of one of the daily newspapers claims to have heard one artist saying to another as they walked within Burlington House this week, "Why, they haven't taken away last year's pictures yet." That expresses one form of the annual criticism of the Royal Academy—the exhibitors never change their styles. There are many other forms of criticism. The Royal Academy, in point of fact, is for the critics a regularly recurring incitement to ill-humour. It is never a good exhibition. Nearly always, indeed, it is a bad one, with rare variation towards a standard allowed to be moderate. The foundation trouble, of course, is that the Royal Academy hanging committee, in the first place, does not see eye to eye with the modernists, who believe that the art of painting is only now being discovered, and, in the second place, that so many artists are annually unable to see eye to eye with the hanging committee. On that foundation grievance it is easy to build a dreadful indictment as to the trammelled outlook of British painters; as to their refusal to find the salvation staring them in the face in Paris, at the Grafton Galleries, and at other haunts of the progressives; as to the imbecility of a public that remains stodgily unmoved in face of these things, and, most of all, and bitterest of all, as to the hopelessness of the Royal Academy Exhibition.

The Royal Academy of this year is summed up generally by the critics on those lines. If it is not the worst ever, at least it is a bad as any, or it is merely a vast collection of prettiness relieved here and there by stray good works. The public meanwhile attends Burlington House in crowds every day, and appears to enjoy itself exceedingly well among the 1800 exhibits on the walls. The public, of course, knows very little about art. That is universally agreed. This Royal Academy public, for example, is a very intelligent, very fashionable, very attractive public. It takes Burlington House on the way down Piccadilly from Bond-street. Its cars and carriages throng the great courtyard in front of the Royal Academy. But for all that, it is the same old public, as anyone may hear for himself on any day. It revels in the problem picture of Mr. Collier. It goes steadily in search of the picture of the year. It is all for the subject. In the portrait section it admires this lady because she is so pretty. In the landscape section it agrees or it does not agree that the view reproduced is charming. Of the technique of painting, of drawing, of composition, of colour, of the artist's imagination, of the visionary gleam he pursued, of his insight or his skill, they know little, and care less. They like or they do not like his work because it is "nice." They are the same old people.

But, for all that, it is a question whether they are more wrong than the critics. For the critics would have the Royal Academy, if not a freakish display of the unintelligible which is art's last word for the time being, at least something that would drive from it most of its present exhibitors and befog the public. A recent book on Cubism, for example—the latest development of the modernists—explains its system as follows: "The diversity of the relation of line to line must be indefinite; on this condition it incorporates quality, the incommensurable sum of the affinitive perceived between that which we discern and that which pre-exists within us." This will probably be found hard to understand; but it is far more intelligible than a Cubist picture. What in the world should we gain, therefore, if the Royal Academy committee went the whole hog, and became converts to Cubism, with Burlington House a repository for its aberrations? No; the Royal Academy is better as it is. It gives undoubted enjoyment to large numbers of people; it enables many quite gifted men to express themselves in the traditional way that is their only way, and so expressing themselves, to command a sufficient patronage of their work.

For the Australian who remembers what the exhibitions of his own art societies were like, moreover, the Royal Academy is not only not a bad show, but is by comparison a collection of great works. In the present exhibition, for example, are pictures which, if they were available to our National Gallery, would profitably replace the majority of those now hanging there. When these London critics, that is to say, denounce the Royal Academy, it should be remembered that they are tilting at accepted theories of art expression and not at individual execution of pictures. There are, of course, some quite mediocre exhibits on the walls of Burlington House, but there are scores of beautiful pictures and hundreds of examples of highly skilled work. Mr. Sargent, for instance, is a great artist, and there are several fine examples of his genius, not portraiture, it is true (save in one case, a "Rosie Marie") in which he is a consummate master, but figure subjects and landscapes. Of portraits there are some notable examples, one of the best, undoubtedly, Mr. S. W. Lambert's "Miss Olive Cunninghame Graham." Mr. Orpen has a lovely unnamed portrait, and Mr. Shannon, Sir Hubert Herkomer, Mr. Lavery (whose big Royal group is by no means his best picture), and Mr. Glehn, all contribute outstanding work in this regard.

In imaginative treatment of figure subjects the mass of undistinguished pictures always bulks large, but there is much that is outside that category. Mr. Sargent is prominent here, and so are Mr. Charles Sims (one of whose exhibits has been purchased by the Chantrey Bequest committee), Mr. Hemy, Mr. Stott, Mr. Bundy (whose "Finance," a social satire, will be one of the most discussed pictures of the year), Mr. Appleyard, and Mr. Young Hunter. There is the usual crowd of landscapes, and here again many successes are won by well-known methods, as in the case of Sir Alfred East's "Etna in Sunshine," Mr. Sims's delightful "Month of May," Mr. Hughes Stanton's "The Mill: Moonrise," Mr. Adrian Stoke's "Spring Melody," Mr. Clausen's "Waiting for the Spring," and many others. Mr. Collier's popular problem of this year is "The Fallen Idol," as to which it is not known whether the bowed lady or the sternly daring man better deserves that fame. Mr. Napier Hemy is once more to the front with breezy sea-pictures, the black and white display is large and not very interesting, and the sculpture section is interesting without being distinguished. A goodly number of Australian artists are represented in this Royal Academy of 1913, which, for all its faults and all the critics' condemnation of them, is drawing great attendances, and will continue to draw them until August Bank Holiday.

BLACKS' CARVINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I read an account in your issue of yesterday of a visit of a party to see a blacks' carving at Maroubra—giving the information that these carvings were done with Jasper knives, the material of which could not have been obtained nearer than Bathurst. This oversets a theory I have always taken as a matter of course, namely, that these carvings—if the lines cut in the rocks I have seen may be dignified by such a name—were done by the ordinary blue metal tomahawk, which we find from time to time on the coast. These tomahawks were made, no doubt, I thought, from the blue metal in the quarry at Bondi. As to these quarries, "white metal quarries," which I take it are only blue metal covered with freestone, formed into columnar shape by the action of the heated blue metal underneath, to my knowledge, one occurs at Bondi, where the blue metal can be seen; another on the road from Waverley to Randwick; another at Maroubra; another near Botany Heads; and another at Port Hacking Heads. But Bondi is, I believe, the only one of these where the blue metal can be seen naturally, because I suppose it is just on the edge of the cliff, and the sea and weather have eaten into the surroundings. I have found blackfellows' skulls with these tomahawks on the coast. For all I know "Jasper" may be the correct name for what I call "blue metal."

ALLEGED MURDER.

MYRTLE CALDWELL'S DEATH.

ACCUSED FOUND GUILTY.

At the Central Criminal Court, sitting at Darlinghurst, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of 12, William George Wright, aged 22, was placed upon his trial, charged with the murder of Myrtle Stella Caldwell, aged 22, at Fig Tree, on the Lane Cove River, on February 15, 1913.

Mr. Herbert Harris conducted the prosecution for the Crown. Mr. Moriarty, instructed by Mr. Kemmis, defended the accused.

On opening the case, Mr. Harris said the accused and the deceased were sweethearts. Accused arrived in Australia about six months prior to the date of the young woman's death. He had been a steward on one of the Shire liners.

David Caldwell, father of the deceased Myrtle Caldwell, stated that the accused and the deceased had kept company for about seven months. Accused asked witness if there would be any objection to marriage between them. That was about a month before the girl's death. Deceased had replied that she would always be a friend to him, but she could be nothing more. Witness told accused that he could not consent to the marriage.

To Mr. Moriarty: The witness stated that he knew of a serious mining accident in which accused had been a victim in England some years ago. He had been cut about very badly. Witness had told his deceased daughter that accused was not physically fit to marry. His daughter, said witness, had not been nagged at about marriage with the accused, and had never complained about being prevented from doing so. She had always said she would not marry him.

Dr. Sheldon stated that the cause of death was a bullet wound in the brain, the point of entrance being the right temple. The size of the wound corresponded with the revolver produced.

To Mr. Moriarty: From the direction the bullet took, and the position of the wound, witness would say that it could have been self-inflicted.

Arthur John Williams, commercial traveller, stated that he had a confectionery shop at Leichhardt. Deceased was employed in the shop. Accused often came to the shop to see her. At 9 o'clock on the morning of February 13 witness went to the shop. Accused was asleep on the couch, and when awakened asked if Miss Caldwell might have that afternoon and evening off. Deceased said she was not anxious to go off that day, and told witness to suit his own convenience. Witness said he would come back at lunch-time, and decide whether deceased could go off that day. He returned at 2 p.m. The shop was locked up, and the key had been taken away.

Albert Hyde, labourer, living at Longueville, stated that when passing a shelter-shed on the way to the Lane Cove River, he heard groans from inside the shed. Entering the shed he found the deceased lying there bleeding. Witness informed the police.

Constable William Gorman, stationed at Longueville, stated that he saw the deceased in the shed. She had a bullet wound in the right temple, and there were also some marks and scratches on the throat. Witness subsequently saw accused at the Prince Alfred Hospital. Witness said accused spoke first at the hospital, and asked witness: "Have you come to arrest me for shooting Myrtle?" Accused then went on to tell the constable of the incidents of the outing on February 13. After detailing the trip, accused concluded: "I took a revolver from my pocket, and put my arm around her neck. She screamed and said, 'Don't, Will, don't; I will marry you.' I said: 'No you won't,' and I shot her. I heard someone coming and ran away. I had a lemon squash at the refreshment-room at the wharf, and then caught a boat. On the boat I wrote something on a postcard which I intended to send to Myrtle's mother. The reason I did the deed was because I could not marry her myself, and I wanted to make sure no one else would."

Constable Weeks stated that while in Prince Alfred Hospital accused said to him: "They tried to make things unpleasant for me, so I made up my mind to make things unpleasant for them. I took her down the harbour, and up the Lane Cove River. I kissed and cuddled her, and squeezed her tight with one arm, and tried to choke her. When she was unconscious, I put a bullet into her head. I then came back, and put a bullet into my own brain. I'm sorry I did it to Myrtle, but not to myself."

To Mr. Moriarty: I would not say the accused was rightly conscious.

Constable Alexander stated that he and Sergeant McDonald brought accused from the Callan Park Hospital on April 25. On the way to North Sydney Police Station accused said he would be glad when it was all over, and if it had not been for Myrtle's sister it would not have happened. In a pocket of one of accused's coats, witness found a letter, which was read in court as follows:—"We are both driven daft by one and another of you. Myrtle is my only friend. I have no relations at all, so no wonder I stuck to her. We won't part. She won't part with me, and I won't part with her, so we will die together. Myrtle says good-bye, and to forget her. She is tired of life." The letter was signed "Will," "Myrtle." Beneath this, in a different handwriting, was written: "Good-bye, Ma; taking my own life with Will."

David Caldwell, father of the accused, during his evidence, denied that any portion of the letter found by Constable Alexander in April was written in the handwriting of his deceased daughter.

THE DEFENCE.

Dr. Frederick Arthur Maguire stated:—I was practising at Prince Alfred Hospital. The accused was admitted between 1 and 2 a.m. on February 14. He was in a semi-conscious condition. There was a bullet wound behind his right ear. There was no mark of exit. On February 16 an X ray photograph was taken, and the bullet was located, embedded in the brain. No attempt has been made to remove it. During February 14, 15, and 16 accused was in a semi-conscious condition, and complained of great pain in the head. He remained under my care till February 28. He was then removed to Callan Park. During the first few days he was raving practically the whole time. The police did not address any questions to accused in my presence. I told Constable Gorman he had better not see the accused. The constable said he had the Superintendent's permission.

William Henry Coutie, superintendent of Callan Park Hospital, stated that accused seemed depressed, and declined to answer questions, but did so when pressed.

To Mr. Harris, witness said they were in doubt at Callan Park as to whether the accused did remember or not. Witness had heard Constable Gorman's evidence, and saw no reason to doubt that accused was quite rational when he was interviewed by the constable.

William George Wright, the accused, stated on oath: I suffer frequently from fits; my body is all injured, and marked all over as a result of a serious mining accident in England some years ago. Witness described his injuries. He said he had suffered a compound fracture of both legs and both arms, and a number of other very serious injuries. He was a native of Northumberland, and when he first came out here he met Myrtle Caldwell. They had frequently spoken of marriage, and it was not until he had told Mr. Caldwell all about his injuries that any objection was raised to it. During December there was a disturbance at the Caldwell's, and deceased's eldest sister told her father to tell Myrtle to give him (accused) up. On another occasion, Myrtle met him in the street crying, and said she had left home because there was always trouble about him (accused). A little later, when he was at deceased's home, he found a bottle containing lysol in a fireplace. Deceased told him the bottle contained lysol, and that it was for her to take to end her life, because everybody in the house was getting on to her, and the only time she had any peace was when she was in the shop or out with the accused. On another occasion he found her crying in the shop. She said it was the same old trouble. Morning, noon, and night she got no peace. She said: "I intend to do away with myself." Accused replied: "If you do I will." It was then that the letter produced and read in Court was written. Portion of it was in deceased's handwriting. On the following Tuesday he secured a ship. She asked him could she go away with him. He said: "If your father and mother agree I will willingly take you, but I promised them I would neither marry you nor take you away without their consent."

Accused then described the events of February 13. He said deceased and himself took a car to the railway. At the suggestion of deceased, they went up the Lane Cove River. The conversation was about his going away. She urged him not to go away. When they sat down on some rocks he had the revolver in his hip-pocket. He removed it into his right-hand coat pocket. Deceased was leaning back in his arms. They decided to walk down to the shop for a drink, but deceased said she was not very well, and they sat in the shelter shed on the road. Accused said that he then walked out of the shed. While walking back he heard the report of a revolver. Feeling for his own revolver, and finding it gone, he rushed into the shed. Deceased was then lying down with the revolver beside her. He picked her up, and tried to bring her round, but she did not speak at all. "I was pretty near mad," continued accused, "I thought she was dead, and put the revolver in my mouth intending to shoot myself. Just then two girls came past the shed, and I put the revolver in my pocket, and walked down towards the landing-stage, and there took the boat for Circular Quay." When he got near to the deceased's home he saw Mrs. Caldwell standing on the street corner, but hadn't the heart to tell her. He then went home, and wrote the postcard produced. Then he put the pistol in his mouth and pulled the trigger, but it did not go off. He then put it behind his head and pulled the trigger. He remembered nothing more till he awoke in Prince Alfred Hospital, and saw a policeman beside the bed. He had no recollection of making any statement of any kind. He did not remember anything that took place at the hospital.

Dr. Coutie, recalled, said accused told him while at Callan Park that they had decided to shoot themselves, but the girl was too nervous and could not do it, so he shot her.

David Caldwell and Rita Caldwell, father and sister of the deceased, were recalled, and stated that there was no truth in the statement that the deceased was hectored or annoyed at home. She was not depressed, but appeared always to be perfectly happy and contented.

After a quarter of an hour's deliberation, the jury returned into court with a verdict of guilty.

Asked if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon him according to law, the prisoner, in a firm, clear voice, said: "Only this: Now that I have been found guilty, sir, I hope the death sentence will be carried out."

Addressing the prisoner, his Honor said: "No other verdict was possible to the jury, with the evidence in this case." Sentence of death was then recorded.

ADULT SUFFRAGE FOR GREATER SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Government having decided for adult suffrage for a Greater Sydney, the commission which is now sitting is precluded from having this matter ventilated, and therefore the only means available for those in opposition is to express their opinions through the press.

It has been suggested that as a start for a Greater Sydney those municipalities which are adjoining the city of Sydney should be amalgamated with the city, say Paddington, Redfern, Glebe, Annandale, and Balmain. These municipalities have a population of 118,270, and a u.c.v. of £3,987,208. The city of Sydney has a population of 116,400, and decreasing, and a u.c.v. of £22,958,480. It will thus be seen that these municipalities will have equal voting power with the city, although the city will pay six times more rates. Ex-Mayors, Lord Mayors, and aldermen of the City Council have in season and out of season pertinaciously advocated a Greater Sydney but I am inclined to think that, boomerang-like, it is going to come back and hit the city of Sydney in a most vital part if adult suffrage is adopted.

Waverley, Woollahra, Randwick, and Vaucluse have a population of 67,740, and a u.c.v. of just on five millions, and therefore they will be paying rates upon a million more than the above five suburban municipalities, and will have 50,630 less votes. North Sydney, Mosman, and Willoughby have a population of 68,300, and a u.c.v. of £3,987,466. Whilst these three municipalities will pay as much rates as the suburban ones, which are adjacent to the city, they will have 67,740 less votes. I pick these few examples, but many others are in existence, to show the injustice which will be done by this system of voting.

The municipal franchise for the United States is manhood suffrage, with the exception of some of the Western States, which include women. A commission was appointed in 1905, which comprised some of the most eminent men in the United States, took two years in its deliberations, the report of which covers three large volumes. They report with regard to American municipal operations as follows:—"The grade of service in American cities has not been high. Ignorance, incompetence, and extravagance have too often characterised many of the departments of civic government."

The Broken Hill municipality is the nearest approach we have in this State to adult franchise. From the reports which appear from time to time in the public press, I have no hesitation in saying this is the worst-governed municipality in the State. In fact, in recent years employees have flouted the authority of the Mayor and aldermen, the Political Labour League having gone so far as to dictate to the Labour aldermen the gentleman they shall put in the Mayoral chair.

I am, etc.,
THOMAS MAGNEY,
Mayor of Woollahra.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES.

PREVENTING STRIKES.

MR. BEEBY'S CONCLUSIONS.

At the Royal Society's Rooms yesterday, the inquiry into industrial disputes was continued by the Royal Commissioner, Mr. A. B. Piddington, K.C. Mr. E. H. Buchanan appeared for the Employers' Federation; Mr. M. J. Connington and Mr. E. J. Kavanagh, M.L.C., for the Labour Council; and Mr. Rankin, for the Sulphide Corporation.

Mr. Kavanagh, who had previously expressed approval of the craft board system as against the composite board, said he did not support the idea exclusively, as there was such a variety of interests represented on the council. He was, however, sending out circulars to ascertain the views of the unions on the matters covered by the Commission.

Mr. G. S. Beeby, late Minister for Labour and Industry, continued his evidence on the matter of the means to be adopted to expedite the decisions of wages boards. It was necessary that the chairman of a board should exercise more discretion, especially in the matter of taking evidence. Far too much detailed evidence was given.

The Commissioner pointed out that witnesses might complain that they had been shut out if their evidence was not taken.

Mr. Beeby, admitting that, held that unnecessary evidence was given. He believed that a Board of Trade was badly needed. Much time was wasted also, in changing the representation on the boards.

Dealing with the relation of the awards under the Arbitration Act to the Early Closing Act, witness explained that there were a number of industries in which there had been a conflict between the award and the Early Closing Act, for the Act fixed a time of closing; while an award fixed certain hours after which overtime should be paid. And a board might prescribe no work after 5 o'clock, which the Early Closing Act fixed closing time at 6. Any places not employing labour might keep open up till six. That would operate hardly on the master butchers, if his competitor, employing no labour, kept open. The same thing applied to the carrying and transport trades. "The only practical way out of it is to give the Court power in such cases to fix the closing time of the shop and the rates for overtime. There is to be considered the small shopkeeper, employing no labour, but in regulating industry there must be some hardships. The cases where unfair competition existed were with the butchers, farriers, hairdressers, and transport workers."

Mr. Connington: And the retail shopkeepers.

Mr. Beeby: As far as the general retail trade is concerned, the matter is not as serious as it is with the butchers.

STRIKES.

Mr. Beeby thought the present definition of industrial matters was wide enough. He then dealt with the question of providing some more effective means for the prevention of strikes and lock-outs, and the enforcing of the provisions of awards. In the present mental attitude of employers and employees he did not think strikes and lockouts could be prevented. If there was not more practical support given to the system, and if the unions as a body did not stand more loyally by the principle of arbitration, they would approach a period when the whole position would have to be very seriously reconsidered.

Mr. Beeby: Yes, because the State has laid down what their duty is. I would not be in favour of taking away any franchise rights, because the vast majority of men who strike do so under some mistaken idea of loyalty to their comrades, and with no criminal intent. As to State employees, I would make the prosecution and collection of fines automatic. I would leave no discretion at all. Once the fine is fixed by the Court it must be paid.

Continuing, witness said that the penal provisions should be kept within limits of possibility. Up to a certain point they probably could effectively suppress strikes, and it was useless to try to carry the penal provisions beyond that point.

Mr. Buchanan: Do you know that employers complain about the garnishee, and object to having the onus put on them and collecting the fines?—No.

Mr. Buchanan: Do you know that in one case the men have threatened to strike again if the fines are collected?—No.

The Commissioner: The garnishee was only an additional guarantee against strike.

Mr. Beeby: There are objections to it from both sides.

To Mr. Connington, witness said that as he saw no way of limiting the evidence, he preferred to eliminate it altogether, and the board of experts by discussions, and if necessary inspections, could arrive at a decision.

Continuing in reply to Mr. Connington, Mr. Beeby said that his suggestion would do away with the necessity for advocates before the board. He thought the experiment of arbitration should be continued with amendments. Better results would accrue from the Victorian system with two or three on each side and a chairman. A maximum of five aside should be fixed.

Mr. Connington: Do you hold that arbitration is preferable to striking?

Mr. Beeby: There is no doubt of that. On the whole, arbitration gives the wage-earners and the community better results. The strike should be the last resort and not the first resort of the unionist.

The Commissioner: I assume that question is already answered in favour of arbitration, and I have to see how arbitration works in practice, and what alterations are necessary.

On the question of State employees, Mr. Beeby maintained that they should not strike; they had the same appeal to arbitration, and enjoyed certain privileges that outsiders did not.

Mr. Connington: Would you give the board the right to order the piecework system, or a weekly wage, if the general feeling of the industry was in a certain direction?

Mr. Beeby: No; I would not interfere with natural economic tendencies. I would simply compel the piecework employer to give a fair piecework wage. In many cases trades-unionists were fighting the piecework system though they could not keep it out."

The Commission adjourned till Thursday.

CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUNDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I was very pleased to read the letter of Mrs. Anderson, hon. secretary Playgrounds Association, and trust it will be the means of arousing the public from their apathy in regard to this undoubted boon—playgrounds in all centres for our children. In no place is one more wanted than in Waterloo, as, in consequence of the City Council resuming and remodelling the slum areas, the inhabitants, principally Chinese, have removed to Waterloo, creating what the City Council is endeavouring to destroy—slum areas. On June 25, 1912, the majority of the aldermen of Waterloo Council, with their wives, met Professor Mackie, principal of the Teachers' College, Miss Simpson, then principal of the Blackfriars Kindergarten, Miss Russell, principal of the Waterloo Kindergarten, and others, on the Waterloo Park. After Professor Mackie and the ladies had pointed out the necessity of having playgrounds for the children, and stating the Department of Education were prepared to appoint a mistress and erect shelter sheds, etc., the aldermen decided to set apart a portion of the park for that purpose. But what has happened? In consequence of red tape, so dear to those administering local government, the scheme has been blocked, notwithstanding it had the approval of the Hon. C. Carmichael, Minister for Education. Well might one cry out, "How long; oh, Lord, how long!" Please, Mr. Editor, hurry along Greater Sydney or any other scheme that will relieve us of this red tape.

I am, etc., THOS. ROSS.

AMAZING HAIR GROWTH.

WOMAN'S HAIR REACHES TO HER FEET.

ASTONISHING RESULTS FROM WORLD-WIDE TESTS OF POSSIBILITIES OF HAIR GROWTH.

LONDON, May 9.—The publication of the results of what is doubtless the most extensive series of tests ever conducted for determining the possibilities of hair growth shows beyond doubt that it is at last possible for any man or woman, whether afflicted with dandruff, grey hair, falling hair, or even baldness, to secure a strong, luxuriant growth of glossy hair of almost any length desired. In making these tests, which numbered many thousands, and extended over a period of more than two years, a lotion or tonic was used consisting of 5oz Bay Rum, 1oz Lavona de Composee, and ¼ dram Menthol Crystals, this being rubbed briskly into the scalp twice a day. The results were simply astonishing. Dandruff, scalp itching, and falling hair all stopped in from one to three applications; grey hair gradually assumed its natural colour; new hair was grown on heads that had been bald for years, and in countless instances hair increased from one to two feet in length, one lady reporting that her hair reached to her feet, having grown thirty inches in less than two years. Averaging the whole series of tests, the number who reported unsatisfactory results was only nine to the thousand, or less than one per cent. While any chemist can readily prepare this tonic from his stock of standard pharmaceutical products, it is interesting to note that, owing to the frequency with which they are asked to put it up, most chemists now have it prepared by a well-known London firm of manufacturing chemists, and keep it in stock ready for immediate delivery under the name of Lavona Hair Tonic. In view of the remarkable proved merit of this article, every man and woman who is suffering from any form of hair or scalp trouble, as well as those who desire to retain and enhance the natural beauty of their hair, should at once get a bottle of Lavona Hair Tonic, and give it a thorough trial. You will be astonished and delighted at the result.—Advt.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

LABOURERS' AMALGAMATION.

A publication, devoted to the interests of members of the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association ("The Navvy") criticises the attitude adopted by the executive of the United Labourers' Protective Society upon the question of the proposed amalgamation. "The United Labourers are (the paper says) putting every obstacle in the way to stop the amalgamation from being accomplished. The Railway Workers had a financial membership of 13,000 on December 31, 1912. The United Labourers' Protective Society has a financial membership of 2500. Both the societies had the same number of delegates to the conference, viz., eight, and yet they expect 13,000 members to be dictated to by 2500, and they practically told the Railway Workers that they would have to accept their terms. The United Labourers' delegates profess to be advocates of amalgamation, but they have opposed every reasonable proposal to facilitate it. The kind of amalgamation they want is to run the show themselves."

A special meeting of the U.L.P.S. has been convened for the 16th inst, at which a section will propose that the name be changed to the "United Labourers and Railway Workers' Society," and that the rules be altered so as to comply with the rules of the scheme of amalgamation.

SICK FUND FOR CASUAL WORKERS.

On the question of the establishment of a sick fund for the benefit of the casual workmen employed under the Public Works Department, commencing with the railway construction employee, Mr. J. Davis, Director-General of Public Works, has pointed out to Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan, secretary of U.R.W. and G.L. Association, in his representations were submitted to the Minister, who said he would be pleased to establish such a fund if a scheme were submitted which could be worked out by the department giving the men the protection they sought, or a modified form of it, without a very heavy charge on the departmental funds. The Minister, therefore, requested that data be submitted with a view to the closer investigation of the proposal, and the preparation of a tentative scheme as a basis for further consideration.

WESTERN MINERS.

Application has been made to the Coal and Shale Mining (West) No. 1 Board by the Western District Coal and Shale Employees' Federation for the determination by the board of the tonnage, rates, wages, hours, and conditions of employment at the Bolden Colliery, Irondale, Lithgow. Mr. H. V. Jaques, chairman of the board, has convened a meeting to be held at the Courthouse, Lithgow, on 12th instant, at 10 a.m.

WOOL-CLASSERS' BOARD.

Mr. Niel Nielsen, chairman of the Pastoral and Rural Workers' Board, has convened a meeting for Friday, at Ocean-house, at 2 p.m., to deal with claims filed by the Wool-classers' Association of New South Wales. In all sheds where classers are paid by the thousand the lowest rates are suggested as follows:—In sheds where the number of sheep and lambs shorn in one season is not over 30,000, the rate all round to be 30s per thousand. In sheds where the number of sheep and lambs shorn in one season is over 30,000 the lowest rate all round to be 25s per thousand. Where payment is made by the week the lowest rates shall be as follow:—In sheds where the number of sheep and lambs shorn is not over 10,000, £4 10s per week. In sheds where the number is over 10,000 and not over 15,000, £5 per week.

COACHMAKERS' BOARD.

The Leather Trades' Group, No. 8 Board (Mr. E. W. Wickham, barrister, chairman) Mr. Ritchie, representing the employers, and Mr. Marshall representing the employees, held its first meeting for the taking of evidence at the Central Police Court yesterday. The board announced that the questions of hours, overtime, night shifts, and certain details, had been referred to. Evidence is now being taken on that portion of the coachmaking industry which deals with wheels running on rails. The Chief Commissioner for Railways and the colliery proprietors are exempt from this jurisdiction.

WATERSIDE WORKERS.

Mr. J. Morris, of Melbourne, the general secretary of the Waterside Workers' Federation, is expected to be present at to-night meeting of the Wharf Labourers' Union, which will be held at the Trades Hall. This union has yet to discuss in detail the constitution which was drawn up at the Melbourne conference last year, providing for a Transport Workers' Federation. The Merchant Service Guild and the Seamen's Union have already adopted the constitution. The Australasian Institute of Marine Engineers was included, but it has not accepted the constitution. The Trolley, Draymen, and Carters' Union, another inclusion, has, up to the present, done little more than receive the draft. The terms of the constitution have already been published.

BULGARIA AND THE BALKANS.

To a very large extent the issue of peace or war may be said to lie with Bulgaria at the present moment. At first sight it would seem as though war was inevitable; and yet there are factors in the situation which must incline the thoughtful student of foreign affairs to hesitate. It is perfectly true that Bulgaria must feel as if war with Servia and Greece could not be avoided. A very bitter hatred exists between the allies who have vanquished Turkey, and were the conditions different, nothing could prevent the unloosing of the dogs of war. Under solemn treaty engagements the Balkans were mapped out for division in the event of victory over the Ottoman armies, and Bulgaria's share was clearly defined. While she was holding Turkey down at Adrianople, and otherwise containing the Sultan's available forces at Chatalja, Servia and Greece overran Macedonia, took Salonika, and obtained possession of various islands in the Aegean. Much of this was earmarked for Bulgaria; but now that the war is practically over, there is no disposition on the part of Servia and Greece to hand over what they have obtained practically as a result of Bulgarian valour further east. Servia, of course, points to Albania as the cause of trouble. That province, with its coveted coastline along the Adriatic, is the special care of Austria and Italy, who may some day have to fight each other to settle another division, or to decide upon its destiny. But Servia has claims to Albania, and the memorial of her delegates, presented at the beginning of the year to the conference in London, set forth some interesting particulars. Northern and central Albania, as well as Skutari and much of the surrounding country, were noted as belonging, by the facts of past history and by the drawings of present affinities, to Servia. It must be remembered, however, that the claim so drawn has some remarkable extensions. The idea is eventually to absorb Bosnia, Herzegovina, and Croatia, and to make the new Servia embrace altogether some ten millions of Serbo-Croats. Naturally Austria has kept a keen eye upon Servia in the past, hampering her in every possible way; and to-day, with the balance of power thrown rudely the wrong way by the Slav victories against Turkey, she is more determined than ever to keep Servia within the narrowest possible limits. Albania, consequently, has been constituted a separate kingdom, and it only awaits a king to take its place alongside Bulgaria, Servia, and Greece, as a factor with all sorts of possibilities in the future arrangement of forces as between Slavs and Teutons and their allies.

Disappointed on this side, Servia, with the aid of Greece, is now essaying to take the necessary change out of Bulgaria on the other, and probably for a while the grab will be successful. Much as one may feel that war under such conditions is inevitable, the facts seem to point the other way, and promise immediate assurance of peace. Bulgaria can hardly afford to continue fighting. Her treasuries are empty, and the number of her fighting men has been sadly reduced. She has already lost more than eighty thousand of the flower of her manhood, her fields must be tilled, and her crops harvested, and the pressure of Russia and Austria is being steadily exerted to prevent any further extension of hostilities. We must remember that the Bulgarian army, in the first instance, was made up of men drawn indiscriminately from the trades and professions, from city and country, and from all classes alike. That is to say, literary men and artists found themselves in the ranks alongside farmers, labourers, and artisans; and not only were they taken from their work in every direction at the moment's notice, but property was levied upon for the great struggle with Turkey. It was given willingly for the cause of freedom, and to satisfy a long-delayed revenge. The way in which this people, uniting so cheerfully to fight and die, threw themselves upon their enemy, reminds one of the Japanese in their war with Russia, and the result has practically been the same. Both nations have suffered exhaustion, and in Bulgaria's case time must be found to recuperate. But what of the future? Inevitably, we think, Bulgaria will become the dominating element in the future development of the Balkans; and if she throws in her lot with Austria and Germany, as Roumania has apparently done, there may be some startling rearrangements of the present scheme of settlement. Servia and Greece will find it advisable to become reasonable as the days pass, for while peace in the immediate future may allow the retention of areas and centres allocated by treaty to Bulgaria, there is bound to be trouble when the latter nation has recovered strength. Strangely enough, Roumania, like Servia, has claims based upon history and race which may bring complications later on. In certain districts in Macedonia and Epirus she has some thousands of compatriots whom she considers her special care, and the lines of trouble run everywhere in this fashion. But as against any Power seeking to make capital out of this, the Balkan peoples may be trusted to unite again. The Slav note has been struck to some effect, and peace for the present seems assured.

STATE POLITICS.

Parliament is to meet in this State on July 15 or 16, and the session promises to be an interesting one for several reasons. At the outset Mr. M'Gowen is to disappear, and Mr. Holman, as the new State Premier, is to take up the burden of leadership. Then will come the question of existence. The Speaker, with whom Mr. Holman's compact for a continuance of power was made in the first instance, now thinks the time has come for due observance of its provisions. Mr. Willis has declared that there should be an appeal to the country, and the condition of parties is such that anything may precipitate a general election. Such a session as the one now projected, under the conditions in which Parliament will meet, promises to make the position of those Liberal members who have given the Labour party such a run of late, a little difficult. It will be essentially an electioneering session. Everything said and done will be aimed at the constituencies, and in the circumstances we may expect a nervous regard for consistency, and some circumspection in divisions. As Mr. Holman's natural majority is a single unit, there is plenty of room for strategy, but not much chance of existence when the real tussle for power takes place on the floor of the Legislative Assembly. But, meanwhile there is the Government programme. The Minister for Works has been making a great bid for popularity by arranging for a loan of three millions under unprecedented conditions, and now we are told that the Cabinet has already approved of the agreement entered into with Griffith Australia, Limited. Does the Government propose to stake its existence upon the new policy, with all its limitations and apparent confusions? We do not know the details, and Mr. Griffith declares in effect that until these are disclosed all criticism is unfair and one-sided. But enough is surely known to enable the people of New South Wales to see that the Government is desperately hard up. How otherwise can we reconcile the idea of a Socialistic party lending itself to a scheme for putting money into the pockets of a band of capitalists? Will Mr. Holman ask the country to accept the new partnership as a Labour policy for the future? Then, again, we have the Hoskins Brothers' tangle. Here is a capitalist firm which has been encouraged to put much money into plant and machinery at Lithgow and elsewhere, to establish the iron industry, and to provide high wages and good work for quite a number of people. The Government from time to time has been more than sympathetic. It has been practically helpful. But the Minister for Works has been caught with the Socialist craze of making the State supreme employer, and has threatened to establish State ironworks. The excuse has been made that the Messrs. Hoskins have asked too much for pipes required by the Board of Water Supply, although the firm has shown how severely it has been handicapped by the increased cost of pipe-making due to the advances in wages, and in the price of material. Many men have been thrown out of employment in consequence, and now we are informed that the Minister is in treaty with German firms. This is surely a fine anti-climax at the end of a Parliament so starred with Labour struggles to keep hold of office! Does Mr. Holman propose to make the latest development in pipe-buying his stock argument before the people for a return to power? There is a curious paradox in the love for one set of capitalists and the dislike for another, but the new Premier is an adept at explanations, and the coming session will be full of them, or we are very much mistaken. Yet the question for the electors now is not Mr. Holman's cleverness, but the interests of the country, and the fate of the time-serving politicians who have made the present condition of things possible.

"A BLAZING INDISCRETION."

Even the firmest well-wisher of the Liberal party in England cannot shut his eyes to the fact that the party is getting deeper into the mire over the disclosures which are being made day by day before the Marconi Committee. We do not for a moment believe that the investments indulged in by the British Ministers in question have been made in anything except the purest innocence. But what amazing innocence it is! The British Government on March 7 of last year accepted the tender of the Marconi Company to put up the wireless stations necessary for the Imperial Marconi scheme. Five weeks later the British Attorney-General is offered by his brother, who was managing director of the Marconi Company, some shares in an American Marconi Company. Although this was a separate company altogether, and could not benefit in any way by any contracts made by the original Marconi Company, the Attorney-General at first thought it wiser to have no dealings with it, and refused the offer. But on being offered the shares again a week later, by another brother, who was not connected with the Marconi companies, he bought 10,000 shares, and passed 2000 of them on to his friends, the Master of Elibank and the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He advised them, from the point of view of their duty as Ministers, there could be no possible objection to their taking the shares. They accordingly bought them. The shares, or some of them, were afterwards sold, without any attempt at concealment, on the Stock Exchange. There is, admittedly, nothing inconsistent with the most scrupulous private honesty in these transactions.

What is astounding is that Ministers, especially of the calibre of Sir Rufus Isaacs, should have been unaware of the suspicions to which these very open transactions would be likely to give rise. In Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Rufus Isaacs we have two men, one of whom is responsible for raising the whole of England's public money, whilst the other has matched his wits in the courts against some of the greatest financiers of the age, and beaten them. And yet, on the strength of the fact that the American Marconi Company had no interest in the original company, they openly and innocently staked some of their money in the American company. It was quite true that the two companies were quite unconnected—except in the mind of the unthinking public. There is no denying that when Marconi shares rose, so did the American shares; and when Marconi shares fell the American shares fell, too. There was nothing in this that makes the transaction any less innocent. And clearly their one obvious line of defence, when exaggerated rumours as to their dealings gained currency, was to make a full statement. That a man of the experience of Sir Rufus Isaacs should not have taken that course is a fact almost impossible to understand. Instead, the Ministers first denied in Parliament that they had had any dealings with the Marconi Company—which was a verbal truth, as far as it went. Later, when the country had gone to great trouble to investigate the rumours, they volunteered the fact, in the course of a libel action, that they had engaged in transactions in the American Marconi shares. The next fact to be admitted was that Mr. Lloyd George had engaged in a second deal in these shares with money partly advanced to him by his brokers. And now it is left to the Marconi Committee to unearth evidence to the effect that the ex-Chief Whip of the Liberal Party had chosen American Marconis as an investment for some of the funds of the Liberal party. It is quite possible that the cumulative effect of these revelations will lose the Liberals the chance of putting through some of those great and urgent reforms of which, in the view of many people, England stands in such need. If so, the fact that their opportunity and their country's has been wasted not through any dishonesty or corruption, but through an exhibition of amazing indiscretion, will be a very bitter reflection to their supporters.

CANADIAN TARIFFS.

If the information contained in a cable which we publish this morning is correct, the Canadian Government would seem to be adding to the difficulties of the naval situation the prospect of a struggle over tariffs next session. Mr. Borden's Administration was placed in power indirectly on a fiscal issue. The Imperialistic spirit and the fear of the undue influence which the United States might exert in Canadian affairs if the reciprocal trade agreement which was proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Taft was carried no doubt had great weight with the electors. But the farmers in the west were concerned also with the possible effect which the very considerable reductions in tariffs might have on their market for agricultural produce. The late Prime Minister of Canada was an avowed freetrader. Mr. Borden is an acknowledged protectionist. He will have to face the same old problem which has to be faced in all protectionist countries, a reconciliation between the interests of the manufacturing and the farming elements of the community. The western farmer is usually described as favouring freetrade. He has no use, it is true, for tariffs which send up the price of his agricultural implements and raise the cost of the other articles which he has to purchase. But he is a protectionist in regard to his own products. On the other hand the industrial classes in the eastern provinces have exactly opposite interests. They desire protection for their manufacturers, low tariffs or no tariffs on articles which they require for their food.

Any alteration in the Canadian tariff will, of course, have an important bearing on any scheme which may hereafter be come to for reciprocal trade relations between Australia and Canada. Mr. Foster, the Canadian Minister for Trade and Customs, has suspended his negotiations with Mr. Tudor. It may now be stated that the course of these negotiations has recently not been quite as smooth as was at one time hoped. The real difficulty is quite plain to any student of the subject. Australia has no difficulty in granting a preference on the paper, timber, canned fish, machinery, and other articles which Canada sends to us. On the other hand, any substantial preference on the butter, meats, dried fruits, and other items of agricultural produce which we export to Canada would immediately arouse opposition amongst the farmers in Western Canada. It is simply a question whether Mr. Foster and his colleagues are prepared to sacrifice a problematic political loss amongst a section of their supporters in order to bring about an arrangement of Imperial consequence. There must, of course, be mutuality about any proposed agreement of this kind, and unless Mr. Foster is prepared to recognise this we fear that the present negotiations will fail, as the negotiations set on foot in 1907 failed, owing to the absence of the recognition of the necessity for this condition precedent to a successful issue.

THE DAVIS CUP.

Australia's defeat by the American team has disappointed our hopes of winning back the coveted Davis Cup lost last year in Melbourne, and we shall have to wait twelve months before making another bid to recover it. The defeat was decisive; our representatives managed to win only one of the five matches played, although that one—the doubles—was certainly an extremely meritorious success. In all four singles the Americans proved too much for us, and this serves to emphasise the criticism levelled against Australian lawn tennis by our recent visitors—the British team. They pointed out that while in doubles the Australian standard of play could hold its own anywhere, in singles it was capable of considerable improvement, the case of Brookes always being excepted. Brookes, of course, remains sui generis, and it is unfortunate for Australia that he was unable to be a member of this team. Had he been one of our representatives in New York the result of the match might have been very different; it is reasonable to suppose that he would have won both of his singles, and this would have given Australia the victory. However, regrets are useless, and Brookes's absence detracts nothing from the merit of the American win. They have beaten the best team which Australia could send, and they are to be congratulated upon their achievement. Australia, though vanquished, has been by no means disgraced, for to carry off the doubles was a notable exploit, and a pleasant feature of the tournament has been the form shown by A. B. Jones. Jones is a brilliant young player, whose possibilities of development are immense; the experience gained during this tour should be invaluable, and, good as he already is, we may expect him to return to us even better.

Where the Davis Cup will ultimately find a resting place it is not easy to say. With Australia and France both out of the running, America and Germany seem to be the teams most likely to wrest the blue ribbon of the lawn tennis world from Britain. There are other countries represented, including Belgium, Canada, and South Africa, but while these serve to show the cosmopolitan character of the competition, their prospects of victory are not very rosy. Perhaps now that the cup is held in more accessible parts of the world, international lawn tennis will receive a bigger impetus and encouragement. As long as Australia possessed the cup our distance from Europe made any bid for it a formidable undertaking, and few teams would travel all these miles unless they considered that they had a fairly reasonable chance of taking it back with them. But when England, or even America, holds it, the challenger need not be prepared to make so long a journey, and we may expect the entries to increase accordingly. Regarded from this point of view, our loss of the cup in 1912, and our failure to survive the first round this year, are not unmixed evils. We can, at any rate, comfort ourselves with the thought that in the interests of lawn tennis as a whole it is better so. Still, it is a form of consolation which we would willingly do without; and we can only hope that next year fortune will treat our representatives in a more kindly fashion. In the meantime we must condole with Messrs. Doust, Rice, and Jones, and thank them for the gallant efforts they made.

The "Sydney Mail."—Numerous topics of general interest are pictorially dealt with in this week's "Mail," and the result is a most attractive production. The march of the champion cadets of Australia through the streets of Sydney and the competitions between the various companies are given prominence. The Randwick races and the winter meeting at Brisbane are illustrated, as also is the contest for the New South Wales amateur golf championship. Mr. Holman's return is the subject of an interesting article, and a picture which accompanies it shows the Attorney-General in company with other Australian and New Zealand notabilities visiting Letchworth Garden City in England. The recent Derby sensation gives especial interest to a photograph of the King's horse, Anmer, and to pictures of the headquarters of the militant suffragists in London. There is also a fine snapshot of his Majesty and Princess Mary riding in Hyde Park, and on the same page are portraits of Mr. Winston Churchill, Colonel Seeley, Sir Winthrop Hackett, Sir Alexander MacCormick, and Sir Richard Butler. Mining in the Northern Territory is the subject of a couple of pages of capital photographs. Three striking pictures show the highest polling-booth in Australia, and electors sledging through the snow to record their votes at Kosciusko, one of the sledges being drawn by dogs which took part in the Scott and Mawson Antarctic Expeditions. Two pages are devoted to the building of the Naval College at Jervis Bay, the illustrations giving an excellent idea of the progress that has been made in this important work. "Milroy" has more to say about the House of Blacklock, the article being accompanied by pictures of St. Simon, St. Angelo, Grafton, and Donovan. There is much to interest the man on the land, and all the regular features of the "Mail" are as attractive as usual.

State Parliament.—A special "Government Gazette" was issued yesterday, further proroguing the State Parliament to 27th inst. The next prorogation notice will mention the date when Parliament will be called together for the despatch of business. It is understood that the next session will commence on July 15 or 16. As already stated in "Herald," it is unlikely that any new Ministerial appointments will be made for some time. There is a feeling among some of the country members that the Departments of Land and Agriculture should not be controlled by the one Minister. Mr. Trefle, however, is prepared to do the administrative work of both offices, and it is understood that at yesterday's Cabinet meeting Ministers decided to recommend the party not to make any alteration at present. The Ministerial party will meet in caucus to-morrow.

State Cabinet.—Ministers sat in Cabinet for nearly three hours yesterday. The whole of that time, according to the Premier (Mr. M'Gowen), was devoted to "a general discussion of the situation." It is understood that the Minister for Works raised the question of the supply of pipes for the Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage, but both Mr. M'Gowen and Mr. Griffith declined to say whether any decision was arrived at. Ministers have to choose between (1) letting a contract to G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd., for cast iron pipes; (2) importing steel pipes from Germany. A fortnight ago the Chief Commissioner for Railways asked for authority to order 80 locomotives from England, at a cost of nearly £500,000. The matter was to have been considered yesterday, but, owing to the absence of the Treasurer (Mr. Cann) in Broken Hill it was allowed to stand over. Another Cabinet meeting will be held to-day.

Wyalong-Cudgellico Railway.—The Premier (Mr. M'Gowen) and the Parliamentary party that accompanied him to the Wyalong-Lake Cudgellico district returned to Sydney yesterday. Mr. M'Gowen stated that he was much impressed with the wheatgrowing possibilities of the district, and looked forward to the time when the 70 miles between the two townships would be checkered with small holdings. The people of the district are anxious now that the first sod of the railway has been officially turned, that the project should be pushed ahead as speedily as the state of the Government Exchequer will allow. Around Wyalong the wheat is growing splendidly, and it is expected that the yield will be considerably heavier than last season. The country right through from Wyalong to Lake Cudgellico is of an even and promising character.

Art Lessons.—The superintendents of art and music have furnished their annual reports to the Minister for Education (Mr. Carmichael). In art work the superintendent says there are directions in which the ability of the teacher has produced educative work worthy of much praise. First, in the development of the free self-expression of the child by art; secondly, in the expansion of the imaginative faculties; and thirdly, in the sound, educative methods employed by most teachers in their guidance of the pupils' powers during the art lessons. A reference is made to the summer school for art teaching, held during the Christmas vacation, at which 120 teachers attended three hours daily for two and a half weeks. The work done in these outdoor classes, says the superintendent, is perhaps the best of the whole year. Several of the larger country centres were visited for the inspection and examination of the practical skill and theoretical knowledge of candidates for the High School intermediate certificate. In the opinion of the superintendent of art, work seen in these high schools reflected much credit on the teachers. The superintendent of music, during his inspection of 1912, found the work being done by the teachers distinctly of a higher grade. Voice production was being understood, and efforts made to train the children on the lines of soft, sweet singing, the power of reading music at sight, and the training of a musical ear from the beginning. The superintendent of music reports he found less shirking from giving the singing lesson on the part of teachers. The summer school for country teachers was held during the vacation, and over 200 teachers attended a metropolitan school of music during the year.

"Nothing but Condemnation."—Some time ago the Chief Commissioner for Railways, through the Minister for Works, offered to supply the North Sydney Councils with surplus power for electric lighting purposes. Mr. Griffith was asked yesterday whether the offer had been accepted. "The reason why I did not go on with that proposal," he replied, "was that I received nothing but condemnation at the hands of interested persons. The municipal councils were absolutely silent, and gave me no support. Therefore, I was not going to force a good thing down their throats. I simply intimated that the Commissioner was prepared to sell at a very low price surplus power from the tramway wires, and that I was willing to pass a bill to enable him to do so. There the matter ends."

Fire Drill in Schools.—In the course of his annual report to the Minister for Education, the superintendent of drill comments favourably on the physical work done in the school, but not upon the elementary military drill. Neither is sufficient attention given to fire drill. "There is no telling the moment," he says, "when the necessity for expeditious exit of the classes may arise, and a practice held at reasonably regular intervals of a week or a fortnight throughout the year may one day avert a serious calamity. The steadying effect of this disciplinary drill is invaluable. In addition to allaying excitement, it increases the alertness and responsiveness so needful when danger comes. Most schools seem well adapted for ensuring rapid exit, but some are so constructed that confusion seems inevitable where classes converge in their course to the playground. To an occasional visitor not conversant with every turn of a passage, the element of danger at once presents itself, and forces the conviction that fire drill should be regular and not spasmodic."

Lord Mayor on Country Towns.—One in visiting many of the country towns of the State, remarked the Lord Mayor yesterday, could not fail to be struck by the ugliness of them, though all happily did not belong to this category. Many places became poverty-branded and dismal simply because their inhabitants were not animated by a spirit of civic pride. There was no good reason, he thought, why the average town should be repellant to every sense of taste, why it should be barren of trees and flowers, why its atmosphere should be heavy, dreary, and depressing. How much of the discontent of those who lived in country towns was due to environment would be hard to measure. As an instance of the spirit of civic pride at work in beautifying enterprises, which were, he said, a very remunerative investment of energy, he cited the case of Albury, where many miles of trees had been planted in the streets, thus considerably enhancing the appearance of the border town. It would, he considered, be a good idea for the Government to send a town-planning expert on tour through the State to teach the people how to brighten and beautify their centres.

German New Guinea.—Advices brought by the steamer Prinz Sigismund, which arrived yesterday, stated that a member of the expedition led by Herr Stole, which has been exploring the upper reaches of the Kaiserin Augusta River for some months, had returned to the coast with the news that up to the time he had left the party was "all well," and had not experienced any trouble with the natives, though this was the first time the latter had come in contact with white men. It was expected that the expedition would prove highly successful, and that much valuable information as to minerals and the general character of this hitherto unexplored country would be the result.

Cookery Classes.—Sixty-two cookery schools were in operation in the Public Instruction Department during 1912, the total enrolment of girls being 3338. The teaching staff numbered 54. The cost of living seems to have been reflected in the cookery schools, for, says the superintendent, "owing to the marked increase in the cost of commodities, there has been an increase in the expenditure of cookery schools, as well as in every other phase of departmental expenditure, but in very few cases has undue extravagance been observed. The necessity for economy has always been impressed upon the teachers. So far as the country is concerned, the outlook for the year ensuing gives promise for the continuance of instruction in most of the existing centres. As regards the metropolis, the introduction of the new system of continuation schools will necessitate a complete recasting of the city organisation."

Judgment in the Next World.—The grounds upon which a juror was excused from service at the Central Criminal Court, held at Darlinghurst yesterday, are probably unique in the records of such excuses. A full panel of jurors had been summoned. Several had failed to put in an appearance, and fines were recorded against them. Then a juror stepped up to the witness box and said, "I wish to be excused, your Honor, because it is against my religious convictions to serve on a jury." "But why?" was the surprised reply from Mr. Justice Pring. "Because I consider we have no right to try our fellow-men," came the confident assertion of the juror, who continued, "There should be no trials. Judgment is given in the next world, and should be reserved for the next world." "Then you think," retorted his Honor, "that every criminal should be allowed to continue a war against society?" "Nobody should be tried in this world," reiterated the applicant for excusal. "They get their trial in the next world." Apparently tired of the argument, his Honor dismissed it with, "You are excused. I don't think you are a fit and proper person to serve on a jury if you hold such convictions as those."

Increasing Birthrate.—For the benefit of mothers residing within the city area who are considered to be in need of maternity instruction, and hints as to hygiene, the City Council employs a nurse whose services are given free to those whom she visits. So that the lady may make more visits than she is able to do at present, it is proposed to provide her with a vehicle. One of the reasons advanced by the city health officer (Dr. Armstrong), in making this request, is the increase that is taking place in the birthrate. He told the health committee of the City Council yesterday that in consequence of the rising birthrate, the nurse's duties had considerably increased, and it was found impossible for her to visit all the mothers of newly-born infants that should be seen. The provision of a vehicle would enable the lady to attend to a larger number of cases than now, and would be particularly useful in Surry Hills, where tramway conveniences were at a minimum. It was decided to recommend to the council that a vehicle be obtained for the nurse, but only as a temporary arrangement.

Rats in the City.—The services of a Pied Piper of Hamelin would be greatly appreciated by the City Council. At the quarterly meeting of the council yesterday, Alderman Lindsay Thompson said that the city was fairly infested with rats, Circular Quay and Moore Park appearing to be their principal breeding grounds. The rodents, he declared, were swarming around the harbour front, and he suggested that the council and the Harbour Trust should unite in a rat-extermination campaign. The Lord Mayor said that, with regard to Moore Park, extra men had been put on with a view to endeavouring to reduce the pest, which, he admitted, was becoming a serious one. With respect to the proposed united campaign on the harbour front, he promised to consult with the authority controlling that portion of the city.

VICTORIAN STATE MINE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

By 304 votes to 197 the men employed at the State coal mine decided to-day not to return to work, pending a settlement of the dispute.

A FARCICAL ELECTION.

STUFFED ROLLS AND FRAUDULENT PRACTICES.

The Electoral Act passed by the Labour party in the last Federal Parliament, and its administration by the Government were subjected to considerable criticism during the recent campaign; but it now seems that the tale of political design that dictated the Act, and of the inefficiency of its administration has only been half told. The Act, by depriving the sick, the aged, and the infirm of the right of postal voting disfranchised thousands; and at the same time, by their provisions for absent voting, offered the widest facilities for the creation and manipulation of votes, and thus assailed the purity of the ballot-box. The frauds which it made possible have been further induced by the evident inefficiency of the administration of the Act. Incidentally, it may be noted that the Minister charged with its administration was the egregious Mr. O'Malley, whose egotistic and bombastic panegyrics on his administrative genius, are, in the light of recent revelations, more absurd than ever. Now that the results of the voting are becoming definitely known, it is apparent that the elections have been conducted on stuffed rolls, and that personation, double voting, and other electoral frauds have been rampant.

In Victoria there were 100,000 more electors enrolled than there are adults in the State; and the stuffing that must have been effected is all the more apparent, when it is remembered that 22,000 of the adult population of that State were disqualified from voting as criminals or lunatics, and that hundreds, on going to the poll, found that their names were not on the rolls. In Queensland the returning officer for the electorate of Oxley estimates that at the end of the count it will be found that half as many votes again have been cast as there are electors on the roll; that each elector had on an average 1½ votes. And from every electorate come well-authenticated tales of personation, double voting, and other electoral frauds. Those of us who know the utter unscrupulousness in elections of Labour organisations, and their complete lack of anything resembling a political conscience, are well aware that these startling figures are the result of their endeavours to snatch a victory at the polls for their party at any cost, and by any means. And the figures in certain electorates clearly prove this. Take Oxley as an example. Ever since the first Federal elections this has always been a safe Liberal seat. At the 1910 elections the Liberal member scored 10,196 votes to the Labour candidate's 6317. This election, according to the latest figures, the Labour candidate has scored 15,914 to the Liberal's 13,418. The accession of over 9000 votes to Labour shows pretty clearly which party has been responsible for the casting of half as many votes again as there are electors. In Victoria, also, in the electorate of Melbourne Ports, Mr. Matthews, the Labour member, has increased his numbers from 15,655 in 1910, to 23,654 in 1913, and this in the face of a decrease of only 500 in the votes polled for the Liberal candidate. This fact again shows clearly which party is responsible for the enrolment in Victoria of 100,000 more voters than adults. From the figures thus early available the public have every reason to suspect that the electoral changes made by the Labour party were conceived, framed, and carried out with the partisan purpose of carrying the elections at any cost, and by any means. In the result the elections have been a farce, and the verdict of the electors is no true indication of the feeling of the country. In the face of these revelations it is little short of a miracle that the Liberals have even a majority of one in the House of Representatives. Had the elections been fought fairly and on proper rolls, they would easily have had a workable majority.

But the chief question that the Commonwealth has to face is how best and most quickly to remedy this grave scandal. The purity of the ballot-box is the essential foundation of democratic government, and the first and patent duty of the new Parliament is to take measures to purify the rolls, and to amend the electoral law by repealing those provisions which have facilitated the frauds that have defiled the recent elections. Latest advices indicate that Mr. Fisher will resign, and that Mr. Cook will be commissioned by the Governor-General to form a Ministry. Even though he have only a majority of one, it is to be hoped that he will take office—if only to remedy this crying scandal. He cannot hope to carry on for long with a hostile Senate. But if he can only do so long enough to effect some purification of the rolls, as far as that can be done administratively; and to pass an Act to remedy some of the more outrageous abuses of the present electoral law, he will have done all that can be required of him, and can then go to the country to seek a true expression of the opinion of the electors. The Senate may possibly reject all proposals of amendment. The Labour party has no desire for, and will probably fight bitterly against, all attempts at electoral reform—no matter how patent the need—if an unreformed system is more beneficial to it. Considerations of justice and principle carry no weight beside the all-important demands of party advantage. But if it continues to reject all measures of reform, the Liberal Prime Minister can force a dissolution, and send the Labour-ridden Senate to the country with the stigma attached of being the champions of electoral fraud, and the opponents of electoral purity.

R. CLIVE TEECE.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

His Excellency the Governor received an official call from Mr. Holman, Attorney-General, at the office in Macquarie-street, yesterday.

His Excellency the Governor gave a luncheon at State Government House yesterday to commemorate the inauguration of the additions to St. Mary's Cathedral. The following guests were invited:—His Excellency the Admiral, the Archbishop of Sydney, the Archbishop of Melbourne, the Archbishop of Brisbane, the Coadjutor Bishop of Melbourne, the Bishops of Ballarat, Sale, Goulburn, Armidale, Maitland, Bathurst, Lismore, Monsignor Coonan, Monsignor O'Brien, Monsignor O'Haran, Rev. John O'Gorman, Mr. W. A. Holman (Attorney-General), Mr. J. L. Trefle (Minister for Agriculture), his Excellency the Administrator of Papua, Sir W. P. AMERICA TRIUMPHS.

... AND DOUST AGAIN DEFEATED.

NEW YORK, June 9.

To-day the American lawn tennis representatives defeated Australasia in the preliminary ... Cup tie.

On Friday, Doust and Rice were defeated in the singles, but Jones and Doust won the ... on Saturday. To-day, however, Rice ... Doust were both defeated in the singles, ... America thus won by four matches to ...

In to-day's singles McLoughlin defeated ... by three sets straight, the scores being 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

The celerity of McLoughlin's service and ... was responsible for the downfall of ..., who was unable to handle the ball ... with McLoughlin's terrific speed in ... suitable for consistent placing. Doust's best asset was a slow, low ball, which hardly rose six inches above the net, and which made it difficult for McLoughlin to ... the overhand smash.

The Australian took his defeat in a sportsmanlike manner. After shaking hands with McLoughlin, he seized the umpire's megaphone, and asked the spectators to join with him in giving three cheers for the American team. These were given, and were followed by wild cheers for the Australians.

Williams defeated Rice by 1-6, 4-6, 6-1, 9-7, 6-4, the points scored being 156 to 145 in favour of the American.

Like Doust, Rice fed a low ball, which prevented Williams adopting smashing tactics. Rice held the American during the first two sets, but in the third, Williams, by desperate ..., managed to start a winning break. Williams took the fourth set after an exciting game, which see-sawed in favour of each player.

Williams finished off a match of sensations by winning the fifth set by splendid serving and volleying which tired the Australian.

The Australasians, as expected, were unable to recover the ground lost on the first day. The outstanding feature of the singles matches has been the play of M'Loughlin, whose defeats of both Rice and Doust without the loss of a set demonstrate his great ability. His performances in the next round against the Germans will be watched with interest. Rice must have played extremely well against Williams, who is evidently possessed of great resolution, as shown by his winning the match after losing the first two sets.

Although defeated, Australasia has made a very fair showing, one that is all the more creditable in view of the inability of A. B. ... to contest the singles. The record of the team is better than that of some of the British teams which have played in America.

The results of the previous matches in the present tie were:—

Singles.

M. E. M'Loughlin (U.S.A.) beat H. M. Rice (Australasia), 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

R. N. Williams (U.S.A.) beat S. N. Doust (Australasia), 6-4, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5.

Doubles.

A. B. Jones and S. N. Doust (Australasia) beat M. E. M'Loughlin and H. H. Hackett (U.S.A.), 3-6, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, 9-7.

INTERNATIONAL HARD COURT CHAMPIONSHIP.

PARIS, June 9.

In the International Hard Court championship O. Froitzheim, of Germany, defeated A. F. Wilding, of New Zealand.

PUTUMAYO SCANDAL

BRITISH COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

SCATHING INDICTMENT.

"RUFFIANS AND MURDERERS."

LONDON, June 9.

The report of the committee which was appointed to inquire as to the responsibility of the British directors of the Peruvian Amazon Rubber Company in regard to the outrages upon the natives in the Putumayo has been issued.

In it the committee censured the British directors of the company for culpable negligence in regard to the labour conditions of the Indians.

The British directors, the report added, should not have lightly exposed England's good name as they had done.

The ill-treatment of the Indians was not confined to the Putumayo, which, however, afforded a shockingly bad instance, but such conditions existed over a wide area of South America.

The officers of the company were "a gang of ruffians and murderers, who shot from sheer lust of blood, and burnt, tortured, and violated, in a spirit of wanton devilry."

The committee declined to believe that the Indians were bloodthirsty and ferocious savages. On the contrary, they were a simple people of a naturally friendly disposition.

A British trading company was not entitled to spend money in the conquest of the Indians, and any money so spent would be ultra vires.

There was no evidence that the British directors, individually, were parties to an overt act which would expose them to charges under the Slave Trade Acts, but they were culpably negligent concerning the labour conditions that were prevalent. Messrs. J. R. Gubbins and H. M. Read ought to have known of the devilish conditions under which they were making money. Sir John Lister-Kaye's position was different, as apparently he was only a decoy duck for investors. He did not know the language in which the board often conducted its proceedings, but he deserved censure for taking a directorship in conditions so humiliating. Senor Arana and the other vendors had a knowledge of the atrocities perpetrated in the Putumayo.

The committee did not think that the Peruvian case revealed any defect in the company law, but said that the existing slave laws should be consolidated and modernised. Moreover, the principle of extra-territorial crime should be extended so as to enable British offenders in forced labour cases to be brought to trial in their own country.

THE SUFFRAGISTS.

FURTHER VIOLENCE.

ANOTHER BOATHOUSE BURNT.

LONDON, June 10.

Several cricket pitches in Northampton have been damaged by suffragists.

MISS DAVISON'S FUNERAL.

The remains of Miss Davison, the suffragist who was fatally injured owing to running in front of the King's horse in the Derby, are to be buried in Northumberland, where her family live.

A large number of suffragists will meet the coffin on its arrival at Victoria station from Epsom on Saturday, and march to Kingsway, where a memorial service will be held. Thence the cortege will march to King's Cross station.

A subscription has been opened in connection with the funeral, and six ladies have subscribed £15. Four bands will march in the procession.

DRAMATIC REAPPEARANCE.

Lilian Lenton, the well-known suffragist, whose whereabouts have not been known to the police for some time, made a dramatic reappearance yesterday during the prosecution of a youth and a girl charged with attempting to set fire to a house in Doncaster. Lenton rose in the court, and admitted that she set fire to the place. She was arrested, and the girl was acquitted. The youth was committed for trial.

CONSPIRACY TRIAL.

The trial of seven women and a man named Clayton, charged with conspiring with Mrs. Pankhurst and others to damage property, has commenced.

HOME RULE.

SECOND READING DEBATE.

LONDON, June 9.

In the House of Commons to-day the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, moved the second reading of the Home Rule Bill.

At the outset he paid a tribute to the memory of the late Mr. G. Wyndham, who was Chief Secretary for Ireland in 1900-05.

He said he was disappointed at the attitude of the Opposition, seeing that the bill must pass into law. He gave an elaborate explanation of the suggestion stage which, under the new procedure, replaces the committee stage, and added that any amendments that might be carried would accompany the bill to the House of Lords, though they would not enter into its structure.

The Premier (heatedly): "Not unless you make it so!"

Mr. A. J. Balfour moved the rejection of the bill. He said that Britain would be able to crush Ulster's resistance only if her power were exercised ruthlessly. "Though Britain's political imagination is sluggish," he said, "it will be aroused when troops are sent to Ulster. The Government is driving towards a great national disaster. If Ulster were Albania you would not treat her so!"

Mr. W. O'Brien (Independent Nationalist) blamed the Ministers and the Nationalists for not making a real bid for a settlement by agreement.

Mr. John Dillon (Nationalist) declared that all the talk of civil war in Ireland was so much bluff.

STORE OF ARMS.

LONDON, June 9.

Scotland Yard detectives are watching a stable in Hammersmith, where 28 tons of arms are stored. It is estimated that 14 tons were previously removed, whereof the rifles recently seized by the Customs authorities at Dublin and Belfast formed a part.

MONEY MARKET.

A FURTHER SET-BACK.

LONDON, June 10.

There has been a further set-back on the Stock Exchange owing to the further liquidation of high class stocks.

The Balkan situation, coupled with the German money famine, has depressed the London, Paris, Berlin, and St. Petersburg exchanges.

MARCONI SHARES.

FURTHER SURPRISING EVIDENCE.

PURCHASES FOR PARTY FUNDS.

"A MALIGNANT CANCER."

LIBERAL PERTURBATION.

LONDON, June 9.

The chairman of the committee which is inquiring into the circumstances surrounding the Marconi contract for the erection of a chain of Empire wireless stations announced yesterday that as early as April last he pressed Lord Murray of Elibank, the ex-Liberal Whip, who was then abroad, to return and give evidence before the committee, that gentleman had cabled that he would be unable to attend before July.

Lord Murray had said that he was in the midst of highly-important negotiations with the Colombian Government on behalf of his firm, and after they had been concluded he would have to undertake negotiations in Mexico and the West Indies. When he returned to England, however, he would desire to make a personal statement in Parliament.

Mr. Salaman, trustee in the estate of Fenner, a bankrupt stockbroker, gave further evidence, in course of which he said he believed that Lord Murray's trust account and the other account in his name were one and the same, but while the trust account did not record any deals in Marconi shares, the other account did.

Lord Robert Cecil asked witness the nature of the trust, but the Liberal members of the committee objected to the question, apparently fearing disclosures relating to party funds.

Considerable bickering ensued, and the public was cleared from the room.

On the public being readmitted, Salaman replied that the shares were registered in the names of Lord Murray, of Elibank, and Mr. P. H. Illingworth, Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury. (Sensation.)

Under further examination, witness disclosed other dealings, the whole resulting in Fenner owing Lord Murray £30,000.

In the meanwhile a message was sent to Mr. Illingworth to the effect that his name had been mentioned by the witness, and he immediately presented himself for examination. At this stage the room was crowded, among the spectators being many members of the House of Commons.

Mr. Illingworth said that he had no inkling of Lord Murray's purchases on behalf of the Liberal party funds till the end of last month, when he sent for Captain Murray, who told him that his brother had bought 3000 shares in the American Marconi Company on behalf of the party funds. The finances of the party, he added, were at the uncontrolled discretion of the Chief Whip.

Witness's only connection with the matter was as a second name in connection with the registration of the securities. Lord Murray's cheques were drawn on the Charing Cross branch of the National Bank, which was not the bank where the party funds were usually kept.

When witness assumed the office of Liberal Whip, Lord Murray handed over part of the securities, but they did not include the Marconi shares.

He protested that Lord Murray was the most cruelly-slandered man in the country, and added, "When lies are flying about like swarms of midges, I don't want to let fall a word of condemnation."

During the examination of Mr. Illingworth, it frequently occurred that three and four members were firing questions at him simultaneously, the chairman, Sir Albert Spicer, being seemingly powerless to restrain the members.

Mr. Leopold Amery (Unionist) suggested that the party fund was the real creditor in the matter of the £30,000 in the Fenner estate.

EXCITEMENT IN THE LOBBIES.

The Marconi disclosures are the sole topic of discussion in the Parliamentary lobbies, and the Liberals are dreading further revelations.

One Liberal stated yesterday: "The thing is a malignant cancer. Directly it is killed in one direction it breaks out in another."

Many members of the Liberal party blame Lord Murray, of Elibank, for not returning to England earlier.

They demand that the committee should close the taking of evidence, and prepare an interim report. The Unionists, on the other hand, consider that the latest disclosures necessitate keeping the investigation open.

REFERENCES IN THE COMMONS.

An angry scene in the House of Commons was narrowly averted last night when a Tory member called out, as Mr. Illingworth entered the Chamber: "Here comes the co-trustee."

Replying to a question, Mr. Asquith said that he had not heard of Lord Murray's purchases until last week, when Mr. Illingworth had informed him of them. He did not know whether the investments in the American Marconi shares concerned the party funds or not.

Mr. R. MacNeill (Unionist) asked whether Mr. Asquith was aware that Lord Murray paid almost £10,000 for these shares, whereas he had secured previous shares at a lower price.

PRESS COMMENTS.

The "Daily News," in protesting against the "Tory alarums and excursions," says:—"The Chief Whip of the Liberal party is the uncontrolled master of the party funds. If Lord Murray invested them unfortunately so much the worse for the party; but the matter has nothing to do with the Marconi inquiry. Any grievance that might exist is a grievance of the party against its former Whip as a financier."

The "Daily Chronicle" censures Sir Albert Spicer, the chairman of the investigating committee, for not disclosing Lord Murray's telegram earlier.

The paper says it has always been of the opinion that the purchase of the American Marconi shares by Ministers was injudicious, though not corrupt, and the mistake has been aggravated by the purchases not being frankly disclosed last October.

The latest disclosures, the paper adds, are of but little importance, as the purchase of a few thousand more shares makes little difference.

THE "NEW WITNESS" CASE.

Cecil Chesterton, editor of the "New Witness," who was fined £100 for libelling Godfrey Isaacs, managing director of the Marconi Company, has paid the fine and been released from custody.

HUNGARIAN POLITICS.

A NEW CABINET FORMED.

VIENNA, June 9.

Count Tisza (whose Government was defeated at the 1905 elections) has succeeded in forming a new Cabinet in succession to that of Dr. Lukacs.

The Hungarian Cabinet resigned as a result of the revelations in the unsuccessful libel action brought by the ex-Premier, Dr. Lukacs, against M. Desy, an Opposition Deputy, who accused him of corruption.

MOHAMMEDANS.

CONSPIRACY IN JAVA.

STATE OF TERRORISM.

PORT DARWIN, Tuesday.

By the Montoro mail a reliable correspondent in Java writes describing a sinister condition of affairs in that thickly-populated Dutch possession due to the revolutionary machinations of a Mohammedan secret society styled "Sarikat Islam," whose motto is "Java for the Javanese."

The correspondent writes:—"It is a decidedly nervy time here, and there have already been several outrages directly attributable to this organisation; and there is not a firearm to be obtained for love or money in Sourabaya at present.

"The police are all Mohammedans, and members of this society to a man. The Javanese regiments are being hurriedly transferred to Sumatra and Amboina, and the purely Dutch soldiers are being concentrated in Java. On the surface everything is going on in a quiet, methodical Dutch manner. But it is almost the sole topic of conversation in clubs and society. It is impossible to say whether danger is imminent or not. But there is a general feeling of uneasiness."

The correspondent forwards some copies of typewritten circulars that have been forwarded to the managers of the plantation, advising watchfulness and great care in the treatment of native employees, also advising the European staffs to provide themselves with firearms and practise shooting.

One of these circulars concludes: "Finally, we earnestly request you to investigate quietly the doings of the Sarikat Islam on your estate, and to send us news by telegram if there are signs of revolt, terrorism, or the like."

BURGLARY.

LARGE HAUL OF DRAPERY.

WEST MAITLAND, Tuesday.

Burglars made a haul at the drapery establishment of James Kerr and Sons last night, when about £300 worth of silks, kid gloves, and other articles were stolen.

Entrance was gained through an attic window by a long ladder taken from the Maitland Gas Company's works. Every department of the premises was visited. Anything that could be identified was left untouched. The safe resisted the attempts made to open it. Wheel tracks were observed in the yard this morning.

GENERAL STORE BURNT.

BURGLARS HELD RESPONSIBLE.

TAMWORTH, Tuesday.

Another disastrous fire occurred at Tamworth early this morning, when A. E. Robson's large general store was badly damaged.

The fire was discovered at 2 o'clock by the police, and the brigade was promptly on the scene, and the flames were got under control in a short time, but not before the greater portion of the stock was destroyed by fire and water. The ground floor was also much damaged. The store was practically a new one, belonging to Mr. R. A. Stanfield. It is estimated that the damage done was about £2500, mostly stock. The insurance on the stock and fittings was about £2100 in the United Insurance Company. The damage to the premises was about £450, and the insurance amounted to £750 in the National Insurance Company.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but the theory is advanced that burglars are responsible, as a large iron safe, weighing 3 or 4 cwt, had been removed from the office after Mr. Robson had locked up on Monday, and had been carried about 30 yards to the front door. It is suggested that the thieves set alight to the premises while removing the safe, and, seeing the mischief done, hurriedly escaped. An inquiry is to be held.

RAILWAYS SCHEME.

CABINET APPROVAL.

WAITING FOR PARLIAMENT.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) was asked yesterday whether any further steps had been taken regarding the proposed arrangement with Norton, Griffiths, and Co. for the construction of £3,000,000 worth of railways on a percentage basis.

"Nothing further can be done till the House meets," Mr. Griffith replied. "The arrangement was approved by Cabinet a couple of months ago, subject of course to ratification by Parliament. That is how things will stand till Parliament meets."

It is understood that the principal undertakings embraced in the proposed £3,000,000 contract are a railway from Condobolin to Broken Hill, which has been recommended by the Public Works Committee, and the completion of the North Coast line. When the North Coast line is completed there will be a continuous railway along the coast from Murwillumbah to Sydney.

Replying several days ago to a deputation which approached him regarding the North Coast line, Mr. Griffith said it would be a wise action if they could establish some system by which £10,000,000 worth of railways could be built, not in 10 or 15 years, but in three years. Cabinet, he went on, had a proposal which would enable this to be done if accepted by Parliament. What that proposal was he could not say, because Parliament must be first informed of any new and striking departure.

Under the £10,000,000 proposal the North Coast railway would be completed right up to Grafton to connect with the existing lines in two and a half years from the time Parliament approved. That would include the branch to the Dorrigo and the bridge over the Clarence River at Grafton.

The North Shore bridge and the underground city railway are included in the £10,000,000 project. But other statements have been made limiting the company's offer to £3,000,000.

WATER PIPES.

"GOVERNMENT HELD BY THE THROAT."

MINISTER'S STATEMENT.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) yesterday declined to say whether a decision had been arrived at in connection with the supply of pipes for the Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage.

"Do you propose to give G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd., a contract for cast-iron pipes or import steel pipes from Germany?" the Minister was asked.

"I cannot give any information," Mr. Griffith replied. "The Water and Sewerage Board should get first information on that subject. But the position is this: G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd., have succeeded in establishing a monopoly of a product which the State requires. They believe they have the Government by the throat, and intend to make the people pay a great deal more than a fair thing. As a trustee of the public funds it is my duty to see how far I can resist these demands. As I appear to be in the position of either making G. and C. Hoskins, Ltd., a present of £100,000 in the excess value of their product, or risking a partial water famine in Sydney next summer, whatever course I adopt I am sure to be sorry for it."

PARTY MACHINES.

SIR WILLIAM M'MILLAN ON SELECTION.

"UNFORTUNATE MR. WOOD."

"There are two things that I can always say—I have never referred to my opponent in any way, and I have never asked any man or woman for a vote." This was the way Sir William M'Millan, who will contest the Drummoyne seat as a Liberal, if selected, began his address at a fairly well attended meeting, presided over by the Mayor (Alderman W. A. Windeyer), in Hunter's Hill Town Hall last night.

"It is unfortunate that the name of Mr. Wood has been mentioned in connection with the forthcoming Drummoyne election, continued Sir William. "As far as I can learn, Mr. Wood is already in the field. Mr. Wood is a very able man. He has been many years in Parliament. He has done a great many things for the party; he has been a Minister of the Crown; he has been a deputy leader of the Opposition; and he is a man who certainly ought to be in the Parliament of the country. Unfortunately for Mr. Wood, and unfortunately for myself, we are to a certain extent mixed up in this electorate.

"So far as I am concerned, I have done nothing to interfere with the working of the party," declared Sir William. "When I first decided to enter this electorate I had no idea that Mr. Wood contemplated offering himself for selection. I hope that Mr. Wood will be able to find a footing in some other electorate and be returned to Parliament.

"I quite allow that, with the organisation of the Labour party so perfect, so rigid, so ironbound, it is absolutely necessary that a counter organisation should be created. But there is one thing in having system; there is another thing in the carrying out of it. In the first place every electorate has to consider which is the best man to represent it in Parliament. In the next place I do not think that any members of a league should have the ultimate powers of selection. No man should so pledge himself. He should go to the ballot-box absolutely untrammelled. I think this system, unless it is carried out fairly and equitably, degrades a member of Parliament. The electors should decide who is the best man in the interests of the constituency.

"I am not going to canvass anybody individually in regard to the selection. I leave it for you to say who is the best man to represent you," said Sir William in conclusion.

A CLEAN CITY.

COUNCIL'S NEW POLICY.

The subject of street cleansing, more particularly the application of up-to-date machinery for carrying out the work, claimed the attention of the health committee of the City Council yesterday.

The chief inspector of city cleansing (Mr. J. P. Webster) stated that, as far as haulage and street watering were concerned, the council, with its fleet of ten 5-ton motors, could not be considered behind, but rather in advance of, other cities. For street-watering purposes they already had the most up-to-date agency that existed, that was facilities for flushing the streets direct from water main hydrants. "Yet in Sydney, through the action of the Government and Water Board," Mr. Webster stated, "the city cleansing department has been for the past eighteen months prohibited from washing a public thoroughfare in the city, although the means exist to do so, and such was done year by year previously. If for all time the supply of water is to be stopped for street washing, then it will be necessary for the City Council to adopt other means of providing water for cleansing purposes. To keep a city clean without water, such as the cleansing department has been trying to do for the past 18 months, is outside the realm of possibility. One must have water to cleanse and shift dirt. Without it griminess and dust will be the inevitable result."

In connection with the horse brooms and night sweeping, Mr. Webster recommended that this method be dispensed with, and street cleansing machines driven by electricity be used instead. These machines were, he said, used throughout Europe, particularly in Germany, and, from what he could gather, had proved successful. They consisted of a double water spreader in front and a rotary squeegee at the rear, thus doing the work of water cart and broom in one operation. He recommended that 10 of them be purchased, at a cost of £1000 each.

Alderman Cox moved that three machines instead of 10 be purchased. It did not follow because they were a success on Berlin streets that they would be similarly successful in Sydney. It was well to make haste slowly.

Alderman Mallett said that the council had been pursuing the "go slow" policy too long. The time had arrived for going fast.

"MERE BOGS."

DISGRACEFUL STATE OF THE ROADS.

LORD MAYOR'S TRIP.

"If anything would convince the most hardened opponents of the Main Roads Bill introduced into Parliament last session by Mr. Griffith of the dire necessity that exists for such a measure it would be an experience similar to that which has just happened to me," said the Lord Mayor yesterday, referring to a motor car trip to Goulburn and back during the week-end.

Four miles outside of Parramatta, on the main southern road, the Lord Mayor and his party came across a furniture van hopelessly stuck in a bog in the middle of the road, and on inquiry it was found that it had been there since the day before. The driver was unloading it, and the furniture and goods were being taken to their destinations by other conveyances. The party had to deviate entirely off the road to get past. The road between Bankstown and Liverpool was disgraceful. It had a good foundation, but it had been so neglected that it was now positively dangerous, and would cost a great deal to put into repair again. He would not vouch for the truth of this, but it had been stated that a man driving 50 bullocks along the Cow Pasture-road, which was the alternative route to Camden, had lost nine of them in the mud. The only other route available to Camden was via Campbelltown; and there were parts of that road that were a menace to life and limb. Never, during the whole of his experience, extending over 20 years, had he known anything to be attempted in the way of road-making in that locality. Many long stretches were a mere succession of bogs. The party narrowly escaped coming to grief over the bank on two or three occasions, and but for the good offices of a carter who laid some slabs of timber on the road may have still been stuck hard and fast in the mud.

After rain had fallen an experience on the Razorback was never likely to be forgotten by those unfortunate enough to have to try to negotiate it. A party with powerful Minerva and Rolls-Royce cars had intended to tackle this part of the route, but the stories they had heard deterred them. There were some, however, more venturesome, and they suffered experiences that they hoped never to have to go through again.

Generally speaking, the roads within a 50-miles radius of Sydney were a disgrace, and nothing short of a measure like the Main Roads Bill would, he thought, be effective. It was time this scandalous state of affairs was ended and the roads were mended.

IF WAR CAME.

SPEECH BY DOMINION EX-MINISTER.

WHAT JAPAN WOULD DO.

ANGLO-SAXON UNITY.

A remarkable speech on naval defence policy was recently delivered in Wellington by Sir John Findlay, ex-Attorney-General of New Zealand, who accompanied Sir Joseph Ward to England and took part in the deliberations of the Imperial Conference.

"What are the perils, and what is the source of the perils that surround us?" was, he argued, the question we had to consider in determining what policy a country like New Zealand should adopt for naval purposes In his judgment, we were not confronted by any serious risk of conquest or permanent possession by a European Power. Two strong reasons could be advanced for that conclusion: Firstly, the existence of the British Navy in home waters; secondly, the distance from the naval bases of any naval European Power.

On the other hand, he desired to stress the point that we were confronted, and would be increasingly confronted, by a peril from the Orient, and that Power was not essentially applicable to New Zealand; but every nation whose lands had a Pacific littoral shared our peril, and to almost the same extent. Courtesy, perhaps, demanded that we should treat Japan with the utmost civility one could command. She was, and probably for some years would be, a faithful ally of Great Britain. But we owed it to candour, we owed it to even something greater—our national freedom—that at this hour we should clearly see the perils that confronted us, and boldly, and in a British manner, state them and avoid them.

A PACIFIC PROBLEM.

"You and I know that the language of diplomacy," said Sir John Findlay "is the last guide that a country like this should invoke as to the policy of the country in maintaining its national preservation." The naval defence of New Zealand was, he went on to say, involved in the larger naval defence of the whole Pacific; and that policy was the one we should adopt which most successfully protected the Pacific from Oriental invasion.

In twenty years Japan had risen from obscurity to be one of the world's greatest Powers on land and sea, and she had placed herself in the fore-rank of military nations. In 1905 by adroit diplomacy she became an ally of Great Britain, and by a treaty defensive and offensive she protected herself from any combination of nations. Japan was now the supreme naval power of the Pacific. One must bear in mind her ambitions. She was a strong insular nation, flushed with recent successes, proud of her past and recent achievements, determined to show the world that she was not inferior either in military prowess or intellect to the leading countries of the world. She felt she had a destiny—the hegemony of the Pacific. She had many advantages; she lay strategically in the centre of the Pacific.

AMERICA'S ATTITUDE.

The feeling against the Japanese in America was not merely one of colour. The American people believed, as we did, that "east is east, and west is west," and that you could not have under the same Government a large infusion of Eastern blood. To-day, in the Hawaiian Islands, there were more men who had been trained in the Japanese army than the whole of the field force of the United States, and if war were declared to-morrow Hawaii would become almost at once a Japanese dependency. She could also take the Philippines, Pago Pago Harbour, and Alaska. These were important bases in the Pacific.

If Japan established herself in the great harbour of Pago Pago, New Zealand would be completely at her mercy. Japan did not come down in any spirit of aggrandisement, seeking by conquest to rob us of our lands. She said: "We open our ports to your people with respect to equality. We ask, under international obligations, that you treat us in the same way. We are entitled, as one of the foremost nations of the world, to be treated with the same respect as you when you enter Japan. And we shall insist that you treat us so." How were we to meet that?

THE ALLIANCE.

In England, from what he found there, there was an utter absence of appreciation of the peril, and of the sentiment of the people of New Zealand, and that of the people of Australia and Western America. In England they pointed to the British-Japanese Alliance. There was no fear of Oriental invasion in England. The Labour Government of Australia—one of the last, one might think, to place itself under obligations in respect to military and naval defence—had strained every nerve to push on its defence. We could not create and maintain a fleet necessary to meet in the hour of battle the Japanese navy.

The people of the motherland must make self-preservation the first law of nature. They must look to their national existence first, and could not afford to send 12,000 miles away from their home bases a sufficient number of the British fleet, which, if found with our local fleets, could meet in battle the strength of the Japanese navy.

What, then, was to be done? They had already the hand extended half-way to them from America. There were a hundred million people there, and 10s a head from the people directly affected would provide a fleet strong enough to meet the Japanese navy at any time. Added to that would be such a portion of the British fleet as would come to our assistance in the time of trouble, partly by way of the Panama Canal and partly by Suez.

What he desired to stress mostly was this—that we could not rely upon the British navy for our defence when Japan had resolutely set herself to establish herself as the overlord of this great ocean. The time was ripe for the united action of Canada, Australasia, and America in respect of naval defence of the Pacific.

POLICE QUARREL.

A SHOT FIRED.

SCUFFLE IN BARRACKS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

As a sequel to the disturbance which occurred at the Russell-street Police Barracks on Sunday evening, George Lewis Calwell, formerly police constable, was charged at the City Court to-day with having feloniously shot at Constable Edward Giddens, with intent to murder him.

Sergeant Stapleton said: "It is alleged that, at 20 minutes past 8 o'clock on Sunday evening, Calwell and several constables were in room No. 9 at the Russell-street barracks. A man came into the room, and, being in an intoxicated state, was told by the constable in charge to go out. He refused to do so, and the constable in charge caught hold of the intoxicated man, and Calwell went to the latter's assistance. Giddens caught hold of Calwell, to assist the constable in charge, and Calwell threatened to shoot him. Giddens closed with him again, and called upon Constable M'Gann to help him. M'Gann seized hold of Calwell's arm and a shot was fired as he pulled it down, the bullet hitting an iron post on the floor.

Cross-examined, witness said that his statement was based only on what he had heard.

Calwell, who pleaded not guilty, was remanded, on bail, for one week.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

A MARRIED WOMAN.

"THE SOUND OF A STRUGGLE."

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the early hours of the morning of April 29, Celia Capeness, a married woman, aged 35 years, who resided with her husband in Oxford-chambers, Bourke-street, was found attired in her nightdress lying in a right-of-way at the rear of the premises. It was alleged that she had walked in her sleep through a window on a landing near the third story. She was removed to the Melbourne Hospital, where she died soon after admission.

On May 15 the Coroner (Dr. Cole) commenced an inquiry, and after hearing some evidence adjourned the case in order that further witnesses might be called, remarking at the time that the evidence which had been placed before him warranted a further investigation. The inquiry was yesterday resumed.

Charles Henry Turner, caretaker of Normanby-chambers, Collins-street, recalled, said: On the morning of April 29 I heard a sound of a scuffle. What I heard was more than would be caused by a person running with bare feet. When I got to the deceased I said, "How did this happen?" and she said, "I want Violet; I'm dying." She said she could not breathe."

Margaret Turner, wife of Charles Turner, said: I reside with my husband in Normanby-chambers, Collins-street. Shortly after 5 o'clock on the morning of April 29 I heard the sound of a scuffle or a struggle. After this I heard a scream and a thud.

Grace Donaldson, a single woman, living in room No. 30, Oxford-chambers, third floor, said: Deceased occupied room No. 8 on the same floor as that on which my room is situated.

Witness: Yes; she has mentioned her husband to me. On the night of April 28, she said, "My husband has annoyed me." When I asked her why, she told me her husband wanted to go out alone, and added, "I suppose he wanted to go out with that girl again." On Monday, at about 6 o'clock at night, I saw her standing at the door of her room in her nightdress. She called me and said: "I've been watching for you. I feel so ill. I want you to send a telegram for me to my sister-in-law. There are one or two things I must see to before it's too late." What she told me to write was, "Come at once; important." I added the word "ill."

Did she ever tell you anything about her husband and "that girl?"—She said she was very grieved at losing her husband's affection, and used to be in a terrible state over it. She told me that she would never divorce him and give him the chance of marrying the girl. She told me that he had said, "Now you be sensible and allow me to see her three or four times a week, and we can be good friends."

William Harvey, night watchman, employed at Oxford-chambers, said: I found the deceased lying in the yard, with telephone wires twisted round her arm, and in her nightdress. After I had, with assistance, carried her in I went to call Mr. Capeness. I knocked loudly at the door, but got no answer. Then I went and called out, "Are you there?" Mr. Capeness answered "Yes." I told him what had happened, and he asked me whether his wife was dead.

TELEPHONES.

PROTEST AGAINST RESUMPTION SCHEME.

THE PURCHASE SYSTEM.

A largely-attended meeting of business men was held at the Royal Exchange yesterday, to consider the resumption by the Federal Government of telephone lines and instruments installed under the purchase system. Under this system subscribers purchased both the telephone line and the instrument, and paid £5 a year to the Government for maintenance purposes, whereas, nowadays, users of telephones are only called upon to pay an annual rental for the use of both, the Government paying all costs incidental to installation.

The Government recently notified subscribers, who were using telephones under the purchase system, described above, that it was their intention to resume these telephones and lines, and to pay the owners compensation.

In many cases as much as £35 was paid for the installation of instrument and wire, but the Government only offered sums varying from £1 downwards. Furthermore, the Government informed them that in future they would be called upon to pay for the use of their telephones under the measured rate system, and not at the rate of £5 a year, as they had done previously.

This "compensation" was refused. Holders of purchased telephones claim that under the measured rate system they will be called upon to pay not £5 a year, but a good deal more, and that, therefore, their loss can only be compensated by the capitalisation of the difference between the payment they are now paying and that which they will be called upon to pay.

Yesterday's meeting was held, appropriately enough, at the Royal Exchange. The first telephone line erected in Sydney was run from the Exchange to Darling Harbour, about 30 years since.

Mr. E. Shirley Chapman presided, and said those present, who represented the pioneers of the New South Wales telephone system, were called together to consider the purchase by the Government of the telephones they erected themselves.

Captain Vine Hall said he had been the owner of a purchased line for the past 25 years, and he believed many people present had paid as much as £30 to £40 for the instruments and lines. When these people applied for telephonic communication there was no bargaining done. They were told that they had to pay the cost of material, the instrument, and labour, and pay a yearly sum of £5 for maintenance purposes. That was a contract to which the parties concerned agreed to abide, and one that could not be broken except by mutual consent or by special legislation. (Hear, hear.) The Postal Department had, since making this contract, constantly endeavoured to induce individual subscribers to give up the rights for which they had paid, and had succeeded in doing so in many cases. In cases where a firm or individual wished to duplicate their lines, alter their instruments or wires, they were not allowed to do so unless they abandoned their rights and privileges regarding purchased lines. (Hear, hear.)

Captain Vine Hall added that where legislation was brought into interfere with private rights on the grounds of public convenience it had always been the custom for the holders of those rights to receive adequate compensation. (Applause.)

A Voice: I have been offered 10s 6d. (Laughter.)

Another Voice: I am offered 2s 6d. (Laughter.)

"I have an unlimited service, at present, at £5 a year," continued Captain Vine Hall, "but when I have to take the measured rate system I shall have to pay £20 a year. I propose," he concluded, "that a small committee be formed to ascertain what is the best course to adopt, and that nobody accepts the miserable compensation that is offered them until the committee has taken that step." (Applause.)

Mr. A. B. Purcell seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

The statements of Captain Vine Hall were corroborated by several speakers, one of them, Mr. C. M. Drew, stating that although his line and instrument cost his firm £19 2s 6d he was offered 6s 1d for it. (Laughter.)

The following were elected members of the committee:—Messrs. E. Shirley Chapman, B. Miften, A. B. Purcell, C. M. Drew, W. A. Gilder, and Captain Vine Hall.

RECIPROCITY.

CANADA AND AUSTRALIA.

A SUDDEN CHECK.

NEGOTIATIONS SUSPENDED.

Owing to the political situation in the Commonwealth the negotiations between Mr. G. E. Foster, the Canadian Minister for Trade and Commerce, and the Commonwealth Government for the establishment of a reciprocal trade agreement between Australia and Canada, have been adjourned sine die. Mr. Foster explained to a representative of the "Herald" yesterday that, as the Government has ceased to possess a majority in the House of Representatives it quite obviously could not be considered to be in power, and any further negotiations with Mr. Tudor on the subject at present would be futile. He had discussed the subject generally with the Commonwealth Minister for Trade and Customs. Difficulties were bound to arise when they got down to items, but he was not pessimistic of an ultimate agreement being arrived at which would benefit the mutual trade of both countries. At all events he would leave Australia understanding the whole subject in all its bearings from the Australian as well as from the Canadian point of view, and this would assist him materially in resuming negotiations with any subsequent Government.

CANADIAN POLITICS.

MR. FOSTER'S VIEWS.

Mr. Foster leaves Sydney to-day by the Inaba Maru for Hongkong. He is visiting various parts of the Far East in the interests of Canadian Trade. Although his negotiations with regard to trade reciprocity between Australia and Canada have been suspended owing to the political situation in the Commonwealth, his visit to Australia in connection with the work of the Dominions' Royal Commission has been of the utmost value.

"I am just visiting," Mr. Foster explained to a representative of the "Herald" yesterday, "a section of China, Korea, and Japan, with the view of familiarising myself with the condition of things in those countries. I have had an expert there for the last two months gathering information, and I shall take up matters with him when I arrive in China. The object on the whole is to see what openings there are for Canadian trade, and how these may best be availed of. We do not have much trade at present in this direction; but it is a trade which is growing. The future of trade between the American Continent and these countries opens up vast possibilities, and it seems quite reasonable to expect that Canada should have her share of it."

Mr. Foster added that he hoped to reach Canada about the latter part of August, after an absence of six months. He will travel from Yokohama direct to Vancouver.

Mr. Foster was asked to comment upon the political situation in Canada. He is, of course, a member of Mr. Borden's Ministry, and has been kept in touch with political events in the Dominion whilst he has been in Australia. "The Government measure with regard to the Navy," he said, "having been defeated in the Senate, disposes of the bill for the time being. The probabilities are that the remaining business of the session will be brought to a completion as speedily as possible, and Parliament will then rise for its summer holidays. In the general course of events, Parliament will be called together in the autumn of this year, and what the Government will do in the matter of the Navy will probably be known by that time. There does not seem to be either necessity or wisdom in the Government going to the country on the defeat of the bill in the Senate, as the Government's majority is already large in the House of Commons, and another election would have no difference upon the party's strength in the Senate, which is about two to one against the Government. It may be that the party in opposition, having made its protest to the limit of rejection of the bill in the Senate, may consider that, all things taken into account, it has gone as far as is prudent for its own sake, and especially from the Empire point of view. It may therefore be disposed, if legislation is again introduced next autumn, to let the Government measure pass. This, however, is only conjecture on my part. What will take place will have to be decided by the Government itself in view of fresh circumstances."

"Do you think a compromise likely?"

"I doubt that, although, of course, I am not in a position to speak definitely on the subject. I think public opinion is in the country through and through strongly against the action of the Liberal party."

GALES ON THE COAST.

VESSELS SHELTERING.

PRINZ SIGISMUND IN HEAVY WEATHER.

The strong winds which prevailed all along the New South Wales coast yesterday morning increased in force during the day, and at 8 o'clock last night moderate gales were raging at Bellinger Heads, Nambucca Heads, Newcastle, South Head, Kiama, and Jervis Bay.

These gales brought up rough and heavy seas along the whole of the New South Wales coast, and stand-off signals were flying at Wollongong.

The steamer Prinz Sigismund, which arrived from Japan on Monday night, met exceptionally heavy weather off the New South Wales coast. The weather was particularly severe between Newcastle and Sydney Heads, but the steamer came through it without sustaining any damage.

Several small vessels were sheltering at South-west Rocks and Cape Hawke, and the steamer Kiltobranks, which left Byron Bay with the steamer Mokau in tow, at 6.40 a.m. on Monday, returned again at 5.30 p.m. the same evening.

VESSEL'S TRYING TIME.

KOJU MARU STANDS OFF.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The steamer Koju Maru left Port Pirie on June 3, and had fine weather until off Norah Head on Sunday afternoon, when southerly squalls and gales were experienced. As the vessel was in light trim, the captain steered her to the east and stood off till Monday. When the vessel approached the land the weather was still very stormy about the entrance to the port, and the captain decided to take the vessel again towards the east. During Monday night the storm was not quite so violent, and the vessel m[illegible] towards the port and entered at 11.30 this morning. Altogether the vessel stood [illegible] for 36 hours, and during that time the experience was a very trying one; but she was brought through without any damage being done.

HARMATTAN SLIGHTLY DAMAGED.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The damage done to the steamer Harmattan by being bumped by the Norwegian ship Clyde yesterday has been surveyed. The Harmattan was only slightly damaged, and will leave the port as soon as the weather moderates.

THE NAVY.

MR. CHURCHILL'S SCHEME.

THE CANADIAN SHIPS.

The announcement was made a few days ago by Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, that in consequence of the rejection by the Canadian Senate of the Canadian Government's proposal for the purchase of three battleships, the construction of three vessels belonging to the Royal Navy, which in ordinary circumstances would be commenced in 1914, would be started forthwith. There has been a good deal of hostile comment in Germany with regard to this proposal, and a section of the British press has also criticised it adversely. It may be desirable, therefore, to state precisely what effect the altered programme is likely to have on the relative naval position.

The original programme provided for the laying down of five capital ships this year, the total for the next six years being 25 as against 14 by Germany. The ship presented by the Federated Malay States and the three ships under discussion in Canada were to be additional to this total, this being the specific condition on which they were given and accepted. "There is the obvious dilemma about the colonial ships," said Mr. Churchill in introducing the Navy Estimates in the House of Commons last March. "Either it is said our standard of 60 per cent is sufficient for the time being or it is not. If it is not, prove to us that more is required, and if we are convinced we will increase it. If it is sufficient, then the colonial ships and other vessels are ipso facto abundant, and from that very cause an unjustifiable extravagance. That is in my opinion a false dilemma. They are additional to the requirements of the 60 per cent. standard; they are not additional to the whole requirements of the British Empire."

THE IMPERIAL PATROL.

Mr. Churchill went on to outline the scheme for an Imperial patrol, of which the Canadian ships were to form part. "Of course," he said, "it is understood that Canada will always retain a right to recall these ships on giving reasonable notice; but while they are under the direct control of the Admiralty, it is not proposed to merge them in the regular squadrons of the British fleet. We propose to form them with the Malaya and, if agreeable to the Domonions concerned, with the New Zealand into a new squadron of five ships of high uniform speed, to be called the Imperial Squadron, which would be based at Gibraltar, and from that station could easily reach any portion of the British Empire in a shorter time than any European force of equal power could move."

Mr. Churchill thus made it clear that the three Canadian ships did not form part of 25 ships to be completed within six years, and were outside the 16 to 10 ratio. He further elaborated the subject in a subsequent speech. In the year 1915, he stated, the figures of ships of the Dreadnought class would be—Germany 21, Great Britain 38, surplus above 60 per cent. 5; second quarter, Germany 23, Great Britain 38, surplus 2; third quarter, Germany 23, Great Britain 39 (including the Malaya), surplus 3; fourth quarter, Germany 23, Great Britain 41, surplus 5. In the year 1916 the figures would be in the first quarter—Germany 23, Great Britain 44, surplus above 60 per cent. 8; second quarter, Germany 26, Great Britain 44, surplus 3; in the third quarter, Germany 26, Great Britain 44, surplus 3; fourth quarter, Germany 26, Great Britain 48, surplus 7. "It will be seen," added the First Lord of the Admiralty, "from these figures that there is a surplus throughout above the 60 per cent. standard for those years . . . which never falls below two, and which rises as high as eight, giving an average surplus of four or five. These figures are prepared on the assumption that the British ships take two years to build, [illegible] three months' preparation, and the G[illegible] continue the practice of building in three years from the commencement of the financial year. The calculation assumes that the British ships are begun later than the German ships in each year, and finished three months later."

The expedition of three ships by a year will obviously increase to that extent the superiority to which Mr. Churchill referred—at all events after the third quarter of 1915.

THE NAVY'S "FOREIGN SERVICE."

Mr. Churchill's references to the "foreign service" of the Royal Navy are also of interest in this connection. "It has always been understood," he said, "that the 60 per cent. building standard against the next strongest naval Power was to provide a certain number of ships—the number has never been publicly defined—for foreign service. We came to the conclusion some time ago that the minimum standard of Dreadnoughts which should be maintained in home waters should be three to two as compared with Germany; that is to say, that one-sixth of the 60 per cent. superiority might be considered available for foreign service or for the general service of Empire, in addition to the surpluses to which I have referred. . . That is quite sufficient for the needs of 1915, with which we are at present dealing; but, having regard to the responsibilities of the British Empire, both in the Pacific and in the Mediterranean, and having regard in particular to the new development of force in the Mediterranean, it is clear that the margin of strength available for the whole world service of the British Empire would not be sufficient after the first quarter of 1916 unless further steps are taken either by the dominions or by ourselves. From this point of view the reality of the need of the three Canadian vessels can be well appreciated.

"It is necessary to make it clear that the three ships now under discussion in Canada are absolutely required from 1916 onwards for the whole world defence of the British Empire, apart altogether from the needs of Great Britain in home waters; and that they will play a real part in the defence of the Empire; and that, if they fail, a gap will be opened, to fill which further sacrifices would have to be made without undue delay by others."

The last sentence expresses in a nutshell the raison d'etre of the latest move of the Admiralty.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION LECTURES

THE KILLARA COURSE.

The first of a course of University extension lectures at Killara was delivered last night by Professor Francis Anderson, M.A., his subject being "The Philosophy of Proverbs."

Quoting Cervantes' epigrammatic definition of proverbs, that they were "short sentences drawn from long experience," the lecturer said that the morality taught in proverbs was a morality of prudence, often narrow and utilitarian. Proverbs were general truths only in appearance. They were not the only half-truths to be guarded against. Every generalisation from experience was a half-truth. It might be a useful guide, but it might also be either a useless truism or actually false when applied to a special case, as, for example, "labour is the source of all wealth." Proverbs helped them to remember that there was a great deal of human nature in man, and expressed the wisdom of life.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer.

Next Tuesday evening Assistant Professor F. A. Todd will lecture on "The Early Christians and the Roman Government."

HUMAN BONES FOUND.

At about 9 o'clock yesterday morning Leslie Benjamin Skinner, while walking along the beach at the rear of Sir Joseph Banks' pleasure grounds at Botany, discovered portions of an old coffin containing a number of human bones. He informed the Botany police, and the bones were removed to the City Morgue.

There is no doubt about the bones being those of a human being, and as there is no cemetery in the neighbourhood, there is very little doubt that they have been buried for many years. The reason of their discovery now is due probably to the recent heavy storms washing away the earth that covered them.

ELECTION SEQUEL.

ALLEGED CANARDS.

PROSECUTION THREATENED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Hughes) returned to his office to-day. His table was covered with newspaper cuttings and handbills which had been referred to him for opinion by the Electoral Department.

Referring to the matter, Mr. Hughes said: "I am looking into some of the statements made by the Fusion during the campaign, and they are certainly the most outrageous and unscrupulous that I have ever seen. Take the one I have before me here, which no doubt was read by hundreds of farmers, and influenced their votes. It refers particularly to the rural workers' log. The article declares that the children of every farmer will have to become members of the union, or else the log emphatically declares they must not be employed. The article claims that the little sons and daughters of farmers who are anxious to do some small work either for the sake of companionship or to lend assistance will not be permitted, to do so unless they are members of the union, and are paid the rates of wages set down.

"There is one thing to be said about that statement, and it is, that it is an outrageous lie. First of all, the law provides that no child under the age of 14 years shall be employed in the dairying and fruit-growing industry. This clause does not, however, apply to members of an employer's family. With these words staring them in the face, the papers concerned have prepared these articles, and outrageous and unscrupulous misrepresentations of the facts have been scattered broadcast. Further, the Federal Arbitration and Conciliation Act, under which the rural workers' plaint is laid, in section 40, exempts sons and daughters from the preference to unionists' clause.

"I suppose this lie, which was well known to be a lie by those who told it, was accepted as gospel by literally thousands of farmers. It was upon this basis of unscrupulous lying that the campaign by the Fusion and its supporters was carried on. We propose to prosecute all those persons who are in any way responsible for any statements of the kind.

FERRY DISASTER.

FIFTY LIVES LOST.

LONDON, June 10, 1.25 p.m.

News has just been received from St. Petersburg that a ferry boat on the Cheptsa River, near Glazov, sank this morning, and as a consequence 50 persons were drowned.

CANADIAN TARIFF.

GOVERNMENT PROPOSALS.

OTTAWA, June 10.

The Government is planning a revision of the tariff, to which next session will be largely devoted.

The western provinces are largely free trade, and the eastern protectionist; but it is hoped to secure a tariff satisfactory to both.

It is doubtful whether the British preference will be increased. The Cabinet is undecided on the point.

BRITISH TRADE.

LONDON, June 9, 9 p.m.

Board of Trade returns show that imports into the United Kingdom during May increased by £6,211,288, exports increased by £5,026,787, and re-exports decreased by £1,454,848, compared with May of 1912.

FRANCO-AUSTRALIAN TRADE.

PARIS, June 9.

The Australian section of the Paris Chamber of Commerce has decided to submit to Sir George Reid, the High Commissioner for Australia, suggestions for the securing of most favoured nation treatment for certain Australian staple products imported into France.

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS.

GORDON V COLONIAL SUGAR REFINING COMPANY.

LONDON, June 10.

In the matter of Gordon versus the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, the hearing of a petition to rescind an order granting special leave to appeal was concluded to-day, the petition being dismissed.

This appeal refers to an action by the directors of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company against the members of the Sugar Commission and the Federal Attorney-General for an injunction to restrain the commission requiring the directors of the company to make answers to specific questions. The High Court of Australia granted the injunction, and against that judgment the Attorney-General made application to the Privy Council for leave to appeal, this being granted in December last. The company then applied to the Privy Council for this leave to be rescinded, which application was to have been heard on Wednesday, being adjourned for a week on the ground set forth.

GENERAL CABLES.

LONDON, June 10.

Ernest Barry, who is to race Harry Pearce for the sculling championship, has now commenced strict training. He has only 3½lb in weight to get off. Pearce was twice afloat yesterday, and is very fit. M'Villy, the Tasmanian sculler, accompanied him in the morning.

VANCOUVER, June 10.

Sir Walter Buchanan, of New Zealand, in the course of a speech at a banquet last night stated that all parts of the Empire must share in protecting its trade. He was sure Canada's heart was as true to the Empire as was that of New Zealand, and when the opportunity came Canada would not be found wanting, but would stand for the integrity of the Empire as she had done in the Boer War.

THE SMALLPOX SCARE.

AUCKLAND, Tuesday.

FATAL SHOOTING.

IN A CITY HOTEL.

A MYSTERIOUS CASE.

A mysterious case of shooting occurred in the city last night. As a result, a man, whose name is stated to be Charles Steed, aged about 22, died in Sydney Hospital, and another man, Herbert Vincent Clinton, 31, a cabdriver, residing at 34 Brunswick-road, East Brunswick, Victoria, was treated for a bullet wound in the neck, and was allowed to go home.

Clinton, when seen at Sydney Hospital by a "Herald" representative, though suffering from shock, was able to give a coherent account of the affair, but his statement does not clear up the mystery, and the motive of the shooting is quite unknown.

"I was standing at the bar of the hotel," he said, "and was talking to the barmaid, when the other man came up to me. I have never seen him in my life before, having just arrived from Victoria this morning myself. From what I can remember, though it was all over so quickly that I hardly knew what happened, he pointed a revolver at my head and fired. I did not think it was a real one, but ducked instinctively. He then fired four more shots, and I did not realise even then that he was actually trying to shoot me, till I felt a pain in my neck, and putting my hand up found the blood pouring out. The others in the bar gathered round me to help me, and I heard a few minutes later that my assailant had fired the sixth shot into his own head."

Senior-constable Torpey, who was first on the scene, said that he was walking along Elizabeth-street, when he saw a crowd gathering round the hotel at the corner of Elizabeth and Campbell streets. He hurried down, and several Chinamen, who saw him coming, cried out, "Come quick; man shot!" He went into the bar, and found Steed on the floor. He at once called the Civil Ambulance, which took the injured men to the hospital, where Steed died, as stated, shortly after admission. The bullet had been fired right into his ear. Clinton's wound was slight, the bullet lodging beneath the skin on the right side of his neck, and inflicting only a painful flesh wound.

Very little information is available concerning Steed's antecedents. He has been known to the staff of the hotel for some time as a quiet and inoffensive man, who never drank to excess. He was apparently well supplied with money, and no motive is assignable for his act.

HIGH FERRY CHARGES.

A QUIET INCREASE.

THE VEHICLE SERVICE.

Attention was drawn by Alderman Clark at last night's meeting of the North Sydney Council to the increased charges in connection with the vehicle ferry services. These, he said ranged from 25 per cent. to 100 per cent. It was also, he understood, proposed to reduce the night services. The company had refrained from making notification of these changes through the press, and the inference he drew from this was that they did not desire the public at large to know what was happening.

The last census, he said, had shown how enormously the northern suburbs had grown, and in face of this abnormal development there should be no excuse for increased charges. The tendency should, if anything, be the other way. There were sites at Milson's Point and at Cremorne which the council could place at the disposal of the Government for vehicle services. He moved that the council strongly protest against the action of the Sydney Ferries in increasing the charges for carrying vehicles, and that the municipalities and shires on the northern side of the harbour be invited to join in this protest.

Alderman Reynolds considered that the increased charges were unjustifiable, and thought that the Government should be asked to introduce legislation to regulate ferry fares.

Alderman Clark, at the request of several aldermen, agreed to add Alderman Reynolds' suggestion to his motion, which was then carried in that form.

ADELAIDE CUP HORSES.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The majority of the interstate horses which assisted at the Cup meetings left for Melbourne by special train this afternoon.

The absentees were Penza (who is remaining in Adelaide for Tattersall's Cup, and may go on to the Barrier for the Broken Hill Cup) and Mr. Chaffey's horses, which are wintering here. Their places were occupied by the yearlings which Mr. A. T. Creswick recently purchased at Richmond Park, and the steeplechaser Barossa, who will be trained at Caulfield; the pony Erryog, who is to be raced on Mr. Wren's courses; and the jumpers Hardrada, Sandrift, and Common King. The last-named trio are under the care of Mr. J. A. Whelan, and may assist at the Williamstown races on Saturday if they stand the journey all right. Their customary trainer, Mr. Whelan, will probably leave for Melbourne early next week. Two or three other South Australian jumpers in Arquebuse and Eighteen Carat will probably be sent to Melbourne at the end of this week.

NO SUNDAY WORK.

THEOLOGICAL STUDENTS' COMPLAINT.

At a meeting of the Sydney Presbytery last evening a letter was read from Mr. John Bates, representing the students of the ministry at the Theological Hall of the Church, complaining that students did not receive sufficient monetary assistance. The letter pointed out that of 21 men in the Theological Hall, 18 were open for employment on Sundays in the pulpits. There were also 10 men at the University also open for Sunday employment. Lately practically no work had been given to the students, with the result that, being denied these fees, many of the men were forced into debt to enable them to get through their theological career. In many cases preaching was being carried out by members of the Lay Preachers' Association, who did not look for payment.

Mr. Steel was heard at the bar of the house in support of the appeal of the students.

The Rev. John Ferguson moved that the Presbytery appoint a committee of 12 to confer with the whole of the students in regard to the complaint.

Professor MacIntyre said the Presbytery had not taken the interest in the students that it ought to have done. The students were worthy of the help and care of the Church at large.

The motion was carried.

ACCUSED BEFORE THE COURT.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Ernest Austin, alias Ernest Johnson, a young man, appeared in the Central Police Court this morning, before Mr. E. Eglinton, P.M., charged with the wilful murder of Ivy Alexandra Mitchell, a little girl, at Samford on June 8. After evidence of arrest had been given by Senior-sergeant Powell, defendant was remanded to June 18.

there may be tea as good as Robur sold for the same money, or for even less. We can't say what may happen in the sweet by-and-bye. We, however, do know this, that there can be no purer Tea than "Robur"—and that just now there is none showing as good value at the same money.

For general use the No. 2 Grade is a good family tea—it has a nice flavour, and is very saving.

MERCHANT SERVICE.

CASE FOR THE GUILD.

HIGH COURT PROCEEDINGS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The hearing of argument in the special case stated by Mr. Justice Higgins on the claim made by the Merchant Service Guild for an award fixing the rates of pay and hours and conditions of work was continued before the High Court to-day.

Mr. Latham, who, with Mr. Bavin, appeared for the Merchant Service Guild, said the facts in the case were set out in an affidavit by W. G. Lawrence, general secretary of the Merchant Service Guild, in which it was related that in 1906 members of the guild were working under an agreement, which expired in December, 1909. It was desired then to improve the conditions of employment in the shipping industry, and accordingly a statement of suggested improvements was submitted to the employers with a request for a conference. The employers refused to grant the conditions asked for, or to meet the employees in conference. Thereupon the guild filed a plaint in the Arbitration Court embodying the demands previously made, and as a result of the mediation of Mr. Justice Higgins another agreement was entered into for a period of three years from December 31, 1910. By the terms of this agreement the terms and conditions of employment were substantially improved for about 400 members of the guild out of a total membership of about 1600. During the last three or four years the cost of living had increased to a large extent, estimated at from 20 to 25 per cent. per annum. To meet this increased expenditure the wages of workers in many other industries had been materially increased, and, with the exception of a small proportion of its members, the guild found it absolutely necessary that there should be an increase in the rates of pay. Several meetings of members were held, and the guild was asked in writing to demand certain improved conditions. The demands were duly made on October 12, 1911. Replies were received from some of the employers, but they were of such a nature as to hold out no hope that the demands would be acceded to. It was then decided to submit the dispute to the Arbitration Court, and on October 29, 1911, a plaint was filed. The Court commenced the hearing of the plaint on December 4, 1911, and an award was delivered on April 25, 1912. The general effect of the award was the introduction of practically uniform conditions of employment throughout the shipping industry in Australia. On December 13, 1912, the High Court ordered a writ of prohibition to issue against the Arbitration Court and the Guild, preventing them from proceeding further with regard to the plaint, and the award as against 43 of the respondents. In consequence of the remarks made by the Chief Justice during the hearing of the application for the writ of prohibition, meetings of members of the Guild were held in Sydney, and it was resolved to direct the secretary to demand from the employers concerned in the prohibition proceedings that they forthwith enter into an agreement to comply with the terms and conditions of employment set out in the award, with variations. As a consequence of the prohibition of the High Court the shipping industry of Australia, with the exception of that portion covered by the agreement made on December 31, 1910, had become utterly disorganised. Both employers and employees were demanding an alteration of the conditions of employment. Mr. Justice Higgins was asked in the circumstances to summon a compulsory conference. He did so; but no agreement resulted, and the matter was then referred to the Arbitration Court. Mr. Justice Higgins desired the ruling of the Court as to whether there was an industrial dispute within the meaning of the Constitution and of the Arbitration Act, and with whom; and if an industrial dispute were threatened or impending or probable, had the Court cognisance thereof for the purpose of prevention and (or) settlement.

Mr. Bavin argued that on the facts it must be held that there was an industrial dispute within the meaning of the Constitution and of the Arbitration Act.

The hearing will be resumed to-morrow.

VICTORIAN MINISTRY.

MR. EDGAR'S POSITION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Premier (Mr. Watt), who is in England, has sent a cable message, advising his colleagues not to take any immediate action with regard to the defeat of Mr. Edgar, Minister for Public Works and Health.

This is officially interpreted as an intimation that though Mr. Edgar has lost his seat in the Legislative Council he may be found a safe Liberal seat in time to make his resignation unnecessary.

Mr. Edgar had an interview with the Acting Premier (Mr. Murray) to-day, and is understood to have expressed his willingness to hand in his portfolio at once. He was advised by the Acting Premier to hold his hand for the present.

DEATH OF ARCHDEACON WHITE.

ARMIDALE, Tuesday.

Archdeacon White, who a week ago became seriously ill, died early this morning at his residence, Kiola, Armidale.

Deceased was 77 years of age. He continued to fill his clerical duties up to seven years ago, when he resigned from active work. He was apparently in good health two weeks ago, and attended, as had been his custom for years, the Newcastle Synod. After returning home to Armidale, he was seized with a paralytic stroke, from which he never rallied.

Deceased was educated at Oriel College, Oxford, taking his B.A. degree in 1858. Twenty-six years later, in 1884, he took his M.A. degree. He was ordained deacon in 1859, and to the priesthood in 1860, in England. He was appointed Rector of Muswellbrook, New South Wales, in 1873, and worked in that parish for many years. He was responsible for the building of the parish church at Muswellbrook, the plans for which were prepared by the late Sir Gilbert Scott. Elevated to the Archdeaconship of the Hunter in 1892, the deceased worked in that capacity until he resigned from active work in 1906, when he went to live in comparative retirement at Kiola, Armidale, where he died. Deceased shared with Archdeacon Tollis the distinction of being the only surviving members of the clergy, who were ordained by Bishop Tyrrell, the first Bishop of Newcastle.

EMPIRE DEFENCE.

THE COUNCILS OF THE NATION.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Mr. Allen (Minister for Defence and Finance) was entertained at Wellington by the New Zealand Club.

Responding to the toast of his health, he said that when in London Mr. Asquith invited him to every meeting of the Committee of National Defence. New Zealand's naval policy was placed on the top of the business paper at every meeting. Mr. Asquith invited New Zealand to have a representative there permanently, which meant that he had admitted the Dominion into the advisory councils of the nation. New Zealand could not, and would not, neglect to accept the invitation.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The huge high pressure still covers the whole of the continent and maintains the same barometric values as on the previous day.

Very little easterly movement has taken place, but a slight northerly surge is shown; the centre is still between Tasmania and Cape Northumberland.

With the centre travelling in these high latitudes, the unsettled showery weather and squally southerly winds are likely to continue for another day along the coast.

The monsoonal depression to the east of Queensland has moved further south; the outer isobar just touches New Zealand, while the Antarctic disturbance is to the east of the Dominion.

The new Antarctic disturbance is not making any headway owing to the stationary condition of the high pressure.

INCOME TAX FINE.

A TEST CASE.

A case of interest to all persons liable to pay income tax under the New South Wales Income Tax Acts of 1912, was begun yesterday in the Central Summons Court (Small Debts Division) before Mr. J. L. King, S.M.

The Commissioner of Taxation proceeded against Eugene J. O'Neill, as the registered public officer for Messrs. George Morgan and Co., Ltd., of 211 Clarence-street, for the recovery of the sum of £21 10s 7d, alleged to be due for a fine imposed under the Income Tax Act for delay in paying amount of tax assessed.

The amount claimed represented a fine of 10 per cent. upon a balance of assessment of income, the tax upon which had been paid subsequent to the expiry of the due date, under protest, and subject to adjustment in accordance with the completed return furnished.

The defendant alleged that the balance of assessment had been improperly made, and the tax thereon improperly charged.

Mr. R. M. Kidston, of the Crown Solicitor's office, appeared in support of the summons. Mr. A. M. Harper, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for Mr. William Harding, as agent for the defendant.

Mr. Kidston submitted that the defendant had no defence against the action at law. The Commissioner, he said, was entitled to sue for an unpaid assessment or fine, but a defendant had no option but to pay. A court of review was provided under the Act for the settlement of all disputes between taxpayers and the Commissioner. He held that it was not necessary to prove the case. He relied upon a decision given under the 1895 Income Tax Act.

Mr. Harper contended that there was a defence on the merits of the case, and if a person could be sued before a civil court, he had a right to have the merits of the action decided in that court.

His Worship overruled the point taken on behalf of the Crown. Apparently, he said, from the defence filed, there did exist a defence upon the merits of the case. He would therefore not determine the issue until the Crown had proved its case. He invited Mr. Kidston to put his witnesses into the box to prove the case.

Mr. Kidston then applied for an adjournment of the case for a week.

His Worship said the point at issue was one of very great importance. For that reason he would grant the application, in order that a day might be set aside to allow of the matter being threshed out thoroughly.

FINANCIAL.

ACCOUNTANTS' DEGREES.

From "Fellow" we have received the following interesting contribution on the subject of accountants' degrees recently raised in these columns. He writes:—

"The article under this heading in the Financial column in the issue of the 9th instant will, it may be hoped, arouse the public representative bodies, such as the Chamber of Commerce, the various trade chambers, and the leading accountants' institutes, to activity in securing reform. It will be to many a surprise to find that persons not eligible for admission to established properly regulated institutes of accountants should be able by the formation of new institutes to acquire degrees and letters of designation, and by so doing pose to the public as of equal reliability with their certificated members.

"The qualifications which should be essential prior to the registration of a person as a public accountant are:—Character, ability, experience, and the adoption of the profession as a calling. These essentials, it would appear, have been ignored by some of the organisations enumerated in that article, but as some explanation by way of defence may be forthcoming from such organisations, and as discussion in your columns may ensue, it might be the more advantageous if the discussion were directed to a consideration of what should be the objects of, and the basis of qualification for, membership of an institute of accountants.

"The objects of the older institutes have been amplified by experience, and as those of the later-formed institutes have been mostly copied therefrom, the aims of all the institutes are as printed in their constitutions ostensibly the same, and may be summarised as:—(a) The elevation of the profession of accountants; (b) securing the increased confidence of the commercial community; (c) discriminating as to admission of members; (d) to promote the interests of the profession and friendly intercourse amongst its members. But if the underlying reason or cause of the formation of a new institute is purely a selfish one and not really in harmony with the ostensible objects, the attaining of such objects if not altogether defeated will be much marred. And in this aspect it is the regulations as to the first enrolment and subsequent admission of members, and the personnel and status of the foundation members that are vital.

"Primarily any institute giving degrees authenticating the holders to the public should consist at the time of its formation and throughout its career of public (i.e. practising) accountants. What then is a reasonable definition of a public accountant? It may be given as a 'person of good repute, skilled in accountancy, and in the affairs of commerce, trade, industries, and finance, who is established in his own office, whose services during business hours are available to the public; whose principal business is the public practice of accountancy and auditing, and whose time is not controlled by any one engagement.'

"As a general principle it must, however, we fear, be conceded that consequent on the past and the possible future continuous propagation of new organisations, practically licensing accountants by the issue of certificates of membership of institutes, has passed its stage of usefulness. Has not the time then come for legislative enactment which will apply the remedy needed for the protection of the public?"

"Public Acountant" writes:—

Sir,—The best thanks of the business community are due to you for exposing the state of affairs into which the accountancy profession has been allowed to drift. I wonder how many of the public accountants in Sydney, to say nothing of the business men, could state off-hand to which of the various institutes the different degrees as published in your article belong.

As indicating how easily confusion may be caused I should like to point out that a slight typographical error in your article made it appear that the Fellows' Degree of the Institute of Incorporated Accountants of New South Wales carried the initials F.I.A.V. instead of F.I.I.A., in this way confusing one of the oldest established institutes with one of the most recent.

GOLDSBROUGH, MORT, AND CO., LTD.

The report of the above company covers the 12 months ended March 31. It shows a less profitable period, with a consequent reduction in the dividend from 20 to 15 per cent. The drought which ruled in the earlier portions of last year naturally had its effect on pastoral and wool-selling businesses, and although the losses of stock on the company's properties were very moderate, many of the constituents of the company were less fortunate, and the results are reflected in the modified volume of business done for the year. The company's wool sales consequently showed a reduction, the total dealt with, including 798 bales shipped, being 113,819 bales, which is less by 36,375 bales than in the previous year. There have been no realisations of any of the company's properties during the year. The report adds that the outlook for the coming year is at present very favourable, and the directors trust to be in a position to show improved results in the next report. The following is a comparison of the net profit for the past eight years:—

	£		£

1908-09	[illegible]	1912-13	[illegible]

An interim dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum was paid last December, and a further dividend is now declared at the same rate, together with a bonus of 5 per cent., making a total of 15 per cent. for the year.

N. S. W. LAND AND AGENCY.

The report of the New South Wales Land and Agency Company, Ltd., to be presented at the meeting on the 14th instant, covers the year ended January 31, 1913, and states that the past year, although the rainfall has been below the average, has given fairly satisfactory results, the prices of wool being well maintained, whilst the improved demand for house property has enabled the company to realise some of its holdings. The net earnings of the company amount to £22,252, which, added to the balance brought from last year's accounts, namely, £6716, gives a total of £28,968; after providing for the payment of debenture stock interest for the year, £6400, there remains a balance of £22,568. Of that amount the directors propose to apply £15,687 in payment of a dividend of 6 per cent. for the year, carrying forward £6881.

A CO. PROBLEM.

"Lincoln" writes:—

Sir,—Through the medium of your columns will you please give the difference between a "limited liability company" and a "co-operative company, limited."

In the eyes of the law there is no distinction between a co-operative and an ordinary limited liability company. The former, however, usually has some provisions in its articles of association limiting the amount of dividends that it will pay its shareholders as a return of its capital, and giving the balance of its profits either to its suppliers, as in the case of a bacon or butter factory, to its customers, as in the case of a retail co-operative store, or to its consignors, as in the case of a wool-selling company.

CASTLE SALT CO-OPERATIVE CO.

The report of the above company covers the 12 months ended May 9. It states that the business has been well maintained, and the slight falling off in net profits is mainly due to the increased rates of interstate freights. The salt harvesting just completed has been better in quantity and quality than for some years past. The profit for the year is £10,262, against £11,960 for the previous year. Distributions compare as follows:—

	1910-11. £	1911-12. £	1912-13. £
Net profit	10,009	11,960	10,262
Brought forward	5,086	6,410	8,785
Dividend	6,585	6,585	6,585
Written off plant	1,000	1,000	1,000
Do., freeholds	1,000	1,000	1,000
Do., leaseholds	1,000	1,000	1,000
Carried forward	6,410	8,785	9,462

The dividend is at the rate of 10 per cent., inclusive of interim dividend paid last December. The paid-up capital is £65,850, and adding balance, profit, and loss, £15,755, marine assurance account, and bank and sundry creditors £11,702, the balance-sheet total is £93,469. Assets include freeholds, leaseholds, plant, goodwill, live and rolling stock, £64,584, against £56,916 a year ago; stocks, £24,201, against £19,933; sundry debtors, £3989; and other items.

INCOME TAX PROBLEMS.

"Puzzled" writes:—

Sir,—Would you kindly give myself and others a little information on the Income Tax. I see it has to be paid on June 13. The position briefly is this. I receive in wages about £140 per annum, but a few months ago I received £400 through the death of a relative in New Zealand, and the money was sent to me here. Now, is that £400 or any part of it liable to Income Tax?

No tax is payable on the legacy.

FARMERS AND SETTLERS' CONFERENCE

ITEMS OF THE BUSINESS PAPER.

The following items appear on the business paper of the annual conference of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, which is to open in Sydney on Monday, July 7:—

That with a view of mutual assistance in case of strikes a register be kept by each branch of members able and willing to take the place of strikers, when delay is likely to cause loss and damage to producers.

That owing to the difficulty of obtaining competent labour for farm work, and in view of the fact that labour has now to be instructed by the employers (notably in the case of immigrants), provision should be made for apprenticing unskilled labourers and youths to farm work.

That provision be made for the instruction of youths and others in cheese, butter, and bacon factories in order to provide skilled labour in the near future, and that such instruction or apprenticeship form a part of the remuneration.

That the matter of liability of breaking the arbitration or wages boards award be discussed by the annual conference in July, with a view to enforcing the present penalties, and that each union be requested to pay a certain amount into a government fund as a guarantee of good faith.

That the government be urged to encourage as far as possible the immigration of female domestic servants from the rural districts of Great Britain and Ireland.

That the Government be urged to introduce a bill to license and regulate the conditions of and working of all industrial employment agencies.

THE OFFICE.

CARD FILES AND LOOSE-LEAF LEDGERS

MODERN METHODS.

II.

The business man is faced with three problems. The purchase or manufacturing of goods; how to sell the goods when they have been purchased or manufactured, and how to record his business transactions.

As regards the goods themselves, he must know exactly what these cost, either to produce or purchase. If he is a manufacturer, he must have an accurate "costing" system, by means of which he can tell, without leaving his office, what is being produced by his factory, and the price to him. To manufacturers, costing is the most intricate and important feature in their business. The old system of taking averages every six months is no use now-a-days. The manufacturer must know from day to day; nothing less.

Notwithstanding this, many manufacturers still continue the old vague methods. Their argument is that they have no time to evolve new systems, and any way the old methods seem to be alright. The real reason is not that they have no time, but that they are too involved with the old routine to appreciate its shortcomings. The wise manufacturer calls in the aid of the professional systematist, who regards each business simply as a "case" for treatment. His object is to put that business on a systematic basis. He is not hampered by sentiment or tradition, and so tears away all those cherished encumbrances that have seemed so indispensable to the principal.

It would be idle to attempt here an adequate description of a costing system. It has been truly said that the principles of costing are as simple as their application is intricate. Especially is this the case in large concerns that manufacture stock lines. We have been privileged by the courtesy of John Sands, Limited, to investigate a costing system installed by it some time ago in a large local manufacturing concern. In this particular case over 50 distinct records are kept for costing alone. Many would be inclined to regard this as over-systematisation, but results are claimed to have more than justified the labour necessary to operate the various records. Complete statistics are to hand always.

The second problem, how to sell goods, is equally important to the principal. For this purpose what is known as the "follow-up" system is used. Every business uses some form of "follow-up," and most have adopted the card system.

There are two definite forms of the "follow-up" system. One for mail order, and the other for houses employing travellers.

By means of newspaper and other advertising a mail order house attracts inquiries. As these are received, cards are headed up and particulars noted. The cards are then date-tabbed with metal signals for attention later on, in case no reply should be elicited. The signal which projects above the card indicates when the prospect should be "followed-up." It is the duty of the clerk operating the "follow-up" to refer each day to the card drawers, and take out the cards tabbed for that day. To these a "follow-up" letter, based on the original inquiry and answer, is sent. Quick reference is afforded to all past letters by means of an alphabetical vertical file. The general practice of mail order houses is to send an answer to every inquiry, and in the case of no reply to "follow up" three or even four times. As orders are received, the cards are transferred to a general mailing list, where they remain until further transactions arise. The mailing list is used for circularising and sending out catalogues. From time to time the list is revised, and obsolete cards removed.

Where travellers are employed the "follow-up" cards are written up from daily reports. As in the case of the mail order system, the cards are tabbed ahead as required by the travellers.

The effect of such "follow-up" system is to preserve a complete record of all prospects and customers, so that in the case of a traveller leaving, the house has full information regarding the clients in his territory.

We now come to the third or accounting problem. In a typical up-to-date office, as orders are received, they are handled by a typist, who at one writing makes out the order for despatch, two delivery slips, invoice, and daybook. The delivery slips and the order for despatch are sent to the shipping department. The invoice is filed alphabetically as a check against outstanding orders, while the loose-leaf daybook sheet remains in the typewriter until filled by other orders. It is then passed over to the ledger clerk for posting into a card or loose-leaf ledger. That operation completed the sheet is filed away in a loose-leaf binder, with the totals carried forward. When the orders are ready for despatch the despatch order is returned to the office, and the invoice removed from the "outstanding orders" file, and sent down for enclosure with the goods. It should be mentioned here that in many offices orders for despatch are numbered consecutively as a check. In the case cited only one writing of details is needed for each transaction.

The ledger, the most important of all office records, is nowadays seldom seen in bound form. Bookkeepers have no time to waste over a confusion of dead and live accounts, or cumbering their memories with long lists of folio numbers. With the loose-leaf or card ledger these troubles are eliminated, for here accounts can be kept always perfectly classified, and active accounts separated from closed accounts or filed sheets or cards. Authorities on this subject assert that the card ledger, far from being an innovation, is a reversion to a primeval method, before bookbinding was even thought of.

The loose-leaf system, besides being used for ledgers, stock books, and price books, is also employed for daybooks, cashbooks, and all other chronological records, the advantage being that sheets can be written up by the cashier or entry clerk, and handed over as finished to the juniors for totalling and to the ledger clerks for posting. They are then handed to the accountant, who files them in numerical order on a loose-leaf binder.

In the case of the cashbook this is a safeguard, as the sheets have to be completed by the cashier day by day, and any subsequent alterations must be made with the full knowledge of the accountant or secretary.

Another important improvement in office routine is seen in the handling of correspondence. Spike files and other small files have in many instances been replaced by properly-equipped flat and vertical files, in which papers can be turned up instantly by name or date. This arrangement of papers is modified for shires and municipalities, which have to arrange their papers under subjects and other ways. The effect of the vertical file, in which correspondence is carried in periods of a year or sometimes more, is to afford one place of reference for all papers. Another important feature of the file is that the papers are kept clean and can be as freely handled by the manager as by his filing clerk.

Binders, files, and card cabinets have been manufactured locally for years by the pioneer firm in this line of business. Indeed, it has established a high grade in local manufacture that has quite discouraged the importation of cheap low grade goods. Apart from any sentiment, an enormous business has been built up throughout the Commonwealth. Government departments now ordering these modern office requisites invariably stipulate for "local manufacture."

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

After a holiday business always drags in the markets, and yesterday was no exception to the rule. In every department the transactions were limited. In metals the strongest position was occupied by tinplates, which continued very scarce, with an upward tendency. Business at the close of last week was reported at 17/9, and, though buyers were still holding off in expectation of obtaining the tinplates for that price, it was questionable yesterday whether any could be obtained under 18/. Holders, who were few, were all agreed upon asking the higher price. As regards barbed wire and nails, the position was without change. Merchants were still complaining that they were unable to get their orders for barbed wire fulfilled. Nails, on the other hand, were going out very freely. Black wire and galvanised wire were steady at late rates. Wire netting was without improvement.

Despite the high price of lead in the English markets, £20 per ton, the f.o.b. price of whitelead—£26/10/ per ton—had not moved yesterday. This was looked upon as somewhat of an anomaly. Hence prices were very firm, especially for first brands. Linseed oil was unchanged at late rates, though the English market was slightly easier. Blundell, Spence, and Co.'s raw oil was quoted by cable at 2/0⅜ per gallon net naked f.o.b. Sales of Meggitt's raw and boiled linseed oil last week amounted to 2000 gallons. Prices of distributing lots of zinc white—under one ton—were advanced by 3/6 and 4/ per cwt, according to brand. Wholesale prices were without alteration.

The mail brought samples of tea of the usual monsoonal quality at high prices. Sales included 300 packages of Ceylons up to /10½ per lb. The mail news from India reported an increase in the crop of nearly 20 per cent., which, no doubt, explains much of the easier tendency indicated in the first sale of the season last Wednesday. It was also stated that in the Dooars more rain was needed. In Darjeelings, some improvement was noted, while as regards Assams the quality was rather inferior compared with the earlier teas, due, no doubt, to the rather wet weather experienced in that centre. According to the market report of Harrisons and Crosfield, dated Colombo, May 22, the strong buying for Australia at that week's sales continued, and prices for any teas suitable for that market were again very strong, and in some cases were dearer. Owing to the inferior quality the values now offering are very poor. Coloury, tippy brokens were also distinctly dearer owing to the Russian demand, but the common grades were inclined to be lower. Dusts and fannings were firm. The market for leaf tea continued firm for all grades except medium and low medium Pekoes, which generally sold in buyers' favour. Orange Pekoes were fully firm at late rates, whilst good sound common tea was steady.

TARIFF DECISIONS.

JUTE FABRICS AND SHIPMENTS.

JUTE FABRICS EX GRACCHUS.

	Woolpacks. Bales.	Cornsacks. Bales.	Branbags. Bales.
Sydney	2,000	700	300
Melbourne	1,350	650	650
Adelaide	700	200	100
Fremantle	..	50	250
Total	4,050	1,600	1,300

Shipments of woolpacks are heavy, and considering the time of the year, so are shipments of cornsacks and branbags. Cornsacks on spot are scarce, so that they will be wanted, but as to branbags, stocks are heavy. The position is made clearer by a consideration of the shipments for the first five months of the year. These shipments total as follows:—

SHIPMENTS, JANUARY TO MAY.

	Woolpacks. 1913. Bales.	Woolpacks. 1912. Bales.	Cornsacks. 1913. Bales.	Cornsacks. 1912. Bales.	Branbags. 1913. Bales.	Branbags. 1912. Bales.
Adelaide	3,550	2,750	1,375	1,425	700	1,575

The outstanding feature in these totals is the heavy importation of woolpacks into Sydney, 11,050 bales, as compared with 7900 bales in the five months of last year. Cornsacks, too, are heavier, but perhaps not beyond requirements. Branbags have been brought down in greater numbers to Sydney and Melbourne this year than last year. Last year chaff, for which the majority of bags are used, was in great demand. This year chaff is a glut in the market, and there are thousands of bales of bags in store. Those who are selling at present are speculators who cannot carry on, and importers who have decided to cut their losses. One noteworthy fact is that jute shipments have been brought down by eight boats this year, against five boats last year, and it seems to be the policy of the British-India Company, which now controls the carrying trade from Calcutta, to send a boat from that port whenever there is sufficient cargo offering. If this be so, it will do away with a great deal of speculation, and there will not be in the future the opportunity which existed frequently in the past to force prices beyond their legitimate level, owing to a temporary shortness of one or two of the fabrics on spot. In consequence of facts set forth above, branbags were weak yesterday, and out of the Cooyanna now discharging were offering at 5s 3d slings or 5s 6d delivered. Woolpacks were a trifle easier at 2s 8½d for all positions. Business was done in cornsacks on spot at 7s 1½d. Season's sacks were quoted at 6s 7½d.

SUGAR CROP PROSPECTS.

Regarding the prospects of the forthcoming sugar crop, the "Australian Sugar Journal" writes:—"Reports from the cane-growing districts generally are most hopeful as to the prospects for the coming harvest. The weather has been generally favourable, and planting operations have in most instances been carried forward under conditions which give good reason for expecting a satisfactory yield for 1914. The crushing this season will be a heavy one, should no untoward circumstances interfere; and there is reason to hope that the returns will do something towards recouping growers for the heavy losses they have encountered in the past through floods, disease, and other adverse influences. By the beginning of July, crushing in the north and centre will be general; and a number of the mills, in view of the present state of the cane, and the certainty of heavy crushings, are starting immediately. In the Cairns district, it is estimated that there are about 120,000 tons of cane to put through, a considerable proportion of which is stand-over, and a full six months' work is anticipated. On the Johnstone River, great preparations have been made in connection with the Goondi mill, and a crop of between 70,000 and 80,000 tons is in view, despite heavy flood damage, earlier in the season. On the Herbert River, they have something like 150,000 tons of cane for the two mills, of which 75 per cent. is plant cane: whilst there has been a good strike of the early planted cane for the ensuing crop, and the situation is hopeful, notwithstanding flood losses. Mackay millers and growers are alike anticipating a busy and productive crushing—returning something like 50,000 tons of sugar. The weather has been very favourable for some time past. In the Isis district, again, the estimate for the crushing to begin on 19th inst. is for over 100,000 tons of cane, and the crops are looking exceedingly well. The Moreton farmers also are in good heart at the improved prospects of their mill, which is now believed to be within measurable distance of discharging all its liabilities to the bank, whilst the cane for the coming harvest is expected to reach 30,000 tons, which is an increase of 25 per cent. on the quantity put through last year."

EXPORT TRADE.

RABBITSKIN SALES.

The third periodical auction this year of Australasian rabbit skins was held in London on May 7. The supply fell short of that offered in the March series by about 15 per cent. A fair proportion of well-furred skins was available—largely comprising stock held over, and of these some good examples came from New Zealand, while Australian and Tasmanian were often rather spotty. The demand improved as the auction progressed, and full season skins sold either at fully late rates or at a slight advance; in several instances New Zealand obtained quite high prices. Good cutting skins sold at March rates, but greasy, out of season, wormy stock, and kittens were not popular, and lost value to the extent of 1d and 1½d per lb.

Black and silvery grey and fawn skins were unchanged.

Of 1579 bales offered, 1147 sold as follows:—

New Zealand.—Well furred, 2/9 to 4/2 per lb.; fairly to well furred, 2/ to 2/7½; fairly furred, 1/6½ to 1/11¼; low in fur, /10½ to 1/2½; suckers, small and wormy, /8½ to 1/1½; fawn, /21½; black and silver grey, /11 to 2/11.

Tasmanian and Australian.—Fairly to well furred, 2/ to 2/0; fairly furred, 1/2½ to 1/11; low in fur, /7½ to 1/1¼; suckers, small and wormy, /8 to /18½; fawn, 1/2½ to 2/4½; black, 1/ to 2/1½.

Hares, 3/1 to 9/7 per dozen.

MARGARINE V BUTTER IN LONDON.

Representatives of the Australian Co-operative Selling Companies and the associated agents waited upon Captain Collins, the representative of Sir George Reid, High Commissioner, and pointed out the injury that was being done by the Australasian butter industry through the law allowing margarine to be manufactured as a colourable imitation of butter, and it was forcibly put before him that at one stage or another in the trading of margarine there was fraud. There was no doubt that margarine was sold by the manufacturer as margarine, and the retailers bought it as margarine, and they were of opinion that 95 per cent. or 97 per cent. of the retailers sold it as margarine, but when it gets into hotels, restaurants, boarding-houses, and private families, it was transformed into butter.

It was hoped that some movement would be made to stop the colouring, and in this way margarine would then have to be sold in its natural colour, which would be white, and it would sell for what it actually was—a good nutritious food—but would not be foisted upon the consumer as something other than what it really was.

AUSTRALASIAN COOKED MEAT IN LONDON.

A committee is being formed in London for the purpose of making applications to the Australasian banks, finance, shipping and meat companies, merchants and colonists, for contributions towards a propaganda fund to assist the organisation, establishment, and development, of an improved system for the realisation, distribution, and delivery of Australian and New Zealand frozen meats, by which they will be appreciated by the public, realise largely increased prices, and make the agents of shippers independent of "vested interests."

The leading features of the system are based upon the principle that the meats will be prepared for sale as cooked meats, which will enable them to be readily dealt with by retail butchers, bakers, and grocers. The system will be initiated by an organised movement to be carried out within a 10-mile square area of London, having St. Paul's as a centre, which will be subdivided into square miles, to each of which a butcher will be appointed, and to square half-miles to each of which a baker and grocer will be appointed. Each square mile will be deemed a district, the sales of meats within it being made by one butcher, four bakers, and four grocers, whose total daily sales are estimated to average two beef carcases and 10 sheep. The net increased returns obtainable by the preparation and sale of frozen meats as cooked meats, after allowing for charges and shrinkage, is estimated at £2 10s per beef carcase and 2s 6d per sheep.

The probable gross annual sales to be made in the 100 districts, by the daily sale of two beef carcases and 10 sheep in each, will be 62,400 beef carcases and 312,000 sheep.

The increased amounts receivable being:—

312,000 sheep at an increase of 2s 6d..	39,000
The total annual increased amount being	£195,000

The above estimate is for the trade in a portion of London only, the additional sales to be made in the districts contagious to London and the provinces will materially increase the amount. Consideration will be given to formulate the organisation for conducting the traffic so that the possibility of inferior meats being foisted upon the public as the prime meats of Australia and New Zealand will be prevented.

BREADSTUFFS.

A DULL MARKET.

Wheat was again dull yesterday. Prices were easier. Shippers would not offer more than 3/7¼ for parcels, though, if sellers had come down to 3/8, it would probably have resulted in business. For growers' lots the shippers and millers remained at the same price as at the close of last week, 3/2 for southern wheat, and 3/3 for western wheat, Sydney equivalent prices ex trucks being 3/6½ and 3/7½.

Flour was quiet, the association quoting £8/15/. Business in parcels was at a standstill.

LAST WEEK'S EXPORTS.

The exports of wheat and flour from the port of Sydney for the week ended June 7, according to the Customs-house returns, were:—

Wheat (in bushels): United Kingdom and Continent, 118,230; New Caledonia, 24; South Sea Islands, 41. Total, 118,295.

WHEAT.

Wheat was very dull yesterday, and prices were tending in buyers' favour. It was, however, difficult to quote in the absence of demand: 33/9 was asked for a South Australian cargo off coast, and 33/ for a Victorian cargo off coast.

Liverpool futures were quoted:—July, 7/5; October, 7/3½; December, 7/3⅜ per cental (⅛d, ⅛d, and ⅛d lower).

The following information is supplied by the High Commissioner's Office:—"South Australian, New South Wales, and Victorian wheat, prompt shipment, 37/6; on passage, 38/6 per quarter. Liverpool, spot, 7/5½; July, 7/5 per cental."

AUSTRALIAN FRUIT.

The apple market is extraordinarily strong. The shipments by the steamer Wiltshire reached an extreme price, although some were overripe. The bulk realised from 12/6 to 14/ per case: New Yorks 13/ to 15/6; Sturmers, 14/6 to 16/6. There was keen competition for pears, Winter Nelis realising 7/3 to 15/6 a tray, 14/ to 21/ per case; Easter pears, 9/ to 12/6 per tray, 16/6 to 22/6 per case; Vicars, 5/3 to 6/ per tray, 10/6 to 11/6 per case.

DAIRY.

BUTTER AGAIN ADVANCES. DEARER BACON.

The 4/ per cwt advance in the wholesale quotation for butter which was announced in Monday's issue of the "Herald" came into operation yesterday morning, when grocers found it impossible to secure the best makes under 106/ per cwt on the store floor, or 108/ per cwt delivered in boxes. This is the third upward movement which has taken effect during the past fortnight. Agents assert that these rapid fluctuations have been made necessary by the definite shrinkage in the outputs of nearly all the factories. The following are particulars of the prices ruling here and in London at this period during the past five years:—

Year.	Sydney price. Per cwt.	London price. Per cwt.
1910	114s	102s
1911	92s	98s
1912	120s	110s
1913	106s	108s
		unsalted 110s

In Victoria also the price of butter has been advanced ½d per lb, thus making the quotation for choicest western district brands 1/ per lb, or 112/ per cwt. This time last year Melbourne wholesalers were obtaining 1/3 per lb, but in the opinion of the trade it is unlikely—unless some unforeseen influence should upset present estimates—that prices will rise this season to the levels reached in the winter of 1912.

There was a brisk inquiry for bacon, and in the case of special brands quotations were slightly stronger. For sides, holders were asking to /8¾, for flitches to /8¼, for middles to /10½, and for shoulders to /7 per lb. There was no change in the prices of ordinary cures. It was stated that curers were now cutting hams for Christmas requirements. This will, of course, mean a greater proportion of flitches.

Eggs were unaltered at last week's closing levels. New-laid suburban were worth anything from 2/4 to 2/6, railways from 1/9 to 1/10, and Northern rivers from 1/6 to 1/9 per dozen. There was a fairly steady demand for all grades, but there is little doubt that the high prices are choking business.

The cheese market was featureless.

RAILWAY MARKET.

A LONG SALE.

LUCERNE HAY EASIER.

There was an exceptionally large sale at the Redfern railway markets yesterday, over 115 trucks being placed in position for sale. This abundance of produce was, of course, due to the congestion of supplies after the holiday on Monday. At the opening of the sale a large number of buyers were present, and with brisk competition, sales flew by in an astonishingly rapid manner. However, when at the top of the shed, the rain came down in torrents, and only a small band of faithfuls followed the auctioneers outside. Those whose misfortune it was to have produce exposed to the elements must be condoled with, as the sale was detrimentally affected in no small degree.

The principal commodity offered was wheaten chaff. Taking it all round, a very large proportion of the offering was sold. Quotations were unchanged. In two cases 5/6 was obtained at auction for consignments from Coolamon and Greenethorpe. Other sales varied from 4/ up. About seven consignments of oaten chaff were disposed of. This, again, was a very fair proportion of the offering. The highest price obtained was only 5/, this being due to quality. Prices for lucerne hay and lucerne chaff were somewhat easier, though not materially altered. The offering of lucerne hay was nothing out of the ordinary, but the demand was not up to the usual. In some cases the bids offered were a long way from the value of the produce. None of the hay was of special quality, and prices were low accordingly. In fact, the best price was only 6/, with a second sale of 12 small bales at 5/11.

A somewhat similar condition of affairs was found in the lucerne chaff section. The only really good consignment had to be passed at 6/8. The only quotable sale of wheat was effected at 3/6. The rest was, comparatively speaking, rubbish. Oats and maize sold at 2/ and 4/1 per bushel, respectively. A large quantity of potatoes was offered, but none of exceptional quality. The only really good offering, a consignment of Satisfactions, was passed at 8/.

Trucks of produce placed in position for sale totalled 115, and consisted of hay 14, chaff 65, wheat 9, maize 3, oats 1, barley 1, potatoes 21, pumpkins 1.

The following consignments were manifested to arrive:—Chaff 102 trucks, hay 19, potatoes 14, wheat 3, maize 8, barley 1, pumpkins 2.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

After the holiday there was a very firm demand for all commodities at the Municipal Vegetable Markets. There were, however, no supplies to meet this demand, owing to the severe weather in the country. As a consequence prices for everything were firmer, in some cases very materially firmer. For cabbages 2s to 9s was the quotation, whilst for cauliflowers of choice quality the unheard of price of 12s was being asked, and you could not buy them even at that figure. Swedes and beans fetched 3s to 6s. The only commodity for which the market was quiet was pumpkins. It is hard to break long-established traditions.

Current quotations were:—

Cabbages, small 2/ to 4/, medium 5/ to 8/, large 9/; cauliflowers, 3/ to 12/; pumpkins, 2/ to 7/ per dozen; Queensland, 7/ to 8/ per bag; vegetable marrows, 3/3 to 4/; lettuce, 1/6 to 2/; carrots, 2/ to 2/6; parsley, 2/ to 2/6; beetroot, 1/6 to 2/6; Swede turnips, 3/ to 6/; white turnips, 1/6 to 2/6; beetroot, 4/; Tasmanian 5/ to 6/; watercress, 1/6 to 2/6; mint, 1/6; herbs, 1/; spinach, 1/3 to 1/6; eschalots, 1/ to 1/6; rhubarb, 1/6 to 2/; parsnips, 2/6 to 3/; asparagus, prime 10/ to 15/, medium 6/ to 7/ doz. bunches; celery, 2/6 to 3/, onions, 2/3 per quarter; French beans, prime 3/ to 6/; peas, 6/ to 9/; chillies, 12/ per bushel; tomatoes, local prime 2/ to 5/ per half-case; cucumbers, local, 1/ to 2/ per half-case; Queensland, 3/ to 3/6 per bushel-case; potatoes, Victorian, 7/, Tasmanian Carmens, 8/6, Pinkeyes, 8/, Redskins, 9/6, Up-to-date 7/6 per cwt; jam melons, 2/ to 6/ per dozen.

LATE SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Ascot this afternoon, and an interesting programme has been framed for the occasion. Large entries have been received, including the cream of the "small horses," and several of the races will have to be run in divisions. The regular transit arrangements will be in vogue, special trams landing visitors at the racecourse gates, while the ordinary traffic to Botany will also be available. The first race is timed to start at 12.30 p.m., and the results of the racing may be anticipated as under:—Novice Handicap: First division, Malt Minnie or Nibbo; second division, Ida T. or Yengarie; third division, The Artist or Fair Lady. Highweight Handicap: Sanlender, Yucca, Caedmon. Fourteen Hands Handicap: Nosonosky, Prudence, Sinderby. Fourteen-two Handicap: First division, Edna or Master Dix; second division, Clysmic or Lady Alicia. Flying Welter Handicap; First division, Dulcify, Loreley, Crimson and Black; second division, Circumspect or Dublin Lad. Fourteen-one Handicap: Thea Merv, Miss Coreena, Bridgefield. Ascot Handicap: Simile Maid, Bombardment, Horace.

The Victorian lad S. Ferguson, now riding in England, had a winning mount at Chester in the Wynn Plate on Marco Prunella. Though Ferguson was an unknown quantity as regards ability to most of the visitors, even money was accepted about his mount, and he justified public confidence by riding an artistic race. Ferguson was a successful jockey in his native land, and also rode winners in India.

The inclement weather yesterday was responsible for the postponement of the meeting of the Australian Trotting Club until Monday next.

The Rosehill Racing Club yesterday received the satisfactory total of 291 entries for its Prince of Wales Birthday fixture on the 21st and 23rd instant, distributed as under:—First Hurdle Race, 17; Flying Handicap, 27; Granville Stakes, 24; Maiden Juvenile Stakes, 42; Rosehill Handicap, 15; Rydalmere Mile, 26; Second Hurdle Race, 15; Flying Welter, 27; Trial Stakes, 21; Prince of Wales Handicap, 13; Nursery Handicap, 26; and Carlingford Mile, 28. The entrants include a number of good performers.

The scratchings recorded yesterday, in connection with the Warwick Farm June meeting, were Swanee, out of the Pace Welter; Happy Miss, out of the Farm Stakes; and Rue Victoria, out of the Liverpool Mile.

All grass tracks were closed at Randwick yesterday morning, and most of the regulars did strong work on the cinder track. Those that were out included Culwalla, Marcuifus, Irishman, Irishwoman, Perdita, Minuo, Harpist, Cagou, Chiffonette, Virgilia, Ladies' Man, Mescal, Radnor, Canaque, Cynosure, Hallowmas, Blast, Duke Foote, St. Medoc, Estaffe, Leta, Niaña, and Cisco.

The steamship Moeraki, which arrived in port from New Zealand yesterday, had on board Mr. G. D. Greenwood's team of three racehorses for the coming spring campaign. They include the Charlemagne II. colt Emperador, and the Martian colt Cherubini, and they were accompanied by Mr. Greenwood's private trainer, R. J. Mason.

Nominations for the two days' meeting of the Cootamundra Licensed Victuallers' Racing Club, on the 18th and 19th instant, close at 9 p.m. to-morrow, with the secretary, Mr. E. H. Chandler, Cootamundra. The prize money aggregates £130, distributed over a dozen events, the principal of which are the L. V. Handicap, 9f, and L. V. Purse, of £20 each, and there is a trotting event of £5 on the card for each day.

At a meeting of the Narromine Turf Club on Monday night (wires our local correspondent) it was decided to hold a two days' races on July 25 and 26, the dates following those of the annual show. The racecourse is now amalgamated with the show ground, and, when all the projected improvements are completed, it will be one of the best appointed courses in the west.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs that Silver Wing was sold by auction yesterday to Mr. R. J. Moye, for 150 guineas.

CYCLING AND MOTORING

ALONG THE WATERFRONT.

Mr. Marcus Oliver, formerly associated with Mr. Arthur Davies in tuning up and racing the old-time champion speed-boat Fairbanks, is now in Sydney, his services being requisitioned by Messrs. Moseley and James to prepare the racer "N.S.W." for the speed pennant race on Saturday afternoon.

On Sunday morning Mr. C. H. Relph took delivery of Meteor II. (late Kangaroo) from Mr. Anthony Hordern, and slipped her alongside his other speed boat Meteor, where she will remain until a few hours before Saturday's race. Recently the 90-h.p. 4-cyl. Brazier engine with which she is powered was opened up, and it was found that the bearings, which are of phosphor bronze on steel, were in splendid order, despite the four seasons' successful racing which the little hydroplane has enjoyed. The connecting rods, it was noticed, are of hollow steel. The hull is of polished cedar.

The 50-ton ketch Floreaul, owned by Messrs. Weir and Whittey, and to be placed in commission in the Sydney-Hawkesbury River trade, is now being equipped with two sets of 15-h.p. type K Fairbanks-Morse engines, arranged to drive twin-screws. The engines are designed for running on kerosene fuel, and are an improved type to those recently turned out by Messrs. Fairbanks-Morse for the mission boat Evangelist and the Barren Jack tugboat. The work is being carried out in the yards of Messrs. H. D. Black and Co., Lavender Bay, and the vessel should be ready for her trials this week.

Although this is the slack season, the majority of the clubs not opening until October, and the attendant fitting out work not being commenced until August and September, the yards on the whole are, nevertheless, particularly busy.

Messrs. W. Holmes and Co. have a number of power craft in hand, including a 35ft raised deck cruiser, to be used by M. Sclosse, of Paris, in local waters. The internal fitting plans for this craft arrived from the Continent yesterday, and her 18-h.p. Loew-Victor engine, designed to run on either gasoline or kerosene, is ready for installation.

In the same yard the V bottom hull of a 22ft hydroplane for Mr. Mathews, of Goondi, North Queensland, is taking shape. The power plant, which consists of an Aster engine and reverse gear, will be installed on the arrival of the hull in Queensland. A 25ft cabin runabout for Mr. G. W. Whatmore is nearing completion, and will be shipped to Melbourne. A 45ft fishing cutter, built with a special well for the preservation of fish, is intended for the Northern Rivers trade. A 35ft raised deck cruiser is under construction for the Fijian Government, and a large number of craft, including a 40ft ketch, constructed of Fijin kauri, for Messrs. Nelson and Robertson, will eventually take up running in the islands. The latter vessel will be powered with a kerosene engine. For the Celebes Trading Company, Messrs. Holmes and Co. have laid down a 27ft launch and two 32ft sailing cutters for pearl fishing. The launch will be powered with a 10-h.p. 2-cyl. Atlas engine, running on kerosene. The beam of this boat is 8ft 6in.

Mr. Neil Harvey, the owner of Dungo, has formulated plans for his new boat. She will be a raised deck cruiser 45ft long, with a beam of 11ft, powered with a 4-cylinder Loew-Victor engine, and equipped with a combined electric lighting and self-starting plant.

The 45ft auxiliary pleasure yacht Petuna, formerly owned by Mr. Ingham, has been purchased by Mr. George Hyde, of Scotland Island, Pittwater, the transaction being carried out by Mr. Chas. H. Relph.

The Ladysmith, a 120ft schooner, is now in the yards of Allen Taylor and Co., Ltd., being completely renovated for passenger traffic in the Northern Territory. Two sets of 50-h.p. Atlas kerosene burning engines are being installed.

It was decided to retain the sum of £619 19s 6d, part of the proceeds of the British Isles tour, and the States, and New Zealand are to be consulted as to the distribution of the balance of the profits. The promising Sydney heavyweight, Gordon Coghill, will to-night be opposed to the Victorian boxer, Pat Doran, at the Stadium. MATT WELLS ARRIVES.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

Accompanied by his manager, Matt Wells, the crack English lightweight boxer, is a passenger by the R.M.S. Otranto, which passed through Fremantle yesterday. Wells is under a four months' engagement to R. Baker, of the Sydney Stadium. During the course of an interview, Wells said that he noticed that Mehegan had stated he was not satisfied with the decision in their last contest. His reason for coming out to Australia was to show the Australian public that he (Wells) had won on his merits. In their first contest Mehegan had won on a foul, but to this day he did not know exactly in what way he had committed a breach of the rules. In that contest he had Mehegan down three times up to the fifteenth round, when the fight ended, and on each occasion the gong saved him.

The English boxer regarded Mehegan as one of the most rugged and strongest boxers of his weight in the world. He thinks that the latter would have defeated Freddy Welsh but for the fact that he was compelled by the referee to stand up straight and fight. Mehegan, he said, relied largely on his crouch to win his contests, and this action of the referee militated against his success. At the conclusion of his engagement, Wells will probably proceed to America, where he hopes to arrange matches with Macfarlane, Ritchie, Wolgast, and Tommy Murphy.

MEN AS HOUSEWIVES.

From time immemorial (writes a Tokio correspondent of the "Daily Citizen") a little village has existed on the Cape of Shima in Japan, the name of which in Japanese means "the Settlement of Nymphs." Woman in this village is the predominant partner. The chief industry is pearl fishing, and it is the women who are the fishers. The men stay at home and do the housework. Recently some of the men became discontented, and started to practise diving, with the idea of themselves becoming pearl-fishers. The women, dreading the intensified competition, ordered the men to discontinue their diving, and as the men refused a boycott was declared against them. The men were chased from the homes, and had to take up their abode in a camp outside the village, a bachelor community. But they continued their diving, and finally the women expelled all the men from their homes, and undertook, in their clumsy, inexpert fashion, to do the housework themselves. The men, adds the correspondent, have petitioned Parliament for their rights. The local police, however, are trying their best to patch up the quarrel.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

At 1.45 to-day the curtain will rise upon the first afternoon performance of Mr. Oscar Asche's beautiful production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Titania and her fairy train playing round the translated Bottom; Oberon, Puck, and other creatures of the unseen world; contrasted with the lovers, amongst whom Miss Brayton figures as Helena, and the farcically rude mechanicals all live again to the sound of Mendelssohn's inspired music.

This evening (no matinee) "The Count of Luxembourg" will be presented at Her Majesty's Theatre by the J. C. Williamson New Comic Opera Company, with all the gaiety which marks Lehar's vivacious operetta. Misses Young, Arundale, Ghiloni, Talleur, Dickenson, Messrs. Andrews, Prince, Smith, Victor, and Percy, are all prominent.

At the Criterion Theatre there will be an extra matinee to-day of "Excuse Me" at 2 o'clock, when Mr. Fred Niblo, Miss Beatrice Terry, and the other artists of the comedy combination will again sustain the drollery and love interest of a play in which the entire action is ingeniously carried on in a Pullman car.

"Fanny's First Play," of which the sixth and final matinee will be given at the Little Theatre to-morrow, will be staged for the last time on Saturday night. On Monday next Mr. Hugh Buckler and Miss Violet Paget will produce for the first time in Australia the new comedy, "Bobby Burnit," by the author of "Brewster's Millions" and "The Fortune Hunter." The plan will open at Paling's this morning.

At the Adelphi Theatre the new attraction is the sensational drama, "The Girl Who Knew a Bit," in which Mr. William Anderson's Dramatic Company presents a powerful situation of love and sorrow on a lonely island, and upon wreckage in the open sea. Mr. Roy Redgrave, Miss Vera Remee, and other favourite artists are in the cast.

"On Our Selection" will be performed for the last time at the Palace Theatre to-morrow night, as on Saturday the Bert Bailey Dramatic Company will revive this popular Australian play at the King's Theatre, Melbourne. Mr. Bailey's creation of "Dad" vivifies the back-blocks "cockie," and other live characters contribute to a genuine success.

The American Musical Burlesque Company will open at the Palace Theatre under the William Anderson management on Saturday evening with the new two-act piece, "The Grafters." A bright and numerous chorus, a well-practised orchestra, and a party of new artists headed by four comedians of repute, Messrs. Le Blanc, Vack, Nowlin, and Burgess, will assist in a repetition of the recent Melbourne success. The plan is at Paling's.

The Stage Society cannot fail to interest their audience at the Palace Theatre on Friday night. They have Rudolf Besier's comedy "Don," an assured London success, to conjure with, and Mr. Gilbert Nathan to direct the stage, whilst the cast will include Messrs. Harrison Allen, Adrian Stephen, G. Nathan, Victor Cohen, Misses Gavis Brown, Rose Brown, B. McDonald, Eileen Hart, and Mrs. Smith. The performance will be in aid of the Shakespeare memorial. The plan is at Paling's.

At the National Amphitheatre, both afternoon and evening, the central star attraction will be the Royal Bannai Family's unique Japanese entertainment, which is drawing large audiences. Kathleen and Renee in their novel act, Klimo and Clifton, comedy gymnasts, Myra Gale and Sadie in their song scene, Geo. Drayton, Mysto, Little Verlie, the Lyntons, Will Rayner, Colyman Sisters, National Duo, will appear.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Actors' Association of Australasia will hold their first conversazione on June 15 at Mr. Walter Bentley's studio, 391A Pitt-street, opposite the Criterion Theatre. Light refreshments will be served, and during the evening Mr. W. S. Percy, one of the vice-presidents of the association, will inform the gathering as to the progress of the association. It is earnestly hoped by the council that all members of the association in Sydney will be present.

MADAME CLARA BUTT.

Messrs. J. and N. Tait announce the opening of the plans for the Clara Butt-Rumford concerts at Nicholson's on Monday next, and as interest in the reappearance of the distinguished artists is widespread, a rush at the box office is anticipated. Messrs. Tait have decided to issue coupons to applicants on Monday, entitling holders to secure their seats in rotation. Seats may be reserved at half a guinea on the ground floor, and at seven and six in both galleries. The concerts will take place on June 21, 24, 26, 28, July 1, and matinee 3rd, also on the 5th.

THE SOCK AND BUSKIN CLUB.

This newly-formed club made an excellent beginning at St. James's Hall last night, in their choice of Haddon Chamber's "The Idler," which possesses a strong plot, and more than one emotional situation, though the "comedy relief" is not nearly so good. About 1891 the play was produced in Sydney by Charles Cartwright and Olga Nethersole a few weeks before the original London production at St. James's Theatre. The plot works out in such a way that Mark Cross, returning from a wild life in California to marry (as he hopes) a former sweetheart, finds her the wife of Sir John Harding. He recognises in this man a gambler who, having committed a murder in a miners' drunken brawl, is now in the power of his victim's brother, Simeon Strong. Mark Cross persuades Strong to write a letter of forgiveness to Harding, and then offers it to Lady Harding on condition that she will come to his chambers at midnight for it. In this scene Miss Isla Vivienne Asche acted with sincerity of feeling as Lady Harding in the appeal to the better nature of her former admirer; Mr. Norman Ziens also suggested truly the internal emotion and grief of Mark Cross. Other well-played parts were those of Strong, by Mr. Hugh D. Jennings, and of the vivacious Kate Merryweather, by Miss Nea Sherlock. Mr. Eric Mitchell was somewhat casual in his manner at times as Sir John Harding, and the love-scenes amused the audience, as frequently happens at club performances for reasons not understood by the outside visitor. There was a crowded audience, and the reception of the play was cordial.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

The Austral String Quartet's next concert takes place in St. James' Hall to-morrow, at 8 p.m. Madame Grace Miller Ward will be the vocalist, and Miss Constance Bailey the pianist. The quartet, under Mr. Cyril Monk's leadership, will play Ernest Truman's new quintet for horn and strings (with the assistance of Mr. J. A. Arcus), Beethoven's String Quartet No. 2, and Brahms' Pianoforte Quintet in G Minor. The plan is at Nicholson's.

Another fine programme has been arranged for next Saturday afternoon's concert by the Sydney Symphony Orchestra. Mlle. Eva Gauthier will join with the orchestra in singing the airs from "L'Enfant Prodigue" (Debussy) and from Charpentier's "Louise." Miss Doris Madden will play Saint-Saens' Fifth Pianoforte Concerto with the orchestra. Mr. Joseph Bradley will also conduct the symphonic suite "Scheherazade" (Rimsky-Korsakoff) and Raff's "Cavatino" for violins and orchestra, and "Mock Morris" (Percy Grainger). The plan is at Nicholson's.

The concert in aid of the Renwick Hospital for Babies will take place at the Repertory Theatre, Grosvenor-street, on Saturday evening next. A programme of exceptional interest will be presented by Misses Daisy Sweet, Maggie Ross, Millie Gallagher, and Hilda Thorndike, Messrs. Sid. Macdonald, H. J. Ratcliffe, Chas. Philip, Tom Midelton, Chas. Walsh, and students of Austral Orchestral College. The plan is at Nicholson's.

At the midday organ recital in the Pitt-street Congregational Church to-day, Miss Lilian Frost, will play the "Soccata and Fugue in D Minor" (Bach), Barcarole (Sterndale-Bennett), prelude and bridal music from "Lohengrin." Miss Mabel Woolcock, of Queensland, will be the assisting artist.

Mlle. Jessica, a young contralto, with an unusually fine voice, will give a concert at the Town Hall to-night, when she will be supported by Misses Brenda Deloitte, Leila Jeffery, Hilda Thorndyke, Messrs. Laurance Phillip, Sid. Macdonald, Albert Fisher, Percy Herford, Sidney T. Price, and Harry Thomas. More than 1200 seats have already been reserved at Paling's.

At the Bertram Flohm students' recital at St. James's Hall on Friday next, Messrs. Chas. Walsh, Maurice Rosenthal, Misses Nellie Jefferson O'Keefe, and Jessie Stigings will introduce several new musical monologues, whilst Miss Benita Pascoe Pearce will act a scene "Cleopatra," and Little Gypsy Middlehurst will bring forward some new humourous sketches. The plan is at Paling's.

Miss Doris Madden will give a piano recital at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on to-morrow week. This artist, who makes her re-appearance on Saturday with the Symphony Orchestra, attracted favourable attention at her piano recital last year. The plan is at Paling's.

The Metropolitan Band will give a concert in the Town Hall on Sunday afternoon. The assisting artists will be Miss Kathleen Long, Mr. Sid. Macdonald, Miss Gladys Bourke, and Miss Elsie Fisher (accompanist). The band, under Mr. Palmer, will render "The Mountain Sylph," "Maritana," "Poet and Peasant," "The Abyssinian Expedition," and other selections.

OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

The attendances at the Lyceum to witness the pictorial production of "Quo Vadis?" show no diminution, notwithstanding the fact that the drama is now in its fifth week. The eleventh matinee will be held to-day, when the doors will be opened at 1 o'clock, and the performance will begin at 2.30 p.m.

"The Gentler Passion" is the title of the picture film in the current bill at West's Olympia, Oxford-street. Some excellent scenes from the studios and night haunts of Paris are shown. There will be a change of programme to support the star film to-morrow night.

"Cleopatra," with Helen Gardner, one of the leading actresses of the United States, in the title role, is the attraction at the Crystal Palace Theatre this week. The production has been a big success, and promises to pack this large house for the remainder of the week.

There will be an entire change of programme at the Lyric Theatre to-morrow, when the feature film of a strong bill will be entitled "Tragedy of the Black Rock." It is a film that contains plenty of thrilling situations. There will be some good dramatic and comic subjects to support the feature picture.

At the Colonial Theatre to-morrow the change of programme will introduce "The Home of Darkness," the feature film of a fine bill. This is described as a powerful drama. Some scenic beauties will be shown in the pictures of old Rome. These should appeal to all.

The new programme to be introduced at the Empress Theatre to-morrow will have as its feature film "The Spider," which is described as depicting a loving woman's terrible sacrifice. The "Warwick Chronicle" will show many of the latest happenings in the old world, and there will be the usual comic and dramatic subjects.

There will be a hockey match at the Glaciarium to-morrow night. Some exciting play should be witnessed, as the teams have been undergoing strong practice. This afternoon Professor Witte will give an exhibition of fancy skating, and to-morrow afternoon Professor Allander will give a demonstration.

Large attendances continue at every session at the Royal Roller Rink, Agricultural Grounds, Moore Park, where free instruction is given to learners on a rink especially set aside for them. There are three sessions daily. The Royal Orchestra plays at afternoon and evening sessions. On Saturday there is music at all sessions.

"Imperial Cinderella" is the title of a carnival now being arranged to be held at the Imperial Roller Rink, William-street, about August 4. The rink should present the appearance of a huge fairyland. Three sessions are held daily, with music at each.

To-night a gymkhana will be held at the Coliseum, North Sydney. A mile scratch race and four novelty races will be held.

GROWING SYMPATHY WITH CRIME

The opportunities afforded by crime for notoriety and the amount of sympathy displayed by the public for offenders are declared by Mr. W. J. Pringle, chief constable of Blackpool, in his annual report, to be factors in the commission of crime. Nowadays, he says, a man has only to be put on his trial on a grave charge to bring forth a display of public sentiment almost amounting to open and active opposition to the execution of the law. He regards this as serious. Educated criminals who openly swindle people and know sufficient of the law to evade it are, he says, on the increase.

MANLY v. W. AND S. BOARD v KATOOMBA.

A triangular match was shot on the Manly range on Monday (King's Birthday) by teams representing the Manly, W. and S. Board, and Katoomba Clubs. The conditions, owing to the adverse weather, were limited to 10 shots at 500 yards, 12 men a side, best ten to count. TOWN'S 1000TH BIRTHDAY.

The little Essex town of Witham attains its millennary this year, and a meeting will shortly be held to consider the best means of celebrating the event.

According to the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, Edward was engaged about Maldon expelling the Danes and Scandinavians who had settled there, and he directed the operations from his quarters in the Witham fort.

BISPHAM SONG RECITALS.

Mr. David Bispham, who has an unusually extensive repertoire of more than 150 songs, which he sings from memory, wisely included a number of repetitions in last night's song recital at the Town Hall. The eminent American baritone had not been heard before, however, in his opening number, "Thus Saith the Lord," which he declaimed with the dignity and weight of the famous oratorio-artist that he is, following the recitative with the aria, "But Who May Abide." The presto was rendered with the utmost fluency; and another sacred number that aroused enthusiasm was Beethoven's "Creation's Hymn," his interpretation of which possesses a majesty inspired alike by the music and the words. At this point the artist sang as encore "O Star of Eve," delivered with the noble pathos which belongs to the character of Wolfram.

In the course of a capital programme, the star repeated Loewe's "Tom, the Rhymer," an old ballad which he sings charmingly, and in which he is much assisted by Mr. Harry Gilbert's sparkling touch in suggesting the silver bells that tinkled on the fairy's gallant white steed. Special mention should also be made of the baritone's splendidly dramatic rendering of Meyerbeer's "The Monk," in which the deep bass notes of the great voice, with its double range, enhanced the interest of a finished performance. Here Mr. Bispham sang "I'm a Roamer" as encore; and several other extra numbers rewarded the enthusiasm of the house before the evening ended. Mr. Harry Gilbert played with sentiment Franz Bendel's "Sunday Morning at Glion," the atmosphere of which he felicitously sustained, and he was then warmly encored for his own clever valse, "Gabrielle." The extra number was a serenade by Sinding.

Mr. Fred. Shipman announces the final concerts for Friday and Saturday evenings, when varied programmes will be submitted. The plans are at Paling's.

AUSTRALIA IN LONDON.

COMMONWEALTH OFFICES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

It was stated by the Home Affairs Department to-day that the plans for the Commonwealth building in London as amended provide for the utmost accommodation that the restriction regarding height laid down by the London County Council will admit.

As a result of Mr. J. S. Murdock's visit to London, the excessive grandeur which the original plans provided for has been reduced. What has been retained is considered to be fully consistent with the importance and purpose of the building. The alterations made will enable the Commonwealth Bank to be housed. Under the new scheme the High Commissioner and his staff will also be provided with magnificent rooms at the corner of the building. The additional space secured is estimated to have a value for letting purposes of over £3000 per annum.

One of the most interesting features is that Australian born artists will do the sculpture and decorations.

GOVERNMENT OFFICES IN DANGER.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The basement of the Government offices caught fire this afternoon in Victoria-square.

The danger was over in less than an hour. The damage was principally among the dockets and light wood shelves and furnishings, representing a money value of not more than £25 or £30.

Some documents were destroyed relating to public works constructed in the early history of the State, which had therefore a worth far beyond their intrinsic appraisement.

MURDER CHARGE.

"IS THE MAN DEAD?"

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Police-constable Ruming said when charged with the murder defendant made no reply, but after a pause said, "What, is the man dead?" Defendant was remanded till to-morrow.

SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY.

"Some Old Men and Old Women in Shakespeare" was the title of a paper read by Miss D. Armstrong, B.A., before the Shakespeare Society last evening.

Miss Armstrong selected Dame Quickly in the "Merry Wives of Windsor," Dogberry and Verges, the two foolish officers in "Much Ado About Nothing," Juliet's nurse, and other characters. The lecturer showed, no matter whether they considered Dame Quickly's wise diplomacy and ready wit or Dogberry's pompous utterances, that they were all characters humanly drawn and thoroughly representative of their class.

The lecturer analysed the characters selected in an interesting way, and showed that even the most insignificant characters served their purpose thoroughly, and filled their parts with lifelike exactitude. At the conclusion Miss Armstrong was accorded a vote of thanks on the motion of Mr. W. Liggins, seconded by Mr. Everard Digby.

NORTH SHORE TRAM SERVICES.

The time-tables of the Mosman and Cremorne tram services are to be altered shortly to dovetail with altered ferry services, which are, it is understood, to operate from the beginning of next month.

The residents of Willoughby are agitating for an accelerated service to that suburb. The original half-hourly service was some time ago converted into a 20-minute one, but the change in no way meets the requirements of travellers, who have initiated a movement to secure a 10-minute service, which, it is held, is justified by the great growth of the district. A deputation will wait on the Chief Commissioner for Railways on the subject shortly.

"HEROINE OF THE MERSEY."

Mrs. Joynson, the only woman lighthouse-keeper in England, kept her last watch on April 23 (states a London journal), at Hale, on the banks of the Mersey. She is known as "the heroine of the Mersey." For 20 years she has lived in the lighthouse, and for four years, since the death of her husband, she has been the official keeper.

"My life has not been an unhappy one here," said Mrs. Joynson, "and it is a wrench to go. I have done duty for three and a half hours before and after high tide, and have had to keep the light burning at night time, and the fog bell ringing if necessary. On several occasions I have rung the bell for the whole seven hours. Once we had nearly a fortnight of fogs, but I got through it all right."

ROUGH ON RATS.

The romance of a fortune that was made out of revenge is recalled by the death of Mr. E. S. Welles, the inventor of a world-famous rat poison. When Mr. Welles and the man with whom he then worked were living in poverty and had only a single loaf of bread between them and starvation, this last morsel of food was eaten by rats. Welles swore vengeance (the "Express" relates), and set about discovering a means to rid the world of rats. After numerous experiments he began the manufacture of "Rough on Rats" in an old barn in Jersey City, and in four years he rose to affluence.

MINING.

COPPER AND SILVER STOCKS SLACK.

ARDLETHAN STOCKS SOLID.

GOOD BUSINESS AT STRONG RATES.

Outside Ardlethan stocks, the market yesterday morning was very sluggish. This was particularly the case with copper and silver shares.

It was manifest that in regard to them operators are marking time, until some decided improvement is shown in the London Stock Exchange and London metal market. As regards the former, the "middle" quotations on Saturday showed that a sluggish tone still pervades the London Stock Exchange, and this has undoubtedly had its effect upon local operators.

It is quite true that an advance in the price of lead was greatly welcomed by holders of Barrier stocks, but it failed to stimulate speculation in the face of the evident lack of vitality shown by the London Stock Exchange. The same remarks apply with equal force to the copper division.

With the copper, silver, and gold divisions out of the running, from a speculative point of view, operators concentrated their attention upon Ardlethan propositions, and a considerable amount of business was transacted at rising rates.

The tone of the market was decidedly sound, and it is a fair assumption that this was due to the fact that taking advantage of the holiday on Monday several members of the Stock Exchange visited the Ardlethan field on Saturday and Sunday, and were thus able to judge for themselves as to the prospects of the field. It was learned that they were most favourably impressed with the manner in which the tin lodes are developing, but they admit that before the mines reach a productive stage, as regards the despatch of their own concentrates, a considerable amount of money will require to be expended. In their opinion, one of the most costly items of expenditure will be the provision of water for concentration purposes. As to the field generally, it is regarded as a very promising one, the extent of value of which is expanding as prospecting work proceeds.

In another portion of this issue is published the report of the manager of the Carpathia tin mine regarding the nature of the developments in the lode during last week. It is of a satisfactory character, and fully accounts for the sound position occupied by the shares during the afternoon. The Nos. 1, 3, and 4 shafts are still going down, and carrying the values with them, likewise highly payable ore values. Indeed, the ore coming out of No. 4 shaft is, the manager states, "beyond doubt high in values in both the selected and milling grades." As to the No. 1 shaft, it is down 92ft, and is showing good milling ore in the north end. There is no talk here of the ore body cutting out, whilst at 86ft "a 4ft bore hole being drilled into the western side (the hanging wall side) of the shaft, proved good milling ore the whole distance." According to the "Know-alls" and experts, this should not be so.

Furthermore, a report from the secretary of the company shows a healthy state of affairs in respect to the last crushing of 273 tons of ore at Wyalong. It produced 916 bags of 60 per cent. concentrates, whilst a parcel of 17¼ tons of crude ore sent to Sydney assayed 54.5 per cent. of tin, whilst 15 tons assayed 52 per cent. The metal contents of those two parcels are worth £116 and £111 16s per ton of crude ore.

A report from two of the directors of the Big Bygoo, who visited the mine on Friday, also tended to strengthen the growing belief that the Ardlethan field is not going to prove a fizzle. A report from our Ardlethan correspondent likewise bears out this view. Under all these circumstances, it was not surprising that the tone of the market for Ardlethan stocks was distinctly healthy. It is also understood that firmness of the stocks was also due to the advent of some Ballarat speculators to the ante-chamber of the Stock Exchange.

The copper, silver, and gold sections of the market were quiet.

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Ltd., has received a cable message, dated London, June 9, giving the following quotations:—Silver, 2/3 9-16 (official quotation); lead, £20/5/ (buyers' price); company's shares, £1/15/9 (buyers' price); spelter, £22/17/6 (buyers' price); copper, £66/8/9 (buyers' price).

In his report for the fortnight ended June 7 the manager of the New Burragorang Silver-mining Company (Yarranderie), referring to the Clark shaft, states:—"Sinking and driving has been carried on as usual during the past fortnight, and the manager reports that 1ft of second-grade ore is showing in the face of No. 1 level, west, and from 18in to 2ft 6in of good second-grade ore in the No. 4 level, east."

Our Perth correspondent telegraphs:—"The passengers by the R.M.S. Otranto, which passed through Fremantle yesterday, included Mr. Rutter Clark, a well-known Victorian mining man, who is returning from an extended trip abroad. When asked whether he had anything to say in regard to mining matters, Mr. Clark replied that his trip had been undertaken solely for the sake of his health, and consequently he had not paid much attention to business while in England. The feeling towards Western Australian mines was not very favourable, with the exception of the Bullfinch and Associated Northern mines. Broken Hill stocks, he added, found more favour with the public, while the outlook for metals was very satisfactory."

LODES DEVELOPING WELL.

ARDLETHAN, Tuesday.

At the White Crystal the main shaft is down 25ft with no change. At No. 2 shaft sinking has ceased until better arrangements are made for hauling. Crosby's adit is in 80ft in quartz porphyry.

At Stackpool's Block the shaft on the east lode is 14ft deep. The lode is the full width of the shaft, and is carrying tin.

At the Wild Cherry, Hough's shaft is down 81ft, the lode continuing full width of shaft without break, and carrying high tin values. There are 5ft of ore in the bottom of the shaft. The No. 1 is now down 82ft in lower grade ore. Smith's No. 2 shaft is down 50ft on low-grade ore, which will pay well for treating on the mine. Several of the directors and the secretary paid a visit to the mine yesterday.

At the Central Block Options the shaft is down 30ft, the first 10ft in low-grade ore. The lode is hard and well defined. The last shots on Saturday opened up very rich tin ore, values being 60 per cent. metallic tin. The prospects at present are very good.

BROKEN HILL MILLING RETURNS.

Junction North Broken Hill mine, weekly report:—Treated crude ore 2000 tons, purchased ore 684 tons, slimes 940 tons, sandy tailings 256 tons, and zinc middlings 135 tons. Produced lead concentrates 662 tons, assaying 56.4 per cent. lead, 32.8oz silver, and 13.8 per cent. zinc; also 352 tons of concentrates, assaying 7.4 per cent. lead, 14.3oz silver, and 42 per cent. zinc; 70 tons of second-grade concentrates produced included in the above return. The mill ran 144 hours.

North Broken Hill Weekly Return.—Treated 6185 tons crude ore, assaying 15.6 per cent. lead, 7.2oz silver, and 13.4 per cent. zinc, producing 1075 tons concentrates, assaying 60.6 per cent. lead, 22oz silver, and 6.4 per cent. zinc.

HAMPDEN-CLONCURRY COMPANY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The purchase by the Hampden-Cloncurry Copper Mines, Ltd., of the leases and other property of the Macgregor-Cloncurry Copper Mines, Ltd., has been completed, and the balance of the purchase money paid over. A final dividend at the rate of £18/19/4 per 100 shares in the Macgregor Company is being distributed.

BIG BYGOO, LIMITED.

VISIT OF TWO DIRECTORS.

The secretary of the above company writes:—

"I beg to advise that two of the directors, accompanied by the secretary, visited the mine on Friday last, 6th inst, and report that they are pleased with the satisfactory progress being made with the work of developing the property.

"At the western workings the new prospecting shaft is being put down in country rock on the hanging-wall side of the big lode at the rate of 12ft a week, and was then 21ft deep. It is expected that this shaft will cut the lode at a depth of about 50ft. On the recommendation of the mine manager, the directors approved of a second shaft being sunk on the lode at a distance of about 100ft further east. This will go down in the lode, enabling it to be sampled at regular intervals. There is a considerable quantity of broken ore lying on the surface, and a sample taken in the presence of the directors, and brought by them to Sydney, has been assayed for a return of 19.6 per cent metallic tin.

"Crosscut East.—At the eastern workings the No. 2 shaft (the most northerly) is down 40ft, at which depth a crosscut has been started to cut the lode, and is in 8ft. It has passed through patches of fair tin ore, interspersed with tourmaline, which also carries a small percentage of tin, but so far no defined ore channel has been met. A sample of tin ore broken from this face has also been assayed for a return of 19.8 per cent. metallic tin, but it must be understood that only patches of this class of ore are at present showing, the greater part of the face consisting of a dense mass of tourmaline carrying little values.

"The No. 3 shaft was sunk 14ft last week, total 23ft, vertical, in clean kaolin country, with patches of tourmaline, but no tin has been met since the good ore passed out of the shaft on the underly, at a depth of 12ft from the surface.

"During the directors' visit good tin ore was struck in a prospecting shaft on the adjoining lease just outside our boundary to the north of our eastern workings. This shaft was put down with the object of picking up the continuation of the ore channel on which we are working, and the striking of tin ore over 350ft north of our No. 3 shaft is a highly important development, as the continuation of the ore channel in our lease for that distance is thereby practically assured."

THE LLOYD COPPER COMPANY, LIMITED.

The manager's report for the two weeks ended June 4 states:—

"Mine.—Stoping was carried out in Nos. 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, and 8 levels. Total ore raised was 1339 tons, of an average grade of 4.9 per cent. There are 2800 tons of ore broken in the stopes, but not been hauled, owing to shortage of labour. In the eight level a rise was started to connect with No. 7 level, and was advanced 32ft in 10 per cent. ore.

"Mill.—Treated 1339 tons of ore, producing 212 tons 16cwt of concentrates of 14.4 per cent. and 75 tons 8cwt of picked ore, averaging 18.4 per cent. Owing to the breakage of a large spur wheel, crushing could be carried out only in one-half of the mill. A new one is expected to reach the mine within a week.

"Furnaces.—Treated 375 tons of concentrates, picked ore, and slag, producing 68 tons of matte, averaging 64 per cent. of copper, 13.6dwt of gold, and 14.12oz of silver per ton.

"With the exception of a couple of days, wet weather continued throughout the fortnight, consequently very little firewood was delivered to the tramline.

"The erection of the oil flotation plant is nearing completion, and the shafting and pulleys are being put in position.

"There is a shortage of boodlers, truckers, and labourers, and a greater output could be obtained if more labour were available."

NORTH AUSTRALIAN EXPLORATION, LIMITED.

The manager of the Mount Lindsay mine reports by telegraph of even date as follows:—"South level continues in pay ore; width not yet determined. The face is now in 23ft."

CHILLAGOE, LIMITED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Chillagoe, Limited, reports that the railway receipts for the month of May amounted to £8122, whilst for the two months of the financial year ended May 31 they were £15,976. For the corresponding periods of the previous year the respective amounts were £9279 and £17,312.

The manager reports for the week ended June 7:—"Einasleigh mine: Stoping No. 3 and No. 4 levels; ore raised, 480 tons, averaging 8 per cent. No. 5 level, east crosscut extended a further 29ft, to 203ft. New lode north-east drive extended 3ft, with no values. Muldiva: Eclipse winze No. 4, 122ft level, east drive in 80ft; face in lode formation 3ft thick, east drive in 30ft; garnet, silica, and kaolin. West drive in 25ft; face in silica and zinc, with occasional spots of copper carbonates. Paisley: Linedale tunnel restarted, and is 30ft. Ore shipments for the week, 84 tons."

MOUNT ROSS DIAMOND AND TIN MINING.

"During the week ended this date (June 7) we washed 30 loads of wash for 90 carats of diamonds and 1/4cwt of tin, equal to a return of £3/4/6 per load. Owing to the bad state of the roads we are unable to cart any more wash for the time being.

"We have been blocking out on the east side of the main water level, where the wash is rather thin but of fairly good quality. We are also continuing the main level south. The faces are improving, and we are putting on more hands to increase the output."

MOUNT LYELL MINES.

QUEENSTOWN, Tuesday.

The workings at the 1100ft level of the North Lyell, which are in excellent condition, will be cleared for replacing portions of the plant destroyed by the corrosive acid of the water. Ore breaking continues at the 1000ft and 850ft levels with a regular output of 120 tons weekly. The Mount Lyell is supplying the smelters with 4000 tons weekly, and the Comstock contributes 600 tons. A third furnace will be blown in to-morrow.

CARPATHIA TIN-MINING COMPANY.

VALUABLE PARCEL CONCENTRATES.

Mr. R. Vernon Saddington, secretary of the above company, writes:—"I am advised that the last crushing of 273 tons of ore at Wyalong has been completed, with a recovery of some 916 bags of concentrates. The rough assay of this parcel gives a result of 60 per cent. tin. No weights are available until the concentrates are loaded at the railway, and this is being delayed, owing to the insufficient supply of trucks.

"The parcel of 17¼ tons of crude ore sent to Sydney has been tested, with a result that 2¼ tons assay 54.5 per cent. tin, and 15 tons assay 52 per cent. It is anticipated that this lot of ore will be sold to-day or to-morrow."

LODE DEVELOPING WELL.

The mine manager reports for the week ending June 6 as follows:—

"No. 1 shaft.—Having sunk 5½ft for the week this shaft is now 92ft deep, showing good milling ore in the north end. At 86ft a 4ft bore hole is being drilled into the western side (hanging) of the shaft. Proved good milling ore the whole distance.

"No. 3 Shaft.—Sinking 5½ft here for the week makes this shaft 34ft deep, showing selected and milling ore of good values over the entire shaft bottom. This lode is inclined to dip more vertical than formerly.

"No. 4 Shaft.—Have sunk 9½ft here for the week, making a total depth of 40ft. The ore coming out of this shaft is beyond doubt high in values in both the selected and milling grades.

VEGETABLE CREEK TIN MINE.

Operations at the above mine last week show that in the rock shaft the eastern drive was advanced 28ft, and a few patches of wash (40lb) met with up to 12in thick, with 6in of same quality in the face. At Allen's shaft the main crosscut was advanced 4ft, with 18in wash, worth 80lb, in the face. No. 1 east crosscut was advanced 8ft to 52ft. The wash averaged 33in, and is worth 150lb, with 30in worth 150lb in the face. A cross drive east from this crosscut was advanced 8ft, and reefed. The wash averaged 30in., worth 140lb.

A second cross drive east was advanced 16ft. The wash averaged 57in, and was worth 120lb, with 48in worth 180lb in the face. The crosscut south from west drive progressed 8ft and reefed. The wash averaged 30in, worth 80lb. The crosscut north from west drive advanced 4ft, 30in wash worth 180lb in the face. Chandler's Shaft.—Eastern drive advanced 30ft without change. Output: Produced 27cwt tin oxide for the week.

LATE COMMERCIAL.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The wheat market was weak; 3/7 was the maximum offered for farmers' lots on the trucks at Port Adelaide. There was a little business in parcels for export to South Africa during June at 3/10 f.o.b. Millers were not inquiring for parcels, and did not offer above 3/8. Flour had export business at £8/2/6 aboard, which represented the feeling at the close. Bakers' lots, delivered, were quoted at £8/15/ to £9. Bran and pollard were firmer in tone, and trade was done on the basis of 15/, delivered. Oats were dull at 2/ f.o.b. There were further sales of English barley at 3/9 f.o.b. at Port Adelaide. Dun peas were limited, stockholders being firm at 4/2 to 4/3 f.o.b. Hay was steady at 55/, delivered. Chaff was quoted at 65/ on the trucks at Mile End. Cornsacks were quoted at 7/ on spot. Branbags sold at 6/6.

Butter was firm at 1/0¼ to /1/2¼, factory at /11½ to 12¼, dairy /9¼ to /10½. Store eggs eased a half-penny to 1/5. Cheese was steady at /6½ to /6¾. Honey was quoted at /3¼ to /3. Bacon was firmer in tone; sides were quoted at /9 to /10, hams /9¼ to /11.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 33,000 fat sheep were yarded. The supply consisted chiefly of good, prime qualities, principally wethers, crossbreds predominating. Only a comparatively small number of best crossbred ewes came forward, while prime merinos were sparingly represented. There were, however, numerous drafts of good quality, medium, and serviceable weight merinos. Although a good demand was sustained throughout, yet competition was slightly irregular, prices in many instances ruling a shade easier, closing sales being the weakest. Quotations: Prime crossbred wethers from 20/ to 22/6, extra ditto ditto from 23/ to 26/, odd sheep higher, good ditto ditto from 17/6 to 19/6, second ditto ditto from 15/ to 17/, few comebacks from 14/ upwards, prime crossbred ewes from [illegible] to 19/, extra ditto ditto from 20/ to 21/3, few higher good ditto ditto from 15/ to 16/9, second ditto ditto from 12/6 to 14/, old and inferior [illegible], prime merino wethers from 19/ to 21/, good ditto ditto from 15/6 to 18/, second ditto ditto bought solely by graziers from 13/ to 14/, with merino ewes from 9/ to 19/3, old and inferior from 6/ to 8/. Of fat lambs 10,000 were penned. At the opening of the market prices were practically unchanged, but as the sales progressed the demand became weaker, closing at decidedly reduced rates. Prime sold at from 14/6 to 15/9, extra 16/ to 19/3; a few to 21/, good 13/3 to 14/3, second 11/6 to 13/, inferior 9/9.

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

MOTOR CAR AND BUTCHER'S CART.

Ashcroft v Stuart.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Sanders, instructed by Messrs. Shipway and Berne, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Broomfield, instructed by Mr. H. C. Ellison Rich, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Edward J. Ashcroft, master butcher, against William Stuart to recover compensation for damage to a horse and cart by collision with defendant's motor car. It appeared that plaintiff carried on business in Sydney and other places, including Springwood, on the Blue Mountains, and on October 5 last his servant was driving a horse attached to a cart, containing a large quantity of meat, along the road near Valley Heights, when his vehicle was run into by a motor occupied by defendant, several members of his family, and the driver. Plaintiff's horse was so badly injured that it had to be destroyed; the cart was also badly damaged, and the meat, having been thrown into the road, was not in a fit condition to be delivered to the customers. Plaintiff estimated his loss at between £70 and £80, which he now sought to recover from the defendant on the ground that the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendant's driver.

Defendant pleaded not guilty, and that the collision was brought about through the negligence of the plaintiff's servant. His case was that, while he was travelling along the road he saw the plaintiff's cart some distance from him on the wrong side, the driver apparently being engaged watching the train. Defendant's chauffeur sounded the horn twice, but the driver of the cart still continued on his wrong side; but just before the accident occurred he tried to get over to his right side, and when the collision occurred the horse and cart were in a slanting position across the middle of the road. Defendant stated, further, that before the accident his car was not travelling more than 15 or 20 miles an hour, and after contact he did not think the car travelled more than five or six feet. Subsequent to the collision he pointed out the track of the cart coming from a cottage on the right-hand side, and asked the driver how he came to be so grossly careless, but the latter replied that he (defendant) should have been more careful. The motor car did not strike the horse.

The jury, after consultation for a quarter of an hour, returned a verdict for the plaintiff, with damages £74 5s.

DISPUTE OVER A BUILDING CONTRACT.

Dakin v Dent.

Mr. J. A. Ferguson and Mr. Russell, instructed by Mr. V. Le Gay Brereton, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Cowan, instructed by Messrs. A. B. Shaw and M'Donald, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Herbert Ernest Dakin, architect, against Arnold Hetherington Dent to recover the sum of £136 5s 7d, being balance of account claimed to be due for work done and materials supplied in the building of a cottage at Abbotsford for the defendant; also furnishing plans and specifications and commission on the supervision of the work. The services for which plaintiff sued were rendered between November, 1911, and August, 1912.

The defendant pleaded never indebted, and in a second plea he claimed a set off by way of cross action, alleging that plaintiff did not carry out the terms of his agreement for due care and diligence in supervision, that certain of the materials supplied were not of proper quality, and that portion of the work was not carried out in a workmanlike manner. Defendant also said that in consequence of these alleged breaches he incurred much greater expense in connection with the building of the cottage than the estimate of the plaintiff, and in making the premises convenient and serviceable to him, and in repairing and altering the construction of certain portions. The amount of this expense and loss he was willing to set off against any amount found to be due to the plaintiff; and he also claimed a verdict for any excess which the jury might find for him on his set off.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

Plowman v Palmer and Others.

Mr. Wade, K.C., and Mr. Mocatta, instructed by Mr. H. C. G. Moss, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Mr. E. A. Roberts, for the defendants.

This was an action brought by George Plowman against William Harrington Palmer (official assignee) and Alfred Edward M'Intosh and John Gordon Crowther (solicitors, of Parkes) to recover compensation for alleged wrongful trespass on a homestead selection at Gunningbland, near Parkes, assault, imprisonment, damaging certain articles of clothing, and preventing him from attending to his business as a farmer.

The defendants filed a number of pleas setting out the result of the proceedings against D. Plowman and Margaret Plowman under section 134 of the Bankruptcy Act, and the subsequent issue of the writ of habere facias, by virtue of which defendant Palmer, in conjunction with the other defendants, who acted as his solicitors, seized the homestead selection. They further pleaded that when plaintiff refused to leave the premises, they, by their servants, gently laid hands upon him and removed him from the house and land, using no more force than was necessary for that purpose. They also pleaded that plaintiff first assaulted their agents, and thereupon they necessarily did what was complained of in their own defence and to prevent another assault by plaintiff.

His Honor, in summing up to the jury, pointed out that the only question for them to determine was whether plaintiff was grievously assaulted as he alleged, and whether he was assaulted by the authority of the defendants. The land at the time of the occurrences deposed to in evidence was the property of Mr. Palmer as official assignee of an estate; and not only was he entitled to eject anybody who was upon the land, but it was his duty to do so in the interests of the estate he represented in order to obtain possession. He, however formally ruled that defendants had no right to enter with a strong hand unless they had the authority of the Court for so doing. He also ruled formally that the warrant was wrongly issued, but that question had been reserved for the opinion of the Full Court. The question for the jury was whether the assault which was alleged to have been committed on the plaintiff was authorised by the defendant Palmer, and the other defendants who acted as his solicitors. They had also to consider on the evidence what really took place.

The jury, after about 10 minutes' consideration, returned a verdict for defendants.

On the application of Mr. Mocatta, a stay of proceedings was granted.

A RESUMPTION CLAIM.

JAQUES v CHIEF COMMISSIONER FOR RAILWAYS.

Mr. Young and Mr. A. W. Ralston, instructed by Mr. Reginald Harris, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Lamb, K.C., and Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Mr. J. S. Cargill (Solicitor to the Railway Commissioners), for the defendant. This was an action brought by Alfred Smith Jaques, auctioneer and land valuer, against the Chief Commissioner for Railways and Tramways, for the purpose of having assessed by the jury the value of 2 acres 15 perches of land alongside Ourimbah station, on the northern line. The land in question was resumed by the defendant under the Public Works Act of 1900, on September 20, 1911, for purposes of railway construction. The plaintiff had sent in his claim, and not being satisfied with the defendant's estimate of the value of the land, the case was submitted to a jury. It was arranged that the jury should view the land.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury.)

A RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Fisher v Chief Commissioner.

Edith Maud Fisher, of Arncliffe, aged between 15 and 16, a tailoress, employed by Grace Bros. at a minimum wage of 7s 6d per week, claimed £1000, by her next friend, from the Chief Commissioner for Railways, in respect of a railway accident.

Mr. A. Watt, instructed by Messrs. Sullivan Bros., appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Garland, K.C., and Mr. Weigall, instructed by Mr. J. S. Cargill, solicitor to the Railway Commissioner, for the defence.

The girl said that, on November 25, she boarded a train at the Central station. She was sitting in a carriage in conversation with a friend, and the engine, which had not been coupled to the carriages, bumped into the train so severely that she was thrown to the floor. Her face came in contact with the opposite seat, and she received a nasty cut over the eye, which had to be stitched at the hospital. In consequence of the occurrence her health was so affected that she could not resume her calling for some time.

The railway authorities had offered £50 as compensation, but this was considered insufficient.

A CARPENTER'S FALL.

Rice v Henley.

In the case in which Charles Rice, a carpenter, brought an action for damages against William J. Henley, builder, claiming £500 as compensation for injuries received in an accident, which plaintiff alleged he met with while in defendant's employment, the jury returned a majority verdict, with the consent of counsel, for defendant.

Mr. Pitt (instructed by Mr. John Howarth) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Alec. Thomson and Mr. H. M. Stephen (instructed by Messrs. Read and Read) for defendant.

DAMAGES FOR TRESPASS.

Robinson v M'Kenzie.

William Robinson, of 12 Burren-street, Erskineville, proceeded against William H. M'Kenzie, of 90 Albany-road, Stanmore, to recover damages for trespass. Plaintiff had erected a fence round a watercourse, but defendant had pulled it down. The question was for the assessment of damages.

The sum of £14 was awarded.

Mr. Markell (instructed by Messrs. Dalrymple and Blain) appeared for plaintiff, and defendant appeared in person.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge in Equity.)

PETITION FOR INVESTMENT.

This was an application to the Court for an order for investment of certain money paid by the Municipal Council of Sydney in respect of the resumption of certain lands situated in Dowling-street, Woolloomooloo, the property of John Hamilton, the latter having a life estate. His Honor, after reading the affidavits, directed that the money in question should be invested under direction of the Master in Equity.

Mr. C. Manning (instructed by Messrs. Rand and Drew) appeared for the petitioner; and Mr. C. G. Addison (instructed by Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover) for the Sydney Municipal Council.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

GENERAL FILM CO. v WILLIAMS.

This was a motion to continue an injunction restraining R. Williams, proprietor and director of the Arcadia Theatre, Lewisham, from exhibiting or producing any film under the name of "Quo Vadis?" not identical with the film now being exhibited by the General Film Co. of Australasia, Ltd., at the Lyceum Theatre; or from representing that any film not identical with that shown at the Lyceum is such film.

Mr. Maughan (instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell) appeared for the plaintiff company; and Mr. O'Reilly (instructed by Messrs. Dawson and Herford) for the defendant.

Mr. O'Reilly produced an affidavit by the defendant to the effect that the film objected to had been produced by the Ambrosio Company, and imported to the State three years ago. It had been exhibited on numerous occasions at various theatres, under the title of "Quo Vadis?" Both this and the film shown by the plaintiff company were founded on the novel of that name. They were different films, and the defendant had never represented that his was the same as that shown at the Lyceum. Other affidavits denied that the name "Quo Vadis?" had come to denote the plaintiff's film.

Mr. Maughan produced an affidavit by Harry George Musgrove to the effect that he had been informed by cable by the Ambrosio Co. that they had never produced a film of the name of "Quo Vadis?" Posters were shown in court and other affidavits read in support of the argument that the title indicated the plaintiff's picture.

His Honor granted an injunction until the hearing, or until further order, restraining the defendant from representing that any film exhibited, or to be exhibited by him, not being identical with the film "Quo Vadis?" now being exhibited at the Lyceum Theatre, was the same film, and also from advertising or announcing the film proposed to be exhibited by him under the name of "Quo Vadis?" without adding thereto the words: "This film is quite different from the Cines film exhibited by Spencer's, Ltd., at the Lyceum Theatre."

THOMAS v JONES.

This was a motion on behalf of Theresa Sarah Ann Thomas to continue an injunction to restrain Frederick Charles Jones and George Hubert Stanfield Holliday from proceeding further on a writ for the ejectment of the plaintiff from premises known as the Blue Mountain Hotel.

Mr. Flannery, instructed by Mr. J. J. Carroll, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. L. Whitfeld (instructed by Mr. A. C. Ebsworth) for the defendants.

The affidavit of the plaintiff set out that in March, 1909, one Sarah Wilson was declared incapable of managing her own affairs, and in the following June the plaintiff leased the premises through Sarah Wilson's manager, with the consent of the Master in Lunacy. Sarah Wilson died in December, 1909, leaving a will, under which the defendants were appointed executors and trustees. The new hotel buildings mentioned in the agreement for lease were completed in January, 1910, and the plaintiff had since been in possession. The defendant had refused to execute a lease in accordance with the agreement, and after serving notice to quit had caused a writ of ejectment to be issued, and the action consequent on this was set down for hearing on June 11.

The affidavit of George Hubert Stanley Holliday set out that the plaintiff had been in arrears with the rent, and also with the rates. In October, 1912, a writ was issued to recover £141 11s 2d, and judgment having been obtained by default, the money was paid by the plaintiff. The latter had allowed the premises to fall into disrepair, which was in contravention of the agreement.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

DEXTER v DEXTER.

Mr. H. Hourigan appeared for petitioner in the case Edward James Dexter v Alice Dexter (formerly Goodliffe). Albert Thompson was joined as co-respondent. Petitioner, a resident of Rocky Point, Rockdale, said they were married in South Australia, on August 13, 1892, according to the Congregational rites.

His Honor made a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

FORSYTH v FORSYTH.

Mary Jane Forsyth (formerly Thomas) asked for dissolution of her marriage with John Patrick M'Laren Forsyth, on the ground of desertion. The parties were married at Paddington, according to the rites of the Presbyterian Church, on December 12, 1894. In May, 1909, said petitioner, her husband refused to provide her with a home, and she had had to work for her living. A decree nisi was granted. Mr. R. W. Fraser appeared for petitioner.

M'MURTRIE v M'MURTRIE.

Mr. L. J. M'Kean appeared for petitioner in the case Emma M'Murtrie (formerly Hammond) v Charles M'Murtrie. According to petitioner, the parties were married at Kalgoorlie, in the Presbyterian Church, on November 7, 1901. Desertion was the ground of the application. A decree nisi was granted.

WAYLING v WAYLING.

Richard Henry Wayling (for whom Mr. L. J. M'Kean appeared) sued for dissolution of his marriage with Pansy May Wayling (formerly Morgan), on the ground of misconduct with Lorn Pentland.

The marriage was celebrated according to the rites of the Wesleyan Church, on February 15, 1911, said petitioner, a boundary rider, of Junee.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

TAHM v WILLIAMS.

Eric Tahm, restaurant employee, of 37 Erskine-street, Sydney, sued Richard Williams, butcher, of Erskine-street, for £70 damages, for alleged breach of agreement in respect to the letting of certain premises to the plaintiff, to be used as a restaurant.

Mr. Coyle (instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Meillon (instructed by Mr. T. G. McDonald), for the defendant.

It was alleged that the defendant had agreed to let premises in Erskine-street to the plaintiff, who stated his intention of opening a restaurant there. The plaintiff paid £1 for rent, and incurred expense in preparing to start his business, after which the defendant refused to allow him to open the premises as a restaurant. The plaintiff alternatively claimed that the defendant had falsely represented that he had a right to let the premises for the purpose mentioned.

The defence was that Williams had no right to sub-let the premises for a restaurant, and had informed the plaintiff to that effect. The plaintiff had, in the first place, announced his intention of opening a fish and oyster shop.

The plaintiff was non-suited.

A CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

Alexander Smith, Ltd., of 88 Beattie-street, Balmain, brought an action against Nicholson and Co., Ltd., of 342 George-street, Sydney, for £107 2s 6d damages, arising out of an injury to Arthur Waring, employed as a traveller by the plaintiffs, it being alleged that such injury was caused by negligence of a servant of the defendant firm in the driving of a motor lorry.

The defendant firm paid into court £5 and 10s costs in full satisfaction of the claim, but denied liability notwithstanding.

Mr. Monahan (instructed by Mr. G. Crichton Smith) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Curtis (instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth) for the defendants.

It was stated that Waring had already made personal claim for damages in the Supreme Court, and this was the first time a firm had brought action in the New South Wales Courts for the loss of an employee's services. Of the amount claimed £4 10s represented damage to the firm's motor-cycle, which the defendant was riding at the time of the accident; £58 was claimed for loss of business; and £44 12s 6d for wages paid to a substitute.

Arthur Waring gave evidence as to the accident, which occurred in Rochester-street, near the corner of Parramatta-road. His leg was broken, and he had been awarded £60 damages in the Supreme Court.

His Honor adjourned the case till Friday to enable him to view the scene of the accident, and also to enable further evidence to be called.

MORTONS, LTD., v KLIPPEL.

Mortons, Ltd., of 75 Engine-street, Sydney, claimed £77 0s 3d from David Davis Klippel, trading as D. Davis and Co., Queen Victoria Markets, in respect of work done, and money paid by the plaintiff for the defendant at the latter's request.

Mr. Curtis (instructed by Mr. H. G. F. Walker) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Milner Stephen (instructed by Messrs. John Williamson and Son) for the defendant, who denied indebtedness.

The claim was made in regard to the printing of a quantity of pantomime songs and popular music, for which £289 8s 3d was the plaintiff's charge. The defendant had paid £212 6s, and the balance was now sued for, the plaintiff firm claiming that as the work done was of a better class than that usually required they were entitled to charge an increase on the old schedule of prices.

(Before Judge Murray.)

WAVERLEY COUNCIL SUED.

Samuel W. Porter, of Watson-street, Bondi, claimed £100 compensation from the Waverley Municipal Council for damage alleged to have been occasioned by the unskilful construction of drains and waterways.

Mr. W. A. Walker (instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail) appeared for the plaintiff, and the defence was conducted by Mr. R. Windeyer (instructed by Messrs. Windeyer and Williams).

The case arose out of the storm of March 8 last, and the plaintiff contended that the construction of a kerb to the south of his property caused the water to flow under his house, with the result that considerable damage was done to the furniture.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Rogers and a jury.)

Mr. Walter Bevan, Crown Prosecutor.

ACQUITTED.

Accused, who pleaded not guilty, was defended by Mr. H. Levien.

The case for the Crown was that on the night in question there was a disturbance in Goulburn-street, during which accused produced a revolver, and fired at Quinlan, causing a serious wound in the angle of the left eye and a slight fracture of the skull.

The defence was that Quinlan, whilst in the company of several other men, molested accused. Thinking that he was about to be assaulted and robbed, accused fired at Quinlan.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and Stokes was discharged.

A WOMAN SENTENCED.

May Fry, a young woman, who had pleaded guilty to stealing a watch and chain from the person of Edward Collaery, at Sydney, on May 9, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment with light labour in the State Reformatory for Women at Long Bay.

He was charged with receiving property stolen from St. Vincent's and Lewisham hospitals. To both charges he pleaded guilty.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

UNRULY YOUTHS.

William Herbert Dawson and Herbert Thomas Gerrard, both 17 years of age, were called up before Judge Backhouse, before whom they had on March 3 pleaded guilty to seven charges of housebreaking. The two lads had been inmates of the Brush Farm, at Parramatta, prior to March last, but had made their escape from that institution, and had entered upon a career of housebreaking. At the request of the Brush Farm authorities, Judge Backhouse had, on March 10, recommitted them to the care of their previous guardians. Yesterday it was reported to his Honor that the conduct of the prisoners since March had been unsatisfactory, and they had again attempted to escape.

Both lads were sentenced to twelve months' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol on each of the seven charges, concurrent.

POLICE COURTS.

A CLAIM FOR WAGES.

NON-SUIT ENTERED.

E. H. Farrar, M.L.C., was proceeded against in the Central Police Court, before Mr. J. L. King, S.M., yesterday by James E. Darrock, who claimed the sum of £12, which he alleged was due as wages while acting as assistant to Farrar, who was secretary of the Saddlers' Union.

Plaintiff was non-suited.

James E. Darrock said that he was elected assistant to E. H. Farrar, who was general secretary of the Saddlers' Union, in July last. Farrar was appointed a member of the Legislative Council, and offered to pay £1 a week out of his own pocket for such services, as he needed an assistant. Farrar, witness said, alleged afterwards that he meant £1 a meeting night, i.e., fortnightly, and not weekly. Witness claimed for wages due from July 3 to December 18. That he was to get £1 a week was not in the minutes. The arrangement of payment was left to Farrar and witness.

His Worship pointed out that the union appointed plaintiff, and, therefore, the union was liable. "Farrar is not liable directly, although he may be indirectly," observed his Worship.

SHOPLIFTERS SENTENCED.

At the Central Police Court yesterday Emily Day or Kean was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for having stolen a handbag, valued at 12s 6d, from Winns, Ltd., Oxford-street.

Elim Dennis, 38, was charged with having stolen a football from Messrs. Hordern Brothers, Pitt-street, on June 6, and with having a silk shirt in her possession reasonably supposed to have been stolen.

She was fined £5, with an alternative of two months for having stolen the football. The other charge was dismissed.

ALLEGED FORGERY.

£50,000 INVOLVED.

At the Water Police Court yesterday, Siegbrecht Abraham Tengbergen was charged, by warrant for extradition to Java, with having committed forgery and other offences in Sourabaya, involving about £50,000.

It is stated that the papers had not yet arrived. They were posted on May 30. Defendant, the police added, admitted that the amount involved was about £50,000, and extended over some years.

THE DISCOVERY OF AUSTRALIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I heard someone remark the other day, "What does it matter who discovered Australia, as long as the little deeds are clearly put on record." Now, that is just the matter in a nutshell, and as long as the little deeds—or, rather, great deeds—are clearly put on record, the question is settled. However, every now and again some confusing statements crop up, and the whole question appears to be unsettled.

Mr. Moppet's description of a rare old globe, on which extensive Australian coastlines are depicted, and Mr. Arthur Moore's comments thereon, remind me of an account of a voyage to Terra Australis, in which confusion was worse confounded by the name of the ship becoming the name of the captain, whereas the captain's name was given to the place from which the ship sailed, and the name of the country discovered became the ship's name. To make matters worse, the longitudes and latitudes were given as the date on which the ship sailed, and her real date of departure was set down as the number of the men on board. Lately, we have improved on this method of writing history, but now and again there is a relapse into the old style.

With regard to the recent correspondence in your estimable paper, I venture to suggest the following rectifications for the sake of historical truth:—

The globe discovered by Mr. Moppet has long been known to those who take any interest in geographical discovery, and is only a copy of copies from originals dating back to the years of Portuguese and Spanish maritime supremacy, when most of the coast lines of Australia were charted.

With regard to Mr. Arthur Moore's statements relating to discoveries, most of them are recorded in our school books, with the exception of the mistakes into which Mr. Moore falls. For instance, he says:—

"Then follows Lyons, who sketched the country around the Leeuwin in 1622." The country around the Leeuwin was never sketched, charted, nor visited by Lyons, for the man never existed. Lyons is a corruption of Leeuwin the Dutch for "Lioness," the name of the ship that visited those shores.

He then says: "Nor should we forget de Witt, whose record of the north-west coast was admirable."

There was nothing admirable about de Witt's record. He ran accidentally aground, not knowing where he was, and nearly got shipwrecked. He got away as soon as he could, without doing any surveying.

Again, Mr. Moore says: "Van Dieman first gave his name to the peninsula on which Darwin now stands in 1618." In 1618 Van Diemen—for that is how the name should be spelt—was in Holland, not even dreaming of visiting the East Indies, where he became Governor-General in the days of Tasman. Mr. Moore is also in error when he says that the name Van Dieman was "erroneously placed too far to the south, so that in the year 1800 there was a Van Dieman Land at opposite ends of the Australian continent on the charts."

The true account is as follows:—In 1642 Tasman discovered the land, in the south, to which he gave the name of Van Diemen's Land, in honour of the Dutch Governor-General; we afterwards called this land Tasmania, preferring to honour the discoverer.

With regard to Dampier, Mr. Moore says:—"So far as I know, Dampier discovered no part of Australia. The portion he visited, whilst buccaneering, was, according to his own account, in latitude 16 degrees 50 minutes south, but there is reason to believe that they anchored off either Melville or Bathurst island. According to the best authorities, Dampier's reckonings were not to be trusted." Now, all the above statements are wrong. Dampier did positively discover certain well identified parts of the western and north-western shores of Australia. Not whilst buccaneering, for he had left Swan and given up buccaneering, and there is no reason to believe that he anchored off Melville or Bathurst island either in his first or second trip to Australia. According to the best authorities, Dampier's reckonings are to be trusted, are easily identified, and his descriptions correct. Captain P. G. King and others who explored all those parts bear testimony to these facts.

Mr. Moore winds up by saying: "But, after all, if historical records of these matters be required, they can best be found in London." I should say, if reference be made to early discovery, London is the last place to go to. One should go to Portugal, Spain, Italy, France, Holland, before looking for documents that are non-existent in London.

Even in modern times, when Captain Moresby made what he considered extensive discoveries on the south-east shores of New Guinea, and was provided with all the information attainable at the British Admiralty, it turned out that he had been forestalled. Shortly after his pseudo discoveries were made known, Spanish documents were found in Paris showing that Torres had preceded him in 1606, and made more complete surveys than he did. The British Admiralty opened its eyes wide. It needed to. I am, etc.,

June 6. GEO. COLLINGRIDGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Opinions are sometimes voiced that owing to so many different parts of Australia having been discovered by the Dutch, Spanish, and Portuguese, long before Captain Cook discovered the east coast, it is probable that this coast was discovered also before Captain Cook's time. Tasman sailed round Australia, but he came down the west coast after he discovered Tasmania, which he took to be part of the mainland; he sailed on, and found New Zealand, and in sailing north doubtless kept well outside of the Great Barrier Reef, which extends from off the coast of Queensland, near Rockhampton, to the far north. When travelling to Cairns, I said to the captain: Do you think that any one other than Cook ever saw the east coast of Australia? His answer was an emphatic no. He said "all the navigators sailed north, and did not face the waters between the Barrier reef and the mainland; they kept well outside of it." This appears to be the solution, and this long dangerous reef doubtless preserved Australia for the British, until Cook, after his attempt to reach Tasmania, sailed in a northerly direction, first sighting the mainland at what he called Port Hicks, which he followed on till he anchored in Botany Bay.

I am, etc.,
H. M. SUTTOR.

RESCUE SHELTER.

SALVATION ARMY'S WORK.

ADDRESS BY LORD MAYOR.

The memorial shelter of the Salvation Army in Sussex-street, built to commemorate the life work of the late General Booth, was opened yesterday.

For years the army officers have struggled along with a structure quite inadequate to their needs. Night after night the old building was packed, and the fact that an effort would have to be made to replace it was evident. The necessity for the new building existed, and the army simply set about having it built, and trusted to their own energy to raise the money necessary to defray the expense.

The object of the shelter is to provide a home and afford accommodation for the poor and the needy. If a man has a little money he is expected to pay, but, if he is, as the Army officers say, "stone broke," then they will take him in and provide for him. A man of slender means may have a room to himself, enjoy its privacy, and have all the benefits of the institution, for 4s 6d a week. Others not so opulent can have beds in dormitories for 6d and 4d a night, while the very poor are taken in and no recompense is asked.

The building is one of the largest of the many similar institutions which the Army controls throughout the world. It contains a library, social hall, bedrooms, dining rooms, and other accommodation. Every comfort has been considered.

The Lord Mayor, declaring the shelter open, said he was pleased to know that the building was erected in honour of the late General Booth. He had no doubt that if the General could have been with them he would have chosen to have had the building erected for the same purpose. Apart from material mementoes their great founder had left a lasting memorial in the hearts of thousands whom he had uplifted and placed on the right path. (Applause.) He noticed that they had divided the men whom the building would serve into three grades, and even the man who was "up against it" entirely was not forgotten. It was a good thing to preserve the moral fibre in a man and keep it alive as long as they could. (Hear, hear.) It had been his experience that the man who would take everything without making an effort to help himself was the least worthy of being helped. Because of that they should not give one thing more for nothing than the case demanded. If a man was really "up against it" he believed in giving him a lot, and giving it to him in such a way that he would feel that the Almighty was holding out a hand to him. (Hear, hear.) During his term of office he had had many valuable things presented to him, and amongst the most treasured of them all he would place the key which had been handed to him when opening the building. (Applause.)

It was stated that the building was capable of accommodating 650 men. Over £1000 yet remains to be raised to defray the cost of the building.

PARRAMATTA.

OLD MEN'S ASYLUMS.

One of the matters discussed at the meeting of the Parramatta Progress Association last week had reference to the promised removal by the Government of asylum inmates from the town.

Members of the association emphasised very strongly the opinion that, in view of the proximity of the Parramatta South Public School to the asylum in Macquarie-street, all persons having any influence at all in Parramatta should work together to have that institution done away with. Not only was the place a menace to the children, but the conduct of some of the old men had caused the teachers not a little anxiety.

SUSSEX-STREET FIRE.

In our report of the fire at S. Weingott and Sons' factory, 174A Sussex-street, on Monday morning, it was stated that stock consisting of oilskins and waterproofs had been burnt and damaged. Mr. Cohen, of Messrs. Weingott and Sons, has since advised us that the stock comprised waterproofs, overcoats, and tailors' trimmings, there being no oilskins kept in the Sussex-street factory. He roughly estimated the damage at between £5000 and £6000.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your many readers who are interested in educational matters must wonder what the present controversy is over. One would imagine that some of your correspondents were writing of events which took place before the deluge. There are thousands living who remember well the effect of the famous pastoral on the public mind, and the defence that was put up for it. By a sort of higher criticism an attempt is made to read into the pastoral a meaning which the authors of it never seemed to be aware of. The impression made at the time on the general public and the Catholic body was that the existing system of education was condemned. If their lordships meant another system, why did they not say so, and remove this false impression? It has been argued that the bishops could not have condemned the present Act, as it had no existence. Quite true; but the difference between the present Act and the Act of 1866 is not as great as many think. The much-vaunted provision in the present Act, the privilege allowed to clergymen of giving one hour's instruction daily to the children of their denomination, already existed in the old Act. What, then, did the bishops condemn? They condemned in general the secular system of education which is favoured by so many countries in Europe and America, and in particular all systems which are cousin-german to it, such as the system then prevailing in the State. In this they only did what was done by bishops in every other country. It must be borne in mind that the pastoral was written by Archbishop Vaughan himself, and was characteristic of the man. The bishops might have wished—it is almost certain they did wish—to soften certain expressions, such as the one that caused so much trouble. But there was no doubt in their minds that a decisive step was necessary. Your correspondent, Rev. Mr. Watt, quotes with evident approval the opinion of Sir Henry Parkes that they blundered, but few Catholics will agree with him. We have much better schools now than we had under the old Act, and we have what we value more, our liberty. We can also build schools where we like. The old Act only permitted the erection of schools in large centres. Paragraph 9 says:—"It shall be lawful for the Council of Education in any locality where a Public school may be established which has in attendance thereat not less than 70 children, to certify as a denominational school any school situated not more than five miles from such Public school on such council being satisfied, after due inquiry, that there are at least 30 children in regular attendance at such school. Provided that no school shall be so certified in any case where such school shall be within two miles by the shortest highway of any Public school, unless there shall be in regular attendance at such school and at the nearest Public school together not less than 120 children." The denomination had also to provide the building suitably furnished. Such being the provisions of the Act, and with a fast-growing population and settlement under the Free Selection Act going on all round them, where it would be difficult to get 30 children together, the bishops would be wanting in their duty if they did not put in a strong plea for a larger measure of justice. If that plea has been made to deaf ears, the time will come, though it may be a long way off, when the people will listen. In the meantime, all that remains to us is to keep the flag flying.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Before me lies the design of St. Mary's Cathedral, Sydney, published in the "Herald" on Friday, June 6, 1913. Knowing most of the great religious edifices in England and the Continent of Europe, I consider that the old world has few things finer than this masterpiece of the architect's skill—a great man's great achievement. Unless I am altogether misinformed, the design to be carried out is the original conception of the late Mr. Wardell, the founder of the firm of Wardell and Fenning, architects, of Sydney. Surely the name of the designer of the noble pile should be known to the people of Australia, and handed down to posterity, by being graven into the stone of the completed church near the main entrance for all to read. I am sure Mr. Hennessy, who has the honour bestowed upon him of carrying on the lofty ideas of one of Melbourne's great professional men, would not wish it thought that he was the creator of the design: as people will infer from the report of the proceedings at the laying of the foundation stones on Sunday afternoon last. There are so few masterminds nowadays that there is all the more reason why those who are dead, and yet live by their works, should be known and honoured. I am, etc.,

THE MINES.

SPECIAL COURT SCHEME REJECTED.

A TANGLED POSITION.

The Northern Colliery Proprietors' Association has declined to agree to the re-appointment of a conciliation committee to deal with the small coal question and other matters in dispute on the northern coalfields. The Employees' Federation has rejected Mr. Carmichael's proposal to create a special court consisting of a Supreme Court Judge for the whole northern coal-mining district.

"Some time ago," said the Minister for Labour (Mr. Carmichael), yesterday, "the employees waited upon me and asked that the conciliation committee which had already sat under Mr. Hibble and taken a lot of evidence in regard to small coals and the third shift questions should complete its inquiry. I pointed out that that was dependent on two things: (1) That Mr. Hibble was prepared to act; (2) that the colliery proprietors were prepared to submit the matter again to a conciliation committee, as it was a voluntary acceptance on both sides. I promised to communicate with the proprietors. On Monday night I received a letter from the owners saying that they were not prepared to resuscitate the Conciliation Committee.

"In connection with that, I also received word from the Employees' Federation that inasmuch as they understood that the proposed court would sit with representatives of both sides adjudicating with it, and that they now understood the Court would consist of a Supreme Court Judge only, they preferred the matters to be settled by some tribunal composed of a chairman and representatives of each side. They withdrew their letter applying for a court, and substituted in its place an application for a wages board to deal with the different matters on the coalfield. The Registrar has replied that the Minister has no power to appoint a board, and that an application must be made, under the Act, to the Judge. I have no doubt this will be done, and that a board will be appointed."

THE SPECIAL COURT.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Mr. D. Watson, president of the Colliery Employees' Federation, speaking in reference to the general mining position, said that he regretted the tribunal for the settlement of disputes had not been instituted. He heartily concurred with his colleagues in refusing to be dominated by a Court solely controlled by a Judge. He thought that the Judge himself would admit the need for counsel from either side. He was sorry that two collieries had been idle for the last twelve weeks. He sincerely hoped that the Court would shortly be brought into operation, and that the two disputes would be attended to.

He added that after application had been made to the Registrar for the special Court offered by the Minister the executive officers suspected that by applying for the Court they would not be allowed to have representatives there. They then made application for an alteration of the first proposal, and had applied for a board upon which they as well as the proprietors would have representatives. The Minister had acknowledged their request, and they were waiting for a further communication from the Minister in regard to the decision of the proprietors on the matter of continuing the hearing of the small coal question.

NORTHERN EXTENDED AGREEMENT.

The executive officers of the Colliery Employees' Federation were to-day successful in inducing the Northern Extended miners to depart from their previous decision to sign a local agreement similar to Minmi. About a week ago a ballot was taken by the lodge to decide whether they should sign the agreement. There was a majority in favour of the agreement, and preparations were being made for signing it. The federation heard about the intentions of the miners, and after negotiations it was decided that Messrs. E. Peters, W. Brennan, and A. Lewis, on behalf of the federation, should address the miners this afternoon. About 40 were present at the meeting, and, although a few unfavourable interjections were made, the executive officers were soon successful in inducing the miners to pass a motion not to sign the agreement.

NEW ZEALAND.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

Mr. Massey states that he will refer his proposal for the establishment of a board of agriculture to a conference of agricultural associations next August. The new board is to be modelled as nearly as possible on the lines of the Irish Board of Agriculture.

FINANCE.

Speaking on the subject of finance at a dinner at the New Zealand Club, Mr. Allen (Minister for Defence and Finance) said that he had no hesitation in saying that New Zealand stood higher to-day in the London money market than any other Dominion. The underwriters had unloaded the whole of the three millions loan, and made a handsome profit. Since then the Government had been able to get rid of the £350,000 without underwriting. Expenses would only be a quarter per cent. commission to the bank, and it would realise £99 5s. That was a long-term loan. Another loan of £100,000, floated also without underwriters' commission, realised £100 10s. Heavy short-dated loans due next year would be met.

A union, the first of its kind in New Zealand, has been formed in connection with the men engaged in the various Wellington Fire Brigade stations. It has been designated the Wellington Fire Brigades and Tramway Employees' Union, and formally registered. The men seek increased wages and improved working conditions.

MONOTONOUS WEATHER.

COLD AND WET.

The high pressure is still over eastern Australia, with its centre in high latitudes, and is causing rough weather on the coast and rainy conditions over the central and southern coastal and highland districts. Rough seas are running along the seaboard, accompanied by fresh to strong southerly winds, reaching to the force of a gale in parts.

Rain continued to fall during Monday afternoon and Tuesday along the whole of the central and southern coast, and further showers also fell on parts of the tablelands. Some fairly heavy amounts were registered in the coastal districts, the largest of which were:—Sutton Forest 260 points, Kiama 240, Windsor 230, Moss Vale 202, Parramatta 200, Raymond Terrace 186.

Cold weather is still being experienced over the whole of the State, and yesterday morning's minimum readings at all highland and inland district stations were again below 40 degrees, although in many instances they were not quite as low as Monday. The lowest reported were:—Murrumburrah 24 degrees, Cootamundra 26, and Kosciusko and Braidwood each 28.

Rain still persisted to fall throughout Tuesday over the whole of the central and southern coast, the Blue Mountains and many places on the southern tableland, and snow again fell at Kosciusko. In other districts fine weather ruled, and many southern inland stations reported frosts.

Showery conditions continued during the day along the coast and on the central and southern tablelands, and it was still snowing yesterday afternoon at Kosciusko.

BRAIDWOOD.—The district is now fairly saturated, and the rain is doing more harm than good.

KOSCIUSKO, Tuesday.—Four inches of snow have fallen, and all the courses are covered sufficiently to render them rideable. The ice on the lake is also fit for skating, being three inches in thickness. Snow is still falling, and a moderate southerly breeze prevails.

CROOKWELL.—The weather is very cold and there was a slight fall of snow on Monday. It is still raining. The season is an unusually wet one.

SHELLHARBOUR.—Squally weather set in on Monday, with heavy showers of rain. Large patches of snow were visible on the Illawarra ranges. A moderate southerly gale has prevailed, with occasional showers. Four inches of rain were registered.

WISEMAN'S FERRY.—Heavy rain fell yesterday, 176 points being recorded. The registrations for the five months of the year are:—January 46, February 70, March 519, April 733, May 1755.

A RACECOURSE INCIDENT.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

A stir was created at Bathurst Races on Saturday, when an Orange visitor was found intoxicated. The man had dropped £15 in notes, and when arrested had in his possession £50 and a bank-book showing a credit-balance of £500. The man was charged at the police court to-day with drunkenness and indecent language, and pleaded guilty. He was fined in all £2 5s, in default a month's hard labour.

MURDER CHARGE.

LABOURER ARRESTED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

On a charge of having murdered John Jones at Korumburra John Nolan, a labourer, 40 years of age, was brought before the City Court to-day.

Constable Johnston said that on the evening of Sunday, June 1, he went to Rowe's Coffee Palace, Korumburra, and there saw Jones lying on a bed. His eye was blackened, his lip cut, and he appeared to be paralysed. Witness obtained the services of a doctor, who ordered the removal of Jones to the Melbourne Hospital, where he died on June 3. On the following day, in company with Constable Uren, witness interviewed Nolan, and after warning him that he need not reply to any qustions asked, said: "Did you hit Jones." Nolan replied, Yes, but I only hit him once."

Nolan was remanded for a week.

A TERRIBLE STORY.

ADELAIDE LAWYER'S MISCONDUCT.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The charges of financial misconduct towards a lady client, which were preferred against Judah Moss Solomon, sen., were again before the Full Court to-day.

Mr. Justice Murray delivered judgment, sustaining the charges, and supporting the motion before the Court that the practitioner's name should be struck off the roll.

Chief Justice Sir Samuel Way strongly condemned the gross misconduct proved against Solomon, sen. He remarked that it had been "pain to the Bar and their Honors to listen to the wretched story of his wrongdoing. That a gentleman who had been a member of the honourable legal profession should have so far forgotten his duty to his client as to be guilty of such misconduct was a matter of pain and shame." Mr. Paris Nesbit, K.C., remarked, at the conclusion of the case, that, although he had acted on behalf of Solomon, sen., he felt great grief and shame at the terrible story disclosed in court. A more awful story than the suffering and loss of that poor woman h; had never heard in similar circumstances

SUPERANNUATION.

(BY R. A. SHIELDS,

PRESIDENT TEACHERS' UNION.)

Superannuation is now the burning question in the Civil service. The younger members may not be so keen, many being unmarried. They have life policies also, and the age for retirement appears so distant. But to the older members—over 30—who number 10,800 out of the 16,000 in the public service, it is a matter of great anxiety. It was found from the cards supplied to the actuarial committee that 85 per cent. of the male officers were married. It is also known that the average salary of the public servant is under £200, out of which it is almost impossible to make adequate provision for old-age, dependents, or breakdown. This causes officers to hang on till long after they should retire. Very few officers who reach 60 retire willingly at that age. As a matter of fact there were at ... end of 1910, between the ages of 60 and 80, 504 entitled to retire, but only 84 of these were entitled to a pension; 29 men were over 70 years of age, two were 80. Some die at their posts, and most readers can recall instances of the straits such officers' dependents have been reduced to. The reason for non-retirement is nearly always the same, they have little or nothing to retire on.

Those members who were so farseeing, or so fortunately endowed with the gambling instinct as to be still contributors to the 1884 fund, will, if they reach 60, retire on larger pensions than the remaining members of the service over 30 years of age can ever hope to attain. The 1884 Act enforced contribution of 4 per cent. of officers' salaries, commencing in 1885. Members had to serve at least 15 years, but past service counted. For 15 years' service a pension of one-fourth of the average annual salary for the three years preceding retirement was given, together with one-sixtieth of such average annual salary for each year of service over 15 years, the maximum pension allowed, however, being not greater than two-thirds of such annual salary.

Thus the pension automatically increased with length of service, even though the salary was stationary. It was further provided that any officer who, while on duty became incapacitated from further service, should receive two months' pay for each year of service at his then salary, not less than six months' gratuity being payable, and in the event of death, such gratuity became payable to the widow, children, or mother. Other provisions were:—Should an officer die in necessitous circumstances a grant might be made from the fund, not exceeding six months' salary, to the widow or children; on retirement from infirmity, on three medical officers' reports, a full pension; on the abolition of an office, and no other position provided, a pension. The young unmarried men were then, as now, the greatest opponents of the scheme, and lots of married men, jolly good fellows, were then, as now, prepared to leave the wives and children in the care of Providence.

Then came the 1895 Act, with widespread retrenchment and drastic retirements. When the cyclone passed it left the remaining officers on salaries from which the jagged lightning of Jove had striken head and tail, a crown in low-water round Gratuity Point, and the good vessel Superannuation under a staggering load of pensioners. All this—the psychological moment—those who escaped retrenchment were offered the chance of leaving the fund; and the majority, thinking the load of pensioners would sink the ship, joyfully discontinued contributing. They are the elderly gentlemen who are now so hot and eager for a pension. But when they left the fund there were no return tickets issued, and orders were given that no fresh passengers should be shipped. But regulation 71 then came into force, providing for ex-contributors a gratuity amounting to a months' pay for each year of service, calculated on the average salary of the whole period of service, and payable on retirement—not death. The custom has been to calculate such service up to 1895, but several victories have been won against the Government, and payment made up to 1902, a difference of seven months' salary, and there is reason to believe that future payments will be made as up to 1902. In addition, by the 1895 and 1902 Acts, ex-contributors, on retirement or death, get their contributions back with 3 per cent. interest.

Those who have entered the service since December 23, 1895, were compelled to insure their lives in an approved society for an amount, generally speaking, equal to a year's salary, and lodge the policies with their respective departments. They want to know how they are going to keep their policies alive, and also contribute to a pension fund, and consequently are not keen on pensions. But it is now generally recognised in all undertakings where a large number are employed that a pension fund is good business, and this fact, coupled with the persistent agitation by the older members, resulted in Parliament appointing, in 1912, an actuarial committee to formulate a scheme. The task took over six months, was done very thoroughly, but was condemned by the service on account of the cost.

In this scheme the family is taken as the basis, and the scheme is so arranged as to be capable of application to all classes of public servants, whether temporary, permanent, casual, or with broken service, and, in addition, could be applied to all classes of the community. It was to be compulsory for all officers of the Public service, except the police, and the contributors and ex-contributors to the 1884 fund.

Contributions and pensions were to be fixed according to salary and age, except that officers over 30 at entry were not compelled to contribute for a pension over £52. Pensions were made up of units, each £26. No difference was made in the contributions of married and unmarried men; the rates for women were lower. Generally speaking, men could retire at 60, women at 55. The Government were to pay half cost of pensions, the cost of management, and the cost of concessions to members over 30 years of age.

The benefits provided for men were five: Pension, widow's pension, breakdown pension, children's benefits, and withdrawal benefits. For women: Pension, breakdown pension, and withdrawal benefits. The minimum pension was £52, the maximum £312. The minimum pension for widows was £26, the widow in all cases to get half of her husband's pension. Children's benefits were 5s a week, beginning on death of father, and continuing till children reached the age of 16. Breakdown pensions, subject to stringent medical examination, were full pensions, payable, however, only after 10 years' service. They were only granted for a year, fresh application being then necessary to guard against malingering.

Withdrawal benefits provided for invalidity before 10 years' service (in which case the contributions were returned without interest); retrenchment or abolition of office after 10 years' service (a payment equal to twice the member's contributions without interest); and, thirdly, a payment equal to amount of contributions without interest in the event of dismissal or voluntary resignation before 60 years of age, or before 35 years' service. Pensions increased by units of £26, as salary increased, such pensions, generally speaking, amounting to half a year's salary. Contributions for such increases were to be compulsory on entrants 30 years of age and under. If salary increased after 40, however, there was to be no compulsion then to take up additional units. That is an entrant aged 20 took up two units (£52), and as his salary increased by £50 he had to take up an additional unit of £26. If, however, he got any such increase after 40, such provision was not compulsory. Contributors and ex-contributors under the 1884 Act were not to be allowed to preserve their pension or gratuity rights under the 1884 Act, and still be contributors to the 1912 fund, except for a pension up to £1 a week for widows, and the 5s a week for children. But they could surrender all their rights under the 1884 and 1895 Acts for new rights under the 1912 scheme, but any contributor to the 1884 fund so surrendering had to keep up his payments to the 1884 fund. He acquired fresh rights in the 1912 scheme, then equivalent to 4 per cent. rights under the old fund, the new scheme being worked on 3½ per cent. basis. Officers over 30 years of age at entry had the privilege of taking up two units, as at age 30, costing £6 18s a year, but had to go to age 65 for a pension. If wishing to retire at 60, such officer could not avail himself of the concession, but paid full rates. And if he desired additional units of pension he had to pay as at his real age for such additional pension.

On the death of a contributor before retiring half the pension was payable to the widow, and 5s a week to the children to age 16.

No relief was provided for dependents other than widows and children, but it is generally understood that with women contributors a provision can be inserted to leave their contributions to mothers.

The only concession for length of service was the £52 pension as at age 30 rate. No officer contributing need insure his life or keep up his policy. He could surrender such policy, and pay money to fund. Objection was immediately taken to the scheme on the ground that the cost was prohibitive. To understand the amount an officer has to pay before retirement, it is necessary to understand that such officer on retirement must have an amount equal to nine years' pensions to his credit in the fund, and of this he has to pay half. Thus a member aged 30 desiring a pension of £312 would have to have nine times £312, equal to £2808, to his credit in the fund, and out of this he must pay half, £1404, before retirement. He has 30 years to do it in. It, therefore, costs him £46 16s a year; if aged 40 at entry £70 a year, and so on. Anyone can calculate by this rule how much he has to pay for any pension desired. In this way each pension pays for itself, and as the actuaries have stated such amounts are absolutely necessary, it is idle for the ordinary public servant to argue against the experts, whose special business it is to make such calculations. It is difficult to see how pensions can be obtained any cheaper, for they have to be paid for, and if the member will not pay such contributions, the questions arises, who will? Must the taxpayer do so?

The amendments proposed by the members concerned map be summarised thus:—

(1) Cut out women and children's benefits—that is, make the father happy, and comfortable during his lifetime, and let the widow and children go to the poorhouse after his death. They may then chant his praise as a good husband and father to other widows and orphans. This plan will lessen the cost to the contributor; the Government will probably have to keep the widow and orphans after his untimely demise. Still, that will not trouble him; he will be dead.

(2) Have low uniform pensions. Men with high salaries should make other provision.

(3) Let ex-contributors go back to the 1884 fund. They will then be all right; everyone for himself.

(4) Give no pensions. Why should anyone be compelled to subscribe for a pension, or why should the taxpayer have to support an army of pensioners?

Those who wish to cut out the widow and children appear to think they are all going to live till they are 60. Also the actuarial report shows numbers of men over 60 with young children. One officer of 71 had a child 10 months old. Ex-contributors also appear to rely on their gratuity rights. But it is as well to remember that, unless they are retired by the Public Service Board before death, their gratuity rights lapse.

It is plain something must be done, and at once. The conference of representatives (?) of the Public Service, on March 7, with the Attorney-General proved abortive. The representatives (?) unanimously condemned the Government scheme, and advocated six other separate schemes.

The following scheme is suggested:—

Let all contributors under 35 contribute as laid down in 1912 scheme.

Let all over 35 contribute, according to salary, for a pension up to £104, paying as at age 35 in 1912 scheme.

Let all ex-contributors preserve their gratuity rights, and contribute for a pension up to £104, as at age 35.

A pension of £104 costs one shilling a day, paying as age 35, allowing a man to contribute for all benefits for self and family.

BULK HANDLING OF WHEAT.

THE CANADIAN METHOD.

The attention of Mr. Foster, Canadian Minister for Trade, was drawn to the interview with the American expert with regard to the handling of wheat and a summary of the interim report of the Victorian Royal Commission on the same subject which appeared in yesterday's "Herald."

"So far as wheat handling in Canada is concerned," said the Canadian Minister for Trade and Commerce, "it is all done in bulk, and the elevator system mechanically handles practically all supplies from the time when the farmer loads his waggon from the station. He may load a few carts for himself, but the vast majority is taken hold of by the local elevators and the system only ceases when the grain is placed on board the Atlantic transport vessel."

"Do you think, from your experience of Australia, that this system is calculated to benefit the wheat industry here?"

"There seems to be no reason why it should not be adopted and be successful. The waste and deterioration would, it seems to me, if it were totalled up, come to a very large sum, as the actual loss each year entailed upon the wheat producer, who has to stand it all in the end. But what also takes place is that there is no sufficiently definite grade to buy and sell by, and when that is the case the farmer almost always loses, as the buyer must protect himself against qualities and conditions."

GREATER SYDNEY.

NORTH SYDNEY'S ATTITUDE.

At the meeting of the North Sydney Council last evening the resolutions of the Annandale Council in favour of the suburbs within the proposed Greater Sydney area arranging for a definite and united action in respect to the Greater Sydney Bill, and the resolutions of the Glebe Council, asking to oppose the scheme until such time as suburban property-owners had been enabled to express their views, were considered.

Alderman Anderson considered that they should do everything possible to prevent the scheme being rushed through. They did not know for one thing what the effect on the rates would be.

Alderman Whatmore thought that the interests of the suburbs on the northern side of the harbour were not identical with those of Sydney proper. He favoured a plebiscite.

After further discussion, it was decided to approve of the Annandale and Glebe resolutions.

EDMOND ROSTAND.

The concluding French lecture of the series arranged by the French and German Lectures Committee was delivered last evening at the Royal Society's rooms, after which Mrs. Septimus Harwood announced amid applause that the series of lectures had been well attended, and were a financial success, proving that there was a sufficient number of ladies and gentlemen in Sydney to appreciate the work of the committee.

M. Marescal delivered the final lecture on "Edmond Rostand, Romantique, Pessimiste, Humouriste," and, after a review of the literary career of the French dramatist, and an appreciation of his early work, quoted largely from his more popular works, "L'Aiglon" and "Chantiçler." The lecturer provided a well-selected series of excerpts showing the subtle humour of Rostand, which were thoroughly appreciated by his audience. Mr. Walker presided, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded M. Marescal.

THE RAILWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—One is beginning to wonder if the railways of this State exist for the public, or vice-versa. Complaints innumerable appear in the press and reappear, deputations interview and talk, inquiries occasionally take place, with more talk and some thrusting of tongues into cheeks, Governments come and go, talking, and action and remedy are as far off as ever. I take a few defects at random, and mention shortage of trucks and locomotives. Unpunctuality: We read of the Melbourne express being late day after day for weeks, slowness of passenger trains, the fastest trains averaging only 35 miles per hour; slowness of stock trains, and cruelty resulting to stock, which are treated, as your correspondent in Saturday's "Herald" remarks, "like scrap iron." The Chief Commissioner admitted to an astonished Dominions' Commission that the average speed of stock trains was 10 miles per hour. Shades of Stephenson! The cruelty to stock is notorious, and I heartily echo your correspondent's inquiry as to why the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has not brought a test case against the railways ere this. The average speed of ordinary passenger and freight trains is, perhaps, better not investigated. It would be interesting to know the cost in lives of the typhoid scandal at Cawley camp, which has been too lightly passed over. The cost per mile of the western line between Penrith and Valley Heights, since its first building, would also be instructive.

The authorities live in a little heaven of self-satisfaction, and progress passes us by. We must take what is given us, and not question the experts. A sample of the absurd excuses thought good enough for us was given in answer to the query why the Blue Mountain service could not be improved. The reply was that it was unsafe to travel faster on the down grades. Quite so; but what about the Penrith-Sydney portion, which takes an hour, but could be done in a little over half? Also, could not the speed be improved on the up grade? Personally I believe that half the trouble comes from not having powerful enough locomotives. It is a common sight to see freight trains pantine and groaning up the gradients at a snail's pace, and I have often sat in mountain trains between stations waiting to get up sufficient steam to crawl a little further. I expect the locomotive crews could tell us tales on the subject.

The increased cost of extra speed will be urged against it, but surely it would pay to run at least one really fast train per day on each line at increased fares. Time is money. We look to the press to arouse and organise the public feeling at the present state of stagnation. If the railway autocracy cannot or will not speed things up, then in the name of progress let it be replaced by fresh blood, such as revolutionised transit on the old London district railway. Failing this, let someone in authority take a much-needed post-graduate course abroad at the public expense to destroy the present complacency.

I am, etc., TRAVELLER.

THE SUBURBS.

NORTH SYDNEY.

North Sydney stands to-day as the largest, and one of the most important of the municipalities of the metropolis. It is also the main avenue of traffic to a very wide area, embracing many business and residential centres of growing importance. It is the main connecting link between the northern and southern shores of Sydney Harbour. A distributing centre, for many thousand people are daily landed on its ferry jetties, to be carried off by trains and tram to suburbs extending to Manly and Hornsby. As a municipality, North Sydney to-day carries a population of 40,000. These people are living in a little over 8000 buildings. There are also numerous Public buildings, many of which are pretentious structures. The municipality has an annual income from rateable property of £40,000, and the unimproved capital value of its lands is estimated at £2,250,000. North Sydney can boast of the finest ferry service in Sydney Harbour, also an up-to-date tram service, branching out in all directions, and it is also the terminus of a railway line, connecting the great northern railway at Hornsby Junction, a line which has been the means of opening an extensive area of very fine country for rapid residential settlement.

But North Sydney, or North Shore as it is best known to old colonists, was a suburb with small beginnings. As far back as 1814 we hear of Captain Raine, grandfather of Mr. Raine (Raine and Horne) entering Sydney Harbour as second officer of the ship Surrey, and anchoring in a small bay where Milson's Point jetty now stands. There was sickness on board, which resulted in the death of the captain, first officer, and doctor, and on a site behind where Langdon's timber yard is now, those three were buried, and old colonists remember the three tombstones standing as they did under the quince trees that afterwards grew upon the land. Captain Raine then took charge of the ship and sailed for England.

The original grantee of land at North Sydney were Messrs. Milson, Blue, Wollstonecraft, and Thrupp. Mr. Alfred Milson owned Milson's Point, Mr. William Blue Blue's Point and Lavender Bay, Mr. Wollstonecraft, the whole of the Berry estate, and Mr. Thrupp the whole of Neutral Bay. Later Wollstonecraft's grant passed into the hands of his brother-in-law, Mr. Berry; and Thrupp disposed of his land to the original Daniel Cooper, of Cooper and Levy, and at his death the last-named bequeathed the estate to his nephew, John Cooper, who is the present owner. Thrupp's estate comprised 700 acres of land extending from the waters of Neutral Bay to Long Bay, in Middle Harbour. The Cooper family leased the whole of this land. There were over 70 of these original leases, mostly in large areas, but hundreds of subleases followed. The first to obtain a lease of the Cooper estate was Mr. F. H. Grundy in 1858, followed by another in 1860 to Mr. R. P. Abbott. But the property was not actually dealt with until the 'Seventies, and in the ten years which followed most of the property was leased. The length of the lease in each case was 99 years, and among the early lessees were Richard Harnett, W. C. Bennett, Alex. Oliver, C. O. Moriarty, Captain Craig, and Staunton Spain. Of late years the greater portion of these leases have been converted into freeholds, and it is astonishing to note what an increased value has been placed upon the land since the conversion. In most cases the land has doubled in value. Conversion from leasehold to freehold of this estate still continues, and it will not be many years hence before the whole of the 700 acres comprising Neutral Bay will be treated in the real estate market as freehold property. One of the early settlers in Neutral Bay was the original James Milson, who built a house there in 1825, but the premises were destroyed by fire. Mr. Milson then went to Milson's Point to reside. There he died in 1874. It was not until early in the 'Nineties that anything like settlement made its appearance in Neutral Bay which until then was a dense bush, with a very inadequate transit service to the city. But to-day Neutral Bay stands as one of the most picturesque of the foreshores of the Harbour, possessing as it does a very fine ferry service of its own and a tramway linking the upper portions of the estate with the ferry. As high as £20 a foot has been paid of late years for residential sites in Neutral Bay, and to-day very few building allotments are obtainable. Adjoining Neutral Bay is Cremorne. The original owner of the whole of Cremorne was James Robertson, father of the late Sir John Robertson, but in 1851 the late Mr. James Milson purchased the property from Robertson for £4000. The Milson family later on subdivided the land. The Government, however, resumed the foreshores of Cremorne for a distance of 100 feet back and also the projecting headland. The first sale of Cremorne land, which for years had been a favourite picnic resort, was by Messrs. Raine and Horne in 1902, when from £3 to £5 per foot was paid for the land facing the water. The same land is worth to-day anything from £10 to £20 per foot. Subsequent sales showed the gradual increase that was taking place in this portion of the district, and then, when Cremorne a year or two ago obtained a separate ferry service and a tramway connecting with the Spit and Manly tram lines—making the route to these places much shorted than via Mosman—houses sprang up in all directions, and it will not be long before Cremorne has no vacant land to offer the people.

But to come to the centre of activity in the municipality, one has only to step off the ferry at Milson's Point and continue his journey by tram to Ridge-street and find en route the hubb of business, palatial business premises, that have sprung up within a few years. In 1847, when the late Alfred Milson, sen., took up his residence at Milson's Point, after being burnt out at Neutral Bay, North Sydney was without the services of even a postman. In fact, there was none between Middle Head and Hornsby. The same condition prevailed even as late as 1860, in which year residents living on the Shore had to go to the solitary post-office in Mount-street to get their letters. This first post-office was kept by a man named Stevens, and adjoining it was the first chemist shop, conducted by a Mr. Guise. The honour of being the pioneers of trade in North Sydney belong to the following:—The first blacksmith to establish himself in the settlement was a Mr. Brophy, who occupied a bark hut at the corner of Mount-street, opposite the "Old Red House," one of the earlier hostelries in the district. The first cobbler was Spruson, the first baker Cosgrove, the first butcher Pyne, and the first produce merchant Clewett, who occupied premises at Blue's Point. The first schoolmaster was Mr. Jeremiah Crowley, a gentleman still living in the district, who as far back as 1860 was tutor to the children living on the Shore. This school was established in a building upon the site now occupied by the School of Arts in Mount-street. The first representative of the medical profession was the late Dr. Ward, and he was quickly followed by several others. The first man to run an omnibus in North Sydney was Jeremiah Wall, who was originally the coachman to the late Sir Terence Murray. He plied between Milson's Point and the Old Red House, which was in Mount-street, on a site opposite the present site of the Bank of New South Wales.

Old St. Thomas' Church, of which the late Rev. W. B. Clarke was the incumbent, was the first ecclesiastical building to make its appearance, and at the same time the first Sunday school was opened in a barn at Mosman Bay. The first Roman Catholic Church was erected on the site of the present Church—St. Mary's—at the corner of Miller and Ridge streets, and the first Congregational Church was in Campbell-street, Milson's Point, a building which has since passed into the hands of the Roman Catholics. It is without doubt the oldest ecclesiastical edifice in that portion of the district.

Development and rapid progress which has characterised life on the North Shore during the last 20 years are responsible for the disappearance of some of the old landmarks. These were the homes (palatial in their day) of the early settlers, and but a few of these still remain to remind early colonists of the rapid changes which take place in the wonderful march of progress which Sydney is destined to enjoy. There is in McDougall-street, on the north side leading down to Careening Cove, an old stone cottage which was built in 1828. It is known as "Carabella," and formed part of the Milson estate. Mr. William Milson Shairp, 84 years of age, and his sister two years his junior, were born in this house, and they have lived in it ever since. Their mother was a daughter of the late Mr. James Milson, senior. Another ancient residence still standing is "Brisbane House." The grounds have recently been subdivided and sold. Brisbane House was built in 1831, and the first tenant was the late Sir Alfred Stephen, afterwards Chief Justice of the State. Professor Badham and Mr. James Manning, brother of the late Judge Manning, were subsequent tenants of the property. Another old home is "Grantham," which was erected by Mr. James Milson, sen., and sold to Admiral King, father of the late Philip Gidley King. For many years an old cannon ball was a conspicuous object of the garden. A number of other old residences are still standing, including a house erected by the late Mr. Fisher, barrister at law, who married a daughter of the late Mr. W. C. Wentworth, founder of responsible Government in this country. This house was built of Indian teek, a ship load of which had arrived in Sydney Harbour at the time. There are two old licensed houses still standing which were noted hostelries on the Shore in the sixties. One is the Lily of St. Leonard's Hotel, which in the old days was kept by a man named Black, and among his regular customers were the watermen, who had their boats at the end of Western Wharf-road, at the corner of which thoroughfare the hotel is situated. The other is Dind's Hotel, then a cottage, which to-day adjoins the large hotel, still carried on under the original name.

But in the 'Sixties the population of North Sydney was small. Progress was slow, and finally a ferry service was established by a company composed of Messrs. James Milson, Charles Firsto, William Tucker, and Francis Lord; and boats like "The Herald" and others were employed. They carried not more than a hundred or two passengers per day, but for a number of years this was all the transport service that North Sydney could boast of, and passengers joyfully paid 3d each way. Yet it was this pioneering work of Milson and others that made the district. There was, however, great rejoicing when in 1878 the North Sydney Ferry Company was established, and it took over the Milson Ferry Company at a cost of £20,000. Up-to-date boats were installed, the first large one being "The Wallaby." Land which up to this period had been a drag upon the market now began to be inquired for. Progress, however, was slow. At this time the district was controlled by three municipalities—St. Leonards, which included Mosman, afterwards separated; East St. Leonards; and Victoria; the latter running right round to Blue's Point. This condition of municipal control continued until 1890, when the three municipalities became one, to be known as North Sydney. After amalgamation the first year's income to the council was £17,900, as against £40,000 last year, and the number of houses was 3580, as against 8000 to-day. Mr. Francis Tunks was the first Mayor of the amalgamated municipality, and it is largely due to the efforts of Mr. Tunks that the people enjoy the very fine recreation area known as St. Leonards Park.

With a better ferry service and improved 'bus accommodation to the wharf, the Holterman estate, the Milson estate, and other subdivision sales were conducted by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench and Messrs. Hardie and Gorman. Mr. Gorman also offered the Berry Estate. But right in the very business centre of North Sydney, in side thoroughfares, as Mount, Walker, Alfred, and Junction streets, land would not sell in the early 'Eighties at £6 per foot, but a few years later in the boom period some of the best corner blocks of the Milson estate ran up to £70 per foot, and even as high as £135 was offered for one corner in the height of the land boom period. But the same land is not worth much more to-day. People wonder how that is, but by the tramways settlement has taken place at Willoughby, at Spit Junction, and shopping centres have sprung up at these places, which has limited the values of the old business centre of Milson's Point. It is estimated that the highest price ever paid for a block of land in North Sydney was at the corner of Miller and Mount streets, which was bought by the Bank of New South Wales, it is said, at £175 foot. In the 'Seventies a small hotel stood on this site, and the land was then worth from £12 to £15 per foot. Land at Crow's Nest when Mr. Henry Gorman conducted the first sale, in the 'Eighties, of the Berry estate, right alongside the Public school brought from £1 to 30s per foot. To-day some of that land is worth £40 per foot, and some of it could not be bought for even that money. Mr. Gorman conducted many successful sales on the Berry estate right up to Wollstonecraft, called after the original owner, but it was the railway which sent along that estate. The North Shore railway had been brought down to St. Leonards station, and the question arose would the line be taken on to the higher level and round along to Spit-road Junction and Middle Head, or be brought down to Milson's Point ferry wharf. Mr. Bruce Smith was Minister for Works at the time, and he asked the trustees of the Berry estate on what condition would they let the Government have the necessary land in order to bring the railway to Milson's Point. The trustees of this estate made the Government a present of 30 acres of the land, valued at £1000 per acre, and the line was constructed accordingly. Future sales of the Berry estate were very successful, and only a week or more ago the remnants of the estate were sold by auction by Mr. Gorman at really good prices. It is but few allotments that can be obtained now in any part of the estate. Water frontages at North Sydney have always held their own. In 1875 Lavender Bay was almost a bush, but the water frontages sold rapidly, and to-day it would be very hard to obtain one. In 1879 these sites were sold at from £7 to £8 per foot. They are worth to-day from £35 to £40 per foot. In 1879 land near the water at Lavender Bay was sold at £4 per foot; to-day it is worth £12 per foot.

PUBLIC WORKS.

CHECKING THE COST.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A new system of checking the cost of public works has been introduced into the Home Affairs Department.

The principle of the system is the subdivision of quantities, and the recording day by day of the cost of construction in the different subdivisions by means of indexed cards. The system is the one introduced by Mr. Thompson, of the Staritt Building Company, in America. It has now been put into operation for all day-labour works undertaken by the department. Mr. O'Malley says that, as a result, it is possible week by week to gauge not only the total cost of the work, but the cost of the various subdivisions, excavation, concrete, brickwork, carpentry work, and so on.

PREFERENTIAL VOTING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—On August 3, 1910, you published in the columns of your paper a letter from me on "Preferential or Effective Voting." That was before the introduction of the second ballot, which was first applied in this State at the general elections in October, 1910.

As the time for the State general elections is again drawing near, I think it opportune again to draw public attention to a simple system of preferential voting, which I consider is much more preferable to the second ballot for many reasons, a few of them are: A saving of time to the voters and to the candidates, and less expense to the candidates and to the Government, and the result would be exactly the same, provided that only the voters who voted at the first election were allowed to vote at the second one, and they voted consistently. Briefly, the system of preferential voting advocated by me, in the case of single electorates, is that the voter shall mark the ballot paper by placing number one in front of the name of the candidate of his or her first choice, likewise number two for the second choice, number three for the third choice, and so on, according to the number of candidates, seeking election. Then, at the scrutiny, the returning officer would require to sort the ballot papers into lots according to the first preferences marked thereon, and in the event of no candidate receiving an absolute majority of the votes polled (viz., one more, at least, than half the votes polled), to sort the ballot papers of the candidate lowest on the poll, according to the next preference marked thereon, to the lots of ballot papers of the other candidates, and so on, till one candidate received an absolute majority of the votes recorded.

Beeby	1157 votes.
Johnston	1121 votes.

Had there been a preferential system of voting in vogue instead of the second ballot all that would have been necessary after the first count would have been for the returning officer to have sorted the votes recorded to Mr. Johnston, who was lowest on the poll, to the lots of votes of the other candidates (Mr. Withington and Mr. Beeby), according to the second preference marked on the ballot papers, and the result would have been attained without the trouble and expense of a second election.

Trusting that a preferential system of voting will be adopted before the next State general elections.

A remarkable fire escape, decribed in the "Popular Mechanics Magazine," is called "the tape measure." It consists of a narrow band of steel tightly rolled upon a spool contained in a casing. In using the device, the end of the tape is made fast at the point from which the escape is to be made, a leather belt, attached to the spool casing, is fastened around the waist, and the user drops to the ground, regulating the speed at which the tape unwinds by means of a clutch device.

CASUALTIES.

ROSE BAY QUARRY ACCIDENT.

Yesterday morning at about 11 o'clock Alfred Wright, 27, was loading a cart from a stone quarry in New South Head-road, Rose Bay, when a mass of stone weighing about 2 tons, fell on his right leg. The limb was severely crushed. Wright was later admitted at Sydney Hospital by Dr. Parry.

FOUND DEAD.

An old man named Patrick Hayes, employed as a groom for the past 29 years at St. Joseph's Convent, Lochinvar, was found dead near the bridge at Lochinvar. Deceased was 68 years of age. He seems to have fallen over the approach to the bridge and, being stunned, perished from exposure.

PLAYING WITH POWDER.

PORTLAND, Tuesday.

Robert Banfield filled a bottle with powder and applied a lighted match to the neck of the bottle. The explosion which resulted caused serious injuries to the lad's face, which necessitated his removal to the hospital.

MOTORING ACCIDENT.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

While coming down William-street on Monday evening, an Overland motor car, driven by Mr. Keith Turton, manager for Waddel Bros., with whom was Mr. Hubert Thomson, a well-known solicitor, collided heavily with one of the street trees. The occupants of the car were thrown out, but escaped with minor injuries, though both were picked up unconscious. The car was badly damaged, the needed repairs being estimated to cost £100.

ACCIDENT TO RAILWAY FIREMAN.

BLACKTOWN, Tuesday.

An accident happened before daybreak this morning to the fireman of a goods train passing through here, named John William Syme, a resident of Penrith. It is supposed that he was preparing to take water, and was struck by the overhead foot bridge which was erected here about six months ago, but has not yet been lighted. Syme was not sufficiently conscious to explain how the accident happened. The acting stationmaster, Mr. Sheehan, was awakened, and sent for Dr. J. T. Paton, who had to put about twenty stitches in the man's face. Mr. Sheehan sent him to Penrith Hospital by the 7.19 a.m. train on an ambulance stretcher in charge of the assistant guard.

DEATH IN A TRAIN.

CESSNOCK, Tuesday.

An inquest was held on the body of a middle-aged man, L. Addler, who died in the break van of a train on Saturday night while being conveyed to the Maitland Hospital through injuries caused by being thrown from a horse. A verdict of accidental death was given.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

WEST MAITLAND, Tuesday.

A serious shooting accident occured at Lamb's Valley yesterday. A young man named John Richards, son of Mr. Frank Richards, farmer, of Bolwarra, was out wallaby shooting with a number of others. While coming down the side of the mountain Richards slipped, and the gun he was carrying exploded. He was conveyed in a sulky to the Maitland Hospital. One pellet entered his face under the eye, another the nose, and several pellets lodged in his shoulder. He was very weak from loss of blood and shock when admitted to the hospital, and his condition is serious.

A PROBLEM OF THE NORTH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I regret that Dr. Nisbet, owing to his return to Queensland, cannot reply to Mr. A. Meston's statement in your issue of the 18th inst. I feel, however, that Mr. Meston's attack on Dr. Nisbet should not be allowed to go unchallenged.

First of all, let me say that Dr. Nisbet is a man of high standing in his profession, a resident for 25 years in North Queensland, and the Government medical officer for Townsville. Moreover, he has made a special study of the question of tropical settlement by whites. His colleague, Dr. Ahearne, who has lived even longer in Townsville, holds similar views to those of Dr. Nisbet. Now, both these gentlemen have nothing to gain, either financially or socially, by their attitude towards this question. On the contrary, they incur a considerable amount of odium, and have to face abuse such as Mr. Meston hurls at Dr. Nisbet. This, however, is a fate common to all who dare to speak what seems to them the truth to a hostile public that does not wish its predetermined beliefs interfered with.

Now, a subject of such enormous importance as the colonisation of tropical Australia should be approached, not with the acrimony inseparable from the advocacy of a particular political belief, but by the dispassionate way of scientific research. The appeal must be to experience, and not to the limited experience of a few years in Australia, but to the records of the known past. The question is: Does history reveal the persistence of any Teutonic race in the tropics? It is well known that there have been continual migrations of blonde peoples from north to south, but, as Dr. Woodruff points out in his book, "Tropical Light," mentioned by Professor MacMillan Brown, these people have invariably disappeared sooner or later. This is due, according to Woodruff, to the fact that they have not sufficient pigment in their skin to protect them from the active rays of the sun. Whether this be the reason or not, the fact remains that these intruders into latitudes which are not their natural habitat, have faded and left not a rack behind. And though the migrations of modern times have been mostly east and west through isothermal zones, there are a few instances where attempts have been made by the British and Dutch to colonise the tropics.

In order to obtain first-hand evidence about these, I wrote some time ago to the chief medical officers of all the British Dependencies in the tropics, and asked for information on the subject.

I will only quote two of the replies, though I may say that all are agreed as to the impossibility of the permanent settlement of Anglo-Saxons as manual and field workers. Dr. J. M'Pherson, the senior medical officer of the island of Montserrat, writes: "Records show that the island was first colonised by whites in 1629, and in 1668 the number of white males was 1200. In 1672 the population must have been considerable, as it appears that 1100 men-at-arms were then available. Since these times a steady decrease in the numbers has taken place, until at the present day there are less than a dozen whites of the old stock remaining, and it is almost certain that in about two generations the race will have disappeared. It is to be noted that the colonists were of hardy Irish breed, and that the island is almost free from 'tropical diseases,' with a cool climate, yet, though fostered and encouraged by the Government, the original stock of settlers has now practically disappeared. People of British descent, whose ancestors have lived here, show mental, physical, and moral degeneration. This particularly applies to females, who are inclined to be pale, neurotic, and generally unattractive. The same thing applies more markedly to people whose parents have been of the labouring or artisan class. Children of all classes are born of fairly healthy appearance, but often become pallid and flabby at from 2 to 6 years. They have a 'flagging' look, without suffering from any particular disease, and in the absence of malaria, anhylostomiaris, or other known general cause. This condition is due apparently to climatic nervous depression, reacting on the blood forming and digestive organs. It seems that white colonisation of tropical Australia would be more or less a repetition of history, and in my opinion could only be successful for a time, if successful at all; and as regards the labourers themselves, the scheme is rather a cruel one."

Sir Frederick Treves in his book on the West Indies gives almost identical testimony as regards the "poor whites" of Barbadoes, which also possesses a cool climate and freedom from tropical diseases. Sir A. Perry, the principal medical officer of Ceylon, writes to me: "After a period of 20 years' residence in this island, I have not come across a third generation of pure European birth, and those Europeans who are born in a second generation, and who remain here, often show physical degeneration. In India it is said that pure Europeans die out in the third generation." But it is needless to multiply quotations in support of this view.

Further, the effect of altitude in modifying to any degree the influence of the tropical sun is disputed by the authorities. Professor Ward, of Harvard, says:—"Altitude gives some relief in the way of lower temperature than at sea-level: but all experience shows that altitude does not solve the acclimatisation problem. A tropical run is always a tropical sun. A tropical climate is always a tropical climate." With adverse testimony from every quarter, surely it is the height of rashness and folly for the Federal Government to say: "We will colonise tropical Australia with Anglo-Saxons, and with Anglo-Saxons only." Would it not be the rational course to have an exhaustive inquiry into the whole subject before the process of drafting immigrants to the Northern Territory is begun? Nearly five years ago I brought the matter before the Medical Congress at Melbourne, and suggested a deputation to the Prime Minister (Mr. Deakin), to ask for a Royal Commission to investigate the question all over the world. The deputation took place, and a promise was given that the proposal would be seriously considered, and there it ended. I have again and again urged that if a "white Australia" is possible it can only be by getting people from countries nearer the equator to populate our tropical north, and do the work in the open there. A Londoner lives in a mean annual temperature of 50deg., and probably can bear translation to Sydney, where the mean is 63deg. But take him to Port Darwin, where the mean is 83deg., and the change is altogether too violent. On the other hand, a Maltese, accustomed to a temperature of 67deg, or a Southern Spaniard, with one of 72deg, would have an infinitely better chance of settling permanently for generations in Port Darwin. These truths may not be palatable, but they have to be faced, and instead of jeering at scientific observers like Dr. Nisbet, we should seek to profit by their knowledge and experience. Finally, if we think we can violate the laws of nature in this as in any other way future generations will find that we have made a costly and disastrous mistake.

I am, etc., RICHARD ARTHUR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Well may the North Queenslander, after reading your report of an interview with Dr. W. B. Nisbet, a Townsville medico of long standing, exclaim, "Save me from my friends!" It is difficult to understand the motive of the doctor's denunciation of Northern Queensland, or to refrain from smiling at the absurdity of his long string of baseless accusations against one of the richest, healthiest, most prosperous, and attractive territories in the world. Here is a sample:—"I would say positively that 90 per cent. of the people of North Queensland would leave it to-morrow if their means allowed." Now, Dr. Nisbet knows very well that the people of North Queensland are, and have been for some time past, enjoying a period of marvellous prosperity. In his own city of Townsville, for example, the population is increasing by leaps and bounds; houses and shops cannot be had for love or money, and the business activity and enterprise of the people are more pronounced than at any previous period of the city's history. Moreover, the health of the populace is so good that comparatively little demand exists for medical men. Possibly no good-sized town in Australia maintains, proportionately, so few doctors as does Townsville. And this happy condition of things obtains, generally speaking, all through the length and breadth of Queensland. This whining about the climate of the north is scarcely what one might expect from Dr. Nisbet, who has himself, at any rate, seen fit to make his home there, in spite of all temptations to practise elsewhere. I believe I am correct in saying that the doctor, after a lengthy stay in the north, did remove to Victoria, but was not long in returning to his old love, Townsville. The climate of coastal North Queensland is no more trying in the summer time than that of Sydney at the same period of the year, while every visitor knows that the North Queensland winter is absolute perfection. In the hinterland of Cairns the temperature is pleasant all the year round. All temperate climate fruits and vegetables flourish there exceedingly, and the people of the district are among the finest specimens of native-born Australians it is possible to produce. There are many other parts of Queensland equally desirable, and capable of maintaining millions of people. Queensland is a great deal more than twice the size of New South Wales, and considering her youth, her vastness, her distance from big centres of population, and the never-ceasing attempts to belittle her by those who should know better, her progress has been quite as rapid as could be expected. If a cool climate means increased population, why does Tasmania stand still and Victoria progress so slowly? Queensland is all right, and the best place in the world to go to for a man who desires to better his condition. But she doesn't require people who want a special climate made to their particular requirements, or those who are accustomed to spend the day in the surf and the night at the picture show. Queensland is a white man's country, and wants white men to develop it. Happily the government of the State is in good hands. A progressive Administration is encouraging immigration and settlement, and conducting a bold railway policy. A warm welcome is extended to worthy newcomers to the State, and no effort spared to settle them comfortably on the land or elsewhere, and to render them happy and contented citizens of one of the most favoured portions of the British Empire.

I am, etc., T. P. ADLAM.

THE RUINS OF MEROE.

At the Royal Institution, London, recently, Professor John Garstang delivered a lecture on "Meroe: Four Years' Excavation of the Ancient Ethiopian Capital." On behalf of the University of Liverpool, and aided by the support of private benefactors, the lecturer has been at work for four years in scientifically uncovering the ruins of the once famous Ethiopian capital. When his first expedition arrived upon the scene, he said, there was little to suggest the great extent and interest of the city which had now come to light; in fact, only one wall and a few objects of sculpture were visible above the soil. Now, however, a number of temples, palaces, and public buildings have been laid bare. The walls of the Royal city had been traced, and during the past season's work, from which he had just returned, a considerable portion of this enclosure had been excavated so that a visitor might enter by the city gate and walk along the ancient streets, turning right or left at will into the different buildings. First amongst the greater buildings of the site was the Sun Temple, which was designed in a series of ascending ambulatories with stone-built cloisters, the sanctuary being found on the highest platform in the middle. An even larger building was the Temple of Ammon, and other monuments excavated included an extensive palace presumed to be of Roman period, two small temples, one of which was dedicated to a Lion deity, an ancient temple of Isis, later reconstructed, pottery kilns of Meroitic times, and several hundred tombs of the necropolis. For the last two seasons the excavation has been almost entirely concentrated upon the Royal enclosure, in which remarkable discoveries have been made. In one of the Royal palaces a hoard of gold treasure and ornaments was found, and the Royal baths adjacent, which were on an extensive scale, illustrated in their details the character of the Meroitic arts better than any other features of the city.

Under the threshold of another public building, carefully buried in sand amid the debris of a building, there was found a beautiful bronze head of Augustus, which was now permanently deposited in the British Museum. A short distance from the spot were the remains of a small temple of Roman style, and the lecturer believed that the bronze head of the divine emperor had once formed the cult object in this temple. During the past winter a bronze coin of Augustus, and an increasing number of small objects, were discovered, all of which tended to indicate that, for a brief time at any rate, Roman troops actually occupied the city. In this way the fact and circumstances of the discovery of the bronze head would be satisfactorily explained. When Augustus commanded the Roman troops to withdraw, the head was removed from the temple, and carefully buried out of danger of violation.

HEIR TO £12,000.

William Thompson, a wheelwright, 60 years old, who lives in a cottage at Matlock (states a London journal), has just discovered that he is heir to £12,000. The money comes to him by the death of his two uncles, who emigrated to Utah many years ago. The second died 11 months ago, and since then the lawyers have been hunting for Thompson, who all the time was living within ten miles of his birthplace. Thompson, who declares that he is "no scholar," did not know that he was being advertised for until he was told so by a friend. "I shall not change my way of living," he said to a press representative. "I shall stay in this cottage for the rest of my days, but I am going to give money away to those who have been good to me. Years ago I should have lost my life but for the Derby Royal Infirmary, and I shall give them £2000. I shall give £1000 each to the Whitworth, Matlock, and the Worksworth hospitals, and gifts of £100 to Bakewell Union and £200 each to the Chesterfield and Belper Unions for the poor folk."

PIRATES' BURIED £2,000,000.

A Wisconsin college professor has formed a company to dig for £2,000,000 sterling, believed to have been buried more than 200 years ago by pirates on Oak Island, a short distance from Chester, Nova Scotia. Captain John Welling, who for 15 years was first officer on a Government steam dredger, has charge of the work. An unsuccessful attempt was made by three men (states a press report) to recover this treasure in 1795. They abandoned the work after reaching a depth of 30ft. Early in the nineteenth century another attempt was made to reach the treasure, but after digging 95ft and unearthing a large stone on which was carved: "Ten feet below is £2,000,000 buried," the pit filled with water, and the work was abandoned.

Professor Peissard, a Swiss Government archaeologist, announces that during excavations at Blassens a bronze necklace and a bracelet made of blue glass were discovered at a depth of three yards. They were in what was apparently a tomb, the bones of a woman being found with them. It is believed that they belong to the period of about 150 to 200 B.C.

ELECTRICITY ON LINERS.

MODERN INSTALLATIONS.

Electricity is everywhere nowadays on shipboard. At first it was confined to the electric light—those early incandescents of aggravating memory. Time has enabled the electric engineer to improve on the lighting greatly, and to introduce both power and heat.

Very interesting and comprehensive is the equipment of the electric installation. One of the most complete installations of recent years is that of the new Cunard liner Aquitania, the largest, it is claimed, ever fitted on board a steamer. But many really important equipments have been supplied to the P. and O., British India, Donaldson, and other lines. A splendid passenger steamer for the Mediterranean has over 2000 electric lamps on board. Quite new ideas have just been adopted by leading Glasgow and London firms; but the lighting department of electricity is ever on the list of novelties, and each firm specialises in something new and up-to-date with the decorative effect always in view.

On this steamer the ventilating—an extremely knotty problem—is achieved by 16 electrically-driven thermo tanks supplying heated or cold air by means of trunking to the various compartments. Over 100 fans, of course, electrically driven, ventilate the saloons and passenger accommodation. Down in that region of superheated atmosphere, the stokehold, large sirocco fans make good play. All the steamer's navigating lights are electric; and an ingenious device has been patented. It is to be seen in the chart-room, and is a duplex automatic mast and side-light indicator. The officer in charge of the chart-room can detect at a glance if anything is wrong with the navigating lights; he does not require, as on board other less up-to-date ships, to go on deck and look round.

Laundries on board ship are not palatial apartments. Any corner is good enough provided it is sufficiently far removed from the passenger berths; in fact, it is usually right in the stern of the ship, and is chiefly noted for its cramped dimensions. The equipment is usually stowed away—one or two washing machines, electrically operated, a hydro-extractor, a drying chamber, electrically-heated smoothing irons, most useful and natty of articles, and a calendering machine. No shafting is used; it gives too much vibration and noise, and direct-coupled electric motors work silently; and the change from the steam era is appreciated.

A UBIQUITOUS POWER.

In these splendid liners electric power is always at work—it operates the provision hoists, the engineer's lathe, the potato peelers, and dish washers. In the baker's shop it mixes the dough; in the gymnasium it drives the physical culture apparatus. Even the sounding machine is electrically connected. A fine new Australian coasting steamer has had fitted powerful electrically-driven winches for the quick handling of the boats. Effective service is given by switchboards—a large main board in the engine-room, and auxiliary boards placed at various points throughout the ship. Even the new salvage and tug boats—strong, sturdy, little vessels—several of which have been sent out lately to Buenos Ayres, South Africa, and elsewhere abroad, have electric light and wireless apparatus.

After the demonstration of its indispensableness on deck and below deck, electricity has now been applied to the work of ship-propulsion. The shipbuilders have taken their time and made careful study to consent to this; the electrical experts have had to give ample proof of the trustworthiness of the new machinery. On recent steamers built for the Orient, Austrian Lloyd, and other lines, there has been introduced a new electric-hydraulic steering gear operated from the navigating bridge by the telemotor.

Even more ambitious is the new electric drive to the propeller. This sounds complicated, but the method is evolved to counteract the revolution-speed of the oil engine. There is at present a steamer of 2400 tons building in England for grain-carrying on the Canadian Lakes. Oil motors have been installed in the room of steam engines and boilers to drive the propeller. But the engines, although of large size, revolve too rapidly; the propellor blades would be apt to thrash the water. By introducing the electric motor between the oil engine and the propeller blades the speed of the engine—say, 400 revolutions per minute—is reduced to a satisfactory 80 revolutions, thereby increasing the speed of the ship on the canals and lakes. Further the officer on deck can more quickly get the engines to stop or reverse.

ROMEO AND JULIET.

£520 FOR A FOURTH QUARTO.

Trinity College's library at Cambridge, besides holding some priceless Milton manuscripts, possesses a copy of the very rare first edition of the quarto of "Romeo and Juliet." There is also one in the Bodleian. In recent years America has seen to it that any quarto of Shakespeare's whatever should be snapped up. Thus in 1905 even a fourth quarto of "Richard III." fetched more than a first folio up to that time—£1750. But it happened to contain the autograph of Admiral Sir William Penn, James II.'s "Great Captain Commander." Then Earl Howe's quarto prizes were sold privately for huge sums. The Huth quartos were seized by Mr. Cochran and presented as a thankoffering to his Alma Mater, Yale. Last month, in the sale of Sir Anthony Cope's library at Sotheby's, was an example of the fourth quarto of "Romeo and Juliet," published by John Smethwick in 1609, seven years before Shakespeare's death. There has been some talk about American interest being on the wane. The fact that Mr. Quaritch gave £520 for the survivor proves that there is still enough keenness. Just a hundred years ago the Duke of Roxburghe's copy of the fourth quarto fetched only £2 3s, and no copy sold at Sotheby's has brought more than £400.

A fourth quarto of "Hamlet," 1611, made £300 (Sabin), and a second quarto of "Titus Andronicus," 1611, £155 (Quaritch). As 233 lots totalled £3429, it will be gathered that there were other covetable items. When Roger Ascham issued his "Toxophilus, the Schole of Shootinge," in 1545, he was appealing to a patriotic spirit with the intention of urging a nation to be efficient in arms. The work was dedicated to Henry VIII., and Edward Prince of Wales (afterwards the Boy King Edward VI.) had his copy bound in calf with the Tudor rose, fleur de lys, Westminster portcullis, and his own feathers. This self-same copy appeared at last month's sale, and brought £133 (Sabin). Lovers of Robin Hood welcomed Anthony Munday's "Downfall of Robert Earle of Huntington, afterwards called Robin Hood of Merrie Sherwode, with his love to chaste Matilda, the Lord Fitzwaters' daughter," 1601, £92 (ditto). The 1607 "Tragedie of Claudius Tiberius Nero" fetched £50, and the first edition, 1633, of Marlow's "Rich Jew of Malta" £63 (Quaritch). The 1733 edition of Moliere's works in six volumes reached £30 (Hornstein), and the very rare 1594 "Battell of Alcazar fought in Barbarie between Sebastian King of Portugal and Abdelmelec, King of Morocco, with the death of Captaine Stukeley," £132 (Quaritch). Ben Jonson's "Sejanus, his Fall," 1605, made £77 (Pickering), and his "Cattiline," 1611, £97 (ditto).

THE RELIGION OF U.S PRESIDENTS.

Mention of President Wilson's Presbyterianism is a reminder (remarks a London journal) that altogether seven United States Presidents have been members of the Presbyterian Church, and in this connection it is interesting to note that, though Scotland is the only country where Presbyterianism is the established religion, not one of the three Presidents of Scotch descent has been a Presbyterian. These three were Munroe, Grant, and Hayes, the first of whom was an Episcopalian, and the other two Methodists. Four of the seven Presbyterians—Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, and Wilson—have been of mixed Scotch and Irish descent, the ancestry of the other three—Lincoln, Cleveland, and Benjamin Harrison—being English. In addition to Grant and Hayes, Johnson (English) and McKinley (Scotch-Irish) were also Methodists. John Adams and J. Quincey Adams (both English) were Congregationalists; Fillmore (English), Unitarian; Garfield (English), Church of the Disciples; Van Buren and Roosevelt (Dutch), Dutch Reformed Church. No Roman Catholic has yet attained to the Presidency.

HOW TO BE WELL THOUGH 50.

A Paris doctor has been giving advice to people over 50. Butchers will not hail his words with rapture, as he enjoins a non-flesh diet. The city clerk will groan as he reads his words, because the good doctor prescribes an hour's rest after lunch. The sale of Brownings—the poems, not the pistols—should go up, for Dr. Helme advises us to be as optimistic as possible, and who is more optimistic than Browning? "Then welcome each rebuff that turns earth's pathway rough." But a slight difficulty comes in here. Evening is the only time for reading, and too much brain work in the evening is tabooed, which very nearly excludes the assimilation of the great but craggy poet.

TRADE WITH JAPAN.

INABA MARU'S BIG CARGO.

After making one trip more to this port the big Japanese liner, Inaba Maru (Captain S. Tominga), will be dropped out of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha's Australian service, and replaced by the larger and newer steamer Tango Maru, which, by all accounts, is a particularly fine steamer. The Inaba Maru will clear for Yokohama to-day with a large number of passengers for Japan, and she will carry a cargo of between 6000 and 7000 tons, including wheat, flour, and wool. This, it is stated, will be the largest cargo yet taken from Australia to Japan, and it marks the almost phenomenal growth of our trade with that country. That trade is becoming an increasing factor, and by the look of things it will go on increasing. The N.Y.K. is meeting the brisker Australian conditions, with more accommodation for passengers and cargo.

Taxpayers are reminded that to-day is the last day for payment of 1913 income tax without fine.

PALMER CORD TYRES ARE SELECTED FOR EVERY IMPORTANT CONTEST.

PALMER CORD TYRES.

Expert drivers KNOW these Tyres will not fail them in their sensational speeding—they KNOW that the rubber cord foundation is impervious to strain and uniform in tension.
Mr. Jules Goux used them at Brooklands in his sensational record—106 miles 387 yards in one hour.
Mr. Percy Lambert, on the same track, drove 104½ miles in an hour; and Mr. Victor Hemery previously established eleven world's records in the one day with one of these Tyres.
Such performances lead to only one conclusion—that the Palmer Cord Tyres are THE WORLD'S BEST for speed and service.
Write or call for the interesting Catalogue.

"Sydney's Garden Suburb."
It is so easy to become the possessor of your own home—free from the harassing fear of the serious consideration of your rental. Give the matter immediate consideration. It means much to you now—it will mean more and more to you as the years go by.
Do you wish to live under the healthiest, pleasantest, most congenial conditions? Do you wish to save yourself much money? Do you wish to live in your own home—absolutely master of it—rent free—happy? Do you wish to avoid the unpleasant feeling that, after 20 years of rent-paying, you own nothing more than a batch of rent receipts?
It is almost unnecessary to put these questions to one's self. Still, put them to yourself, and you must sensibly answer them to your own advantage. And the advantage is, shortly, OWN YOUR OWN HOME AT HABERFIELD.
Modern, Artistic Cottages are available for purchase at from £825 to £1525. The Cottages are built under the Haberfield SYSTEM of construction, which, eliminating many ordinary building and contingent expenses, is money-saving in the extreme. Every Cottage is attractive, dignified, and distinctive in exterior design, and each interior is embellished with appropriate regard to the general scheme.
If you have only £50 to pay as deposit we can deal with you at HABERFIELD. Our Easy Terms of Repayments on a 5 per cent. basis will astonish you. In most cases the repayments are practically less than the property is worth on a rental basis. The balance of purchase money is payable as rent.
The design of "Sydney's Garden Suburb" throughout aims at realising fully this title. The wide, tree-lined streets, and large, open, parklike spaces, the fine grounds, and the gardens surrounding the handsome homes, give a true sense of living under the most healthful, pleasant conditions.
The shops are confined to a definite, restricted area, and no building may be produced which will intrude a jarring note into the general harmony of the whole scheme.
Haberfield is conveniently situated, being but 20 minutes from the heart of the metropolis. Take Abbotsford or Haberfield tram in George-street, and alight at O'Connor-street. By "through" train to Summer Hill the journey is 10 minutes.

HOW DO YOU CLEANSE YOUR FACE?

To the possessor of a normal skin the use of soap and water for washing the face may be said to be optional; to one whose skin is greasy and affected with blackheads, washing with soap and water is essential, while a tender, dry, or brittle skin cannot be washed without great risk of injury. It is on account of the caustic effect of soaps that a greasy skin should be washed—it is on account of this same caustic effect that a dry skin must not, and a normal skin should not, be washed.

With these rules to guide us the cleansing of the skin can be most effectively accomplished without the use of soap and water by the aid of NOVENA CERATE. This is best done by rubbing some Novena Cerate thoroughly into the skin, leaving it on for five or ten minutes, then wiping it off with a soft towel. This will remove the impurities much more effectively than soap and water can do, and make the skin less sensitive. Price, 2/10, posted.

When washing the face with water is desired the VALAZE SOAP should be used with warm water that has been improved by the Valaze Water-Softening Pastilles. Valaze Soap should be used in preference to other soaps, because it contains many of the properties of the Valaze Skin Food, because it cleanses, soothes, softens, and purifies the skin as no other soap will do. Price, 2/2, posted. The Water-Softening Pastilles are 1/ per tube.

Valaze Skin Food and Complexion Beautifier yields nourishment, purity, and beauty to the skin, frees it from all discolouration, blotches, pimples, freckles, and sallowness, and keeps it healthy and clear. Price, 3/6 and 6/6; postage, 6d.

NOVENA HAIR DESTROYER removes the hairs without the slightest detriment to the skin. It is safe and pleasant to use, and leaves a delightful cooling effect, which is so different to the usual effect of other depilatories. Price, 5/6, postage 6d. Another preparation which will be found of great benefit when used in conjunction with the Novena Hair Destroyer is the NOVENA PASTA. It should be applied after the removal of the Hair Destroyer. It soothes, softens, whitens, and preserves the skin. It is also delightful for evening use for the neck, shoulders, and arms. It imparts a beautiful whiteness, which remains on for hours, and cannot be dislodged by heat, perspiration, or moisture. Price, 3/10, posted.

Valaze preparations obtainable from all Chemists, or direct from HELENA RUBINSTEIN PROP., LTD., Dept. D., 158 Pitt-street, Sydney; or 274 Collins-street, Melbourne.

STERN WINTER IS ABROAD.

SNOWS OFFER PROTECTION FOR EVERY WOMAN AT A REDUCED PRICE TARIFF.

There is a story of an Old King of Siam, who, when told by the first traders to his shores that snow and hail fell in northern lands, refused to believe in such phenomena. In his sunny clime they experienced nothing of the kind, so he forbade his people to trade with "such unprincipled liars."

We have been told it is snowing on the mountains. We believe it. Just now we can believe anything of the weather. It should not surprise us to see the temperature drop from 41 to lower than the previous coldest record—38 degrees. But you may console yourselves with the thought that have big stocks of all warm apparel for women, as well as Blankets, Rugs, and Quilts of the finest kind at the lowest-in-the-city prices.

THE LADIES COME IN, AND THE FURS GO OUT.

Several Special Purchases enable us to offer many Furs at half usual prices. No better values will be found—even in the sales that are on.

TALKS ON CORSETS.

NO. 3.

There are no two figures alike—therefore, Corsets should be likewise designed to thoroughly mould each type—ON NATURAL LINES—into a beautiful interpretation of what Nature intended you should be. Although NATURE fails in many cases, Science makes up the deficiencies in such a manner that no woman need be other than of an ideal beauty in figure outline and compactness. So exquisitely are Nature's most perfect endowments easily attainable through wearing

GRACE BROS., THE MODEL STORE, BROADWAY.

DEMONSTRATION FORTNIGHT AT THE MODEL STORE.
2nd DAY.

TO-DAY'S ATTRACTIONS.

Exhibition of Rare Academy Works.
Special Display of Bulgarian Embroidery.
Demonstration of Kohler's Cocoa.

We held yesterday a most successful Demonstration of Mincing and Food Chopping Machines, and as a result, many housewives received a host of information which we trust fully compensated them for the time it took to come and attend the Demonstration.

To-day's attractions will be our Windows, and the goods contained in each window will add to the pleasure of a visit to THE MODEL STORE.

Two windows in particular, Nos. 7 and 8, will be devoted to an Exhibition of Academy Works, in which many of the world's celebrated painters are represented.

Among the Paintings on view are some magnificently-realistic studies, and one of the first subjects worthy of some comment is an elemental study, entitled,

"A WINDY DAY," No. 1,
By C. F. Johnson .... PRICE, £300.

The scene is laid in the Fen Country, where the sweeping wind has laid low the rushes, and bent almost double the trees, while a solitary horse betrays distress so pitiful that one stands awe-inspired by the stern realism of the work. A more thrilling representation of one of Nature's ugly humours it would be difficult to imagine.

AN EXTRACT.

The following is an extract from a letter just received by us from M. Newman, Picture Expert, St. James', S.W., London.

Messrs. Grace Bros.
Dear Sirs,
My son, Mr. Alfred Newman, informs me that he has delivered to you the stock of pictures and drawings on my behalf. The picture, "A Windy Day," by C. E. Johnson—for this work the artist received £800.

Next in order of merit comes a beautiful subject, entitled,

"AN OPEN BAZAAR," No. 2,
from the brush of Edward Mills .. Price, £80.

This picture depicts several groups of Arabs in a native Bazaar, and the grouping of the figures displays excellent draftsmanship. The artist has subdued his colour tones, which is a welcome effect, as painters of Oriental subjects are too prone, as a rule, to accentuate the blaze of Eastern colouring.

"POVERETTA," No. 3.
By Frank Topham ...... PRICE, £95.

In this picture the artist presents a familiar type of noble Donna passing down a stairway oblivious to the presence of a ragged woman clasping in anguish a child to her bosom. It was first exhibited in Manchester in 1882, and pronounced by connoisseurs to be one of his best works.

"THE RIALTO," No. 4.
By Frank Dillon, R.I. .. PRICE, £60.

In "The Rialto" the colouring and sky effects are reminiscent of Turner's famous Venetian studies. The turquoise Blue of the sky reflected in the canal is beautifully done. The quaint bridge across the canal, and the picturesque buildings along its banks, are architecturally and pictorially perfect.

"A YOUNG POACHER," No. 5.
By Syd. Paget .... PRICE, £36.

Undoubtedly one of the best of the smaller works of the collection is that called "A Young Poacher," painted by Syd. Paget. In point of drawing it is doubtful if Paget ever did anything better than "A Young Poacher." A boy carrying a stolen hare, and with a well-filled bag slung over his shoulder. That is the whole subject; but the face of the boy is so full of character, the expression is one of such devil-may-care wantonness, and the air betokens such utter callousness, that one stands lost in admiration of this living, breathing figure.

Leaving the Oils, we now turn with interest to some rarities in Water Colours.

"THE COMING STORM," No. 15.

It is from the brush of E. M. Wimperis, Vice-president of the Royal Institute of Water Colourists.

The Coming Storm betokens the work of a master. The gathering cloud over the moors, the impending outbreak of the elements as predicted by the great shadows falling across the landscape, and the naturalness of the moors combine to display intense artistic culture.

Space does not permit of describing one-quarter of the collection of masterpieces now on view, but we have prepared a special eight-page Catalogue, giving a brief account of each subject. We shall be pleased to send a copy of this Catalogue, and those who would like a copy are requested to write for it.

In addition to our Exhibition of Academy Works, we wish to draw the special attention of visitors to a display of

One particularly choice example in this collection is fashioned (in so far as design and colouring is concerned) from the original panels of two thousand years ago. We have only a limited quantity of Bulgarian Embroidery Work, and those who wish to see the display should make a point of coming along this morning, for we know that the goods have only to be seen to be appreciated.

DEMONSTRATION OF KOHLER'S COCOA at GRACE BROS.

Every day during DEMONSTRATION FORTNIGHT we shall be holding demonstrations of Kohler's Cocoa, and visitors to THE MODEL STORE are specially invited to come and partake of a delicious cup of cocoa any time during the day.

IN SILK ATTIRE.

The Scores of BEAUTIFUL FABRICS are made from other materials and the FASHION WORLD abounds in CHOICE and LOVELY TEXTILE FABRICS, it may be said without fear of serious contradiction, that SILK is QUEEN of all. The sovereignty of SILK has survived the TEST of AGES, for since the time, nearly 5000 years ago, when the EMPRESS SEE-LING-SHEE, with her Royal hands, first unravelled the COCOONS and wove the GLOSSY FILAMENT into a web of "Glorious Sheen," no usurper, however daring, has been able to hurl SILK from its throne.
